Choral Group To Give Varied Musical Program

Nearly every musical taste has been included in the program to be presented by the de Paur Gala choral group tonight at 8:15 in the College auditorium.

The group, under conductor Leonard de Paur, includes soloists Inez Matthews, McHenry Boatwright, and Paul Westbrook, a 25-piece orchestra, and a chorus of 25.

Piece de resistance is Kurt Weill's condensation of his Broadway musical, "Lost in the Stars," for which playright Maxwell Anderson supplied the lyrics. Words and music of "Lost in the Stars" were inspired by the Alan Paton novel of Africa, "Cry, the Beloved Country."

The original company of this musical featured Inez Matthews, who repeats her role of Irina with the de Paur Gala. "Lost in the Stars," is the musical version of Elmer Rice's "Street Scene" and "The Three Penny Opera." It is a story of heartbreaking inter-racial violence.

Composer George Kleinsinger calls his "Archy and Mehitabel" a back-alley opera. The words by Joe Darion are based on stories and characters created by Don Marquis.

Archy, a cockroach of philosophic and poetic bent, hangs out in a newspaper office after dark and pours out his love for Mehitabel, the alley cat, sung by Miss Matthews, to his boss, who might be Don Marquis himself, and who is depicted in this production by Paul Westbrook.

Mehitabel runs off with Bill, the tomcat, sung by McHenry Boatwright, after Archie tries in vain to reform her. She returns with a litter of kittens which Archie later helps to rescue. Eventually Mehitabel returns to her old haunts on Shinbone Alley.

Carl Orff is represented by "Carmina Burana," a group of secular songs. "Carmina Burana," inspired by 13th century manuscripts discovered in 1803 at the Bavarian monastery of Benediktebeuern. They were among the most precious poetic documents of the Middle Ages.

They were written by anonymous composers and wandering minstrels, a society of traveling scholars, errant students and monks. For the de Paul Gala performance, Part III, "The Court of Love," has been selected.

Mendelssohn's "Walpergisnacht" completes the program. "Walpergisnacht" for chorus and orchestra was inspired by the sequence in "Faust."

TAPPING A WICKED TOE is Delano Lewis from Kansas university who appeared on stage last night in the Big Four Plus Two talent show, sponsored by the Union campus entertainment committee.

Endowment To Open Scholarship Housing

Operation of a scholarship house under the sponsorship of the K-State Endowment association will begin at the opening of school next fall, according to Kenneth M. Heywood, Director of Endowment and Development.

The Endowment association has purchased the Pi Kappa Alpha home at 331 N. 17th and is preparing to remodel the fraternity house so that it will hold 45 to 50 men students.

"The house is not provided for students with cash scholarships," Heywood warned. "Living in the house and having the consequential reduction in living costs is a scholarship in itself."

All work in regard to operation of the house, including cooking and serving meals, and general maintenance, will be done by the students. They will be under the direction of a housemother and "a few" upperclass counselors.

The men living in the scholarship house next fall will be chosen from incoming freshmen men, according to Heywood. The General Scholarship committee, the same one that does the picking of all scholarship candidates, will choose the men from regular scholarship applications.

Great emphasis will be placed on need, but high academic ability is necessary. "We will do everything possible to elevate prestige. It's going to be an honor to live there," Heywood declared.

The house bill, Heywood explained, will vary according to expenses. The month's bills will be totaled, divided by the residents, and that will constitute the house bill. This will encourage economy and, said Heywood, "will result in a saving of about $300 to $400 a year a boy for board and room."

The Pi Kappa Alpha house was purchased by a woman who wished to remain anonymous as a living memorial to her brother.

Heywood mentioned that there were several advantages to contributing to a scholarship house fund, as compared to a straight scholarship fund:

1. Money given to a scholarship house is used over and over, but if a sum is given as money scholarship, it can be used only once, and then is gone;

2. Because they work for their money, scholarship house occupants are not being given a mere handout;

3. As long as he keeps a good scholastic average, a student may continue to live in the scholarship house, but a money scholarship is frequently for only one year and is no good after that.

"The thing needed," Heywood explained, "is a greater understanding on the part of the people of Kansas. A scholarship house can be a fitting memorial, a gift to Kansas youth, and a nice tax deduction."

Opening Night Acts Show League Talent

Young's View Draws Fire From Indian, U.S. Students

(Opinions expressed in letters are those of the writers and do not necessarily reflect the policy of the Collegian. The editor reserves the right to edit the letters to conform to public law and to the standards of decency and good taste upheld by most newspapers, and to fit space limitations. No letters may exceed 250 words. Unsigned letters will not be published.

Dear Editor:

I read the Collegian's article about Prof. Philip Young's view of India. I was somewhat hurt by the views expressed after a stay of only three months in a country whose language, customs, and culture are entirely different from that of the United States. Under such circumstances to understand the people would require years, not months.

What is wrong with liking the writers of the 19th century? Today is built upon yesterday. Yesterday's ideas are food for the thought of today. Is to know ALL American writers the criterion of being an advanced and progressive nation?

How much does Professor Young teach about Hindi literature? What courses does K-State have which teach of "The Vedas," "Gita," "Upanhishads?" Would students here recognize the names of Kalidas, BanBhutt, Premohand, Sarat Chandra, Rabander Nath Tagore, Sarojini Naidu, Yash Pel?

Perhaps the word "backward" should not have been used so freely. We may be behind economically; but that does not speak for the whole. In addition, calling them rebellious with a superflous view is just injustice done to the students of India.

The reason for teaching subjects in English in all our universities is that the education system has been in the hands of foreigners. To make English a national language is not the question of the day. In fact, it never was. The controversy is when it should be eliminated.

Journalism is not a new idea in India. Perhaps the expansion of the field, along with the advances of other fields of education is thought of in that way by casual observers. There are over 200 newspapers published in India—35 of them in English. The Hindu newspaper which comes to the K-State Library has been published for 75 years, and this paper can stand with any of the American journalistic publications.

Dear Editor:

As regards Professor Young's views on India, I would like to add two things to what Miss Vedi has said.

First, it is good for Americans to go abroad to try to learn of other countries. It is not good that each who travels there should judge those as "backward" whose economy is behind ours.

India may not have General Motors, Hollywood, or DuPont or White Sands; BUT:

2. Her philosophers outdate Plato 2,000 years;

3. She was part of the rich and fabulous Orient which Columbus was seeking when he "stumbled" across America.

Second, I would like to say that since being a graduate student at K-State I have made the acquaintance of many Indian students. Without exception, it is I who am the "backward" student, in spite of being a K-State "honor" graduate!

I admire their attitude and consider "rebellious" a misnomer. Instead, it is living for a cause—freedom. It is having a deep personal conviction that being Eastern and Indian is good, not backward. It is believing that being self-governed is worth working for!

Editor, Collegian,

Not that it matters too much, but just to get the record a bit nearer the facts: The College whistle has been an institution for considerably more than 50 years. I do not know when it started, but in 1905 when I first enrolled at K-State the whistle was a regular part of the day's routine and I well remember how my brother and I hurried to finish the chores if the 7 a.m. whistle caught us with the milking unfinished.

All we had to do was wash up, eat breakfast, change clothes, and walk two miles and be on time for military drill at 7:30. Just a breeze. Nothing to it. Later the whistle was changed from 7 a.m. and 6 p.m. to 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. when Kansas officially adopted the eight hour day.

If I remember correctly, the interruption of the schedule came during World War I when some one dreamed up the bright idea of silencing whistles throughout the country as a fuel-saving measure, believe it or not. (There was almost as much hysterical nonsense during that war as there was during World War II, but nothing to compare with the present output.).

U.S. Trade Policies Bring Retaliation; Foreign Countries Turn To Soviet Bloc

Compiled from United Press
By CHAS. H. SCHREIBER

New York—American businessmen are deeply concerned today that efforts to restrict imports of key goods like oil, lead and zinc may bring retaliation against their products abroad.

Of far greater consequence, they fear these efforts also may prompt friendly foreign nations to turn their trade guns toward the Soviet bloc.

Russia already has launched an all-out war to capture a bigger share of foreign markets. It has been startlingly successful in Europe, Asia, and Latin America.

There have been rumblings in Canada, Venezuela and the Middle East about retaliations against U.S. products because of the U.S. government's program to restrict oil imports.

Oil is the biggest single commodity imported by the U.S. As such, it is an important source of dollars for oil producing countries.

"If foreign countries cannot sell here, they will not buy here," an economist said. "That's a simple economic fact we must own up to."

Foreign trade is an important cog in the U.S. economy. This country sells around $20 billion worth of goods and services abroad, or about 6 per cent of the total produced here.

Industry experts estimate that more than 4,500,000 Americans are dependent on export-import for their jobs. That's about 7 out of every 100 employed in the nation.

Space Requires Calm

San Antonio—Air Force scientists have decided a man of calm, even temperament will make a better spaceman than the "tiger" type who excels in flying jet fighter planes.

Lt. Col. George H. Steinkamp, director of the Department of Space Medicine at the Air Force's School of Aviation Medicine said yesterday he "prefers an individual of stable and predictable temperament" for space flights.

His week-long trip will be over at 9:35 a.m. Sunday. The seven days he will be in the cabin is approximately the same length of time needed to complete a round-trip journey to the moon. Today, beginning his sixth day, he would be on the return trip to earth.

School Historian Indexes Myriad Facets Of Campus Life Down Through Years

Did you know that the College hasn't always been here at its present site?

This and many other questions concerning the history of the College are answered yearly by Professor Charles Correll, College historian.

Professor Correll took over his present job in 1950 after 28 years of teaching in the K-State Department of History, when the first College historian, Dr. J. T. Willard died. Willard took over the job as the original College historian January 1, 1936.

"The job of College historian is to keep track of events of historical importance to the college as they occure," said Correll. "The things that we keep are the ones that have historical interest instead of just temporary interest."

Each day, students drop in to Professor Correll's office in Anderson hall to ask him questions concerning the College's history.

"I find that journalism students are the people that ask the most questions. The questions are largely about College organizations, and features like buildings, societies, and origins. We always get questions about different trees on campus and the different rocks scattered throughout the campus," said Correll.

"The first historian, Willard, indexed all of the College publications into cards which are filed in a cabinet in the historian's office. I keep adding index cards as important events happen on the campus.

"I recently added a card on the ending of the College whistle," said Correll. At the present time, there are approximately 25,000 cards indexed concerning different parts of the College's history. The subjects range from A-AFROTC to Z-Zoology."

"The first information that Willard obtained was from the Kansas Industrialist. In these papers were the history of the College," according to Correll.

"These index cards serve as a key. After checking the subject with the cards, the story may be looked up in the Industrialist, K-State Collegian, Royal Purple, K-State Engineer, Ag Student or minutes of the Board of Regents meetings," said Correll.

Most people don't know that the College was moved here to its present site in 1875. The College was built in 1859 as Bluemont college at the site where the artificial breeding barns are situated now. In 1865, the College was turned over to the state. In 1875, it was moved to its present spot.

According to Correll, the first building on the campus was the ivy-covered farm machinery shops. This building was first built in 1875. The shop is now used for storage.

The committee is sending personal invitations to present and past Program Council members, Union Governing board members, and the people who were invited to the original opening banquet.

Wildcats To Play Colorado In Basketball Tilt Tomorrow

K-State's basketball team, hoping to hold its undefeated Big Eight record in tact, will meet Colorado university at Boulder tomorrow. Game time is 9:05 p.m. CST.

"We have always been nervous about playing at Colorado," Coach Tex Winter admits. "I guess it stems from the big upsets that have happened there."

The Buffaloes' latest upset victim was Iowa State, which was upended, 45-36, at Boulder late in January. But it is understandable if Tex remembers a couple of seasons back when the Wildcats were temporarily derailed in their run to the conference crown with a 71-53 loss at Colorado. Or he may be referring also to the 1952 occasion when after having been soundly trounced at Manhattan the Buffs bounced back at a 67-57 win over K-State at Boulder.

JIM JOCHEMS has been hindered by injuries most of his basketball playing career at Colorado, but the 6-8 senior center could be a threat for the Wildcats tomorrow night.

Overall, the Buffaloes have taken only six decisions in 23 games with K-State. But most of those six have been upset wins—ample reason to cause the high-flying Wildcats to approach Saturday's game with all the caution in the world.

The hot-shooting Wildcats will go into this one at full strength, and with a shot percentage that has been picking up polish through the last six games. K-State now owns a .391 mark from the floor after dropping to .372 at the open of conference play.

At the free throw line, too, the 'Cat eye has sharpened. K-State now has a respectable .657 mark at the stripe for the season's best percentage. In fact, it has been that ability to convert free throws that has kept the Wildcat win string alive in three of the last five ball games.

Against Oklahoma, Kansas, and Iowa State the Wildcats have been outscored from the floor, only to pull out wins of four, four, and seven points, respectively, on free throws. The latest such effort was Saturday when the 'Cats poured in 14 of their final 15 charities to edge Iowa State, 77-70.

Leading the K-State point parade is Bob Boozer with a 19.6-point average. But on two occasions since the loop chase began other Wildcats have stepped up to take game scoring honors, keeping the K-State balanced scoring theme alive.

Jack Parr opened conference play with 20 against Nebraska and hasn't fallen below 15 points in any of the six league games to date. He is nearest to Boozer with a 14.4-point average in all games.

Against Iowa State at Ames Boozer was stopped at four points for his all-time scoring ebb. But Roy DeWitz nipped scoring honors there with 18.

The 16-1 record owned by the 'Cats sets a new all-time best mark for a K-State team to this point, too. But all told, the Wildcats are most proud of the spotless, 6-0, Big Eight record they will have to take out of the vault for display when they tangle with Colorado Saturday.

Probable starters:

| K-State | | Colorado |
|---|---|---|
| Boozer (6-8) | F | (6-5) Hayward |
| Abbott (6-3) | F | (6-6) Walker |
| Parr (6-9) | C | (6-8) Jochems |
| DeWitz (6-3) | G | (6-1) Schr'der |
| Matuszak (6-0) | G | (6-1) Pitts |

K-State Gridders Unsigned by Pros

The three K-State football players that have been drafted by teams in the National Football league, Jack Keelan, Ralph Pfeifer, and Gene Keady, have not yet been signed by the clubs, according to Herb P. Cormack, assistant football coach.

Keelan has been drafted by the Chicago Cardinals, Pfeifer by the Detroit Lions, and Keady by the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Swim Team To OU

K-State swimmers, having a 5-4 season's record, meet Oklahome university tomorrow at Norman. Coach Bill Thrall terms OU the best team the Cat swimmers will meet this season.

Jim Nolen, a butterfly performer, and Jim Mariner, a backstroker are both doubtful entrants for K-State due to the flu.

Oklahoma is defending Big 7 champion and returns almost the same team that finished seventh in the NCAA meet last season.

Thrall considers OU a better team than last year's. To give an indication of its power, OU scored 161 points in winning the Big 7 last season compared to 80 by second place Iowa State.

Four Sooners return who placed first in the Big 7 meet last year. They are Dick Thatcher in the 200-yard butterfly, Bob Leonardt in the 50-yard freestyle, team captain Jeff Farrell in the 100 and 200-yard freestyles and Julian Dyanson in the 200-yard breaststroke.

Baylor Nears Scoring Title

By UNITED PRESS

Seattle's Elgin Baylor opened up his biggest lead of the season today in his three-cornered race with Cincinnati's Oscar Robertson and Kansas' Wilt Chamberlain for the national college basketball scoring title.

The 6-6 Seattle star pumped in 47 points last night in a 99-69 triumph over Regis to raise his point a game average to 34.42 compared to Robertson's 33.32 and Chamberlain's 31.07.

The lead, longest Baylor has had, virtually assures him of the title since he will play against three small college schools before the send of the season while Robertson and Chamberlain are playing against touch conference "toughies."

Including last night's game, here is how the race shapes up. Baylor has 654 points in 19 games for a 34.42 average; Robertson is scoring at a 33.32 clip with 633 points in 19 games; and Chamberlain has 466 points in 15 games for a 31.07 average.

Baylor made 15 field goals and canned 17 of 19 free throws in his latest scoring spree. Seattle led all the way against outmanned Regis and had a 67-37 half-time spread.

Seattle, despite a relatively easy schedule, is expected to be invited to the National Invitational Tournament at New York and Baylor is considered one of the outstanding pro prospects in college basketball.

Eighth-ranked Maryland and 10th-ranked North Carolina also scored victories last night.

Maryland moved to within a half game of first place in the Atlantic Coast conference with a 72-54 win over Clemson.

EDDIE DOVE AND BOYD DOWLER of Colorado will be competing in hurdle events at the triangular meet in Ahearn field house tonight. Dove and Dowler, both juniors, are also backfield men on the Buffalo football team.

Cats To Meet CU, I-State In Triangular Track Meet

K-State's first home action of the 1958 indoor track season comes tonight in Ahearn field house when the Wildcats have their annual triangular meet with Colorado and Iowa State. Field events begin at 7:30 p.m. with running events starting at 8 p.m.

Rated a "pretty close affair" by K-State Coach Ward Haylett, the meet should offer tests for the three schools in all events. "It should be close and interesting," Haylett promises.

This year's meet will mark the sixth meeting between the three schools. In past performances, K-State has won three times while Iowa State and Colorado have each won the title once.

The scoring of the meet should prove to be interesting as each squad claims power in different track events. K-State will be strong in the mile relay, both hurdle races, the high jump, and the 440-yard dash.

Iowa State has proven talent in the shot put and the mile run, while Colorado will be strong in the hurdle races, the 60-yard dash, the 440-yard dash, and the two-mile run.

K-State's mile relay record, set by Henry Renollett, Jim Vader, Gene O'Connor, and DeLoss Dodds in 1957, should be lowered by practically the same foursome.

Larry French will join Vader, O'Connor and Dodds in an attempt to better the 3:20.6 record set last year.

The feature events of the evening should be the high and low hurdle races when Colorado sends two 1957 football aces against Coach Haylett's O'Connor. Boyd Dowler has been clocked at 7.4 in the 60-yard high hurdles while Eddie Dove has run the 60-yard lows in 6.9 for the Buffs. Both times were recorded earlier this year in an intra-squad meet with the Colorado freshman team.

O'Connor, who is the Wildcat track captain, has run the hurdles in 7.5 and 7.0 respectively this year. O'Connor's career low in both races matches the times of the two speedy Buffaloes.

The 440-yard dash should also match good competition from Colorado and K-State. Dodds, Dave Burton and French will compete for the Wildcats while Chuck Carlson will run for the Buffs. Dodds has run the quarter mile in 50.6 seconds this year while Carlson's best time is 50.8.

Iowa State's Phil Delevan is almost certain to break the Ahearn field house shot put record of 51-3¾ set by Wally Tanner of Colorado. Delevan's best heave is 53-10½. Jim Cain, K-State, has also thrown the shot farther than the record with a mark of 51-4⅞.

In the distance events, all three schools will field strong competitors. Iowa State's Ron Sanson, a junior, recently defeated Minnesota's great distance runner Bud Edelen during a dual meet. Sanson's time was 4:19.6.

Tom Rodda and Jesse Unruh will run the mile for K-State. Colorado will enter Jack Hughes in the two-mile run against the Wildcat's Duane Holman. Along with Sanson, Iowa State will be represented by Frank Jolly and Gary Haltmeyer in the distance events.

The Buffalos will be looking to Larry Chace for support in the 60-yard dash. The well-seasoned sprinter ran the distance in 6.2 seconds earlier this year. Chace placed third in the conference indoor 60-yard dash and third in the outdoor 100-yard dash last year.

K-State's sophomore high jumper Steve French will be eyeing the field house high jump mark of 6-4¾ set by Ralph Handley of Pittsburg and Jim Kilgore, Missouri. French's best leap of the year was at Nebraska when he cleared 6-5. Colorado's top high jumper, Dave Alderman, has bettered the 6-2½ mark.

K-State entries for Friday night's meet include:

60-yard dash—Bobby Jones, Craig Jones, and Max Falk.

Mile—Tom Rodda and Jesse Unruh.

Pole vault—Tom Amerine and Jerry Hess.

High jump—Steve French and Dick Johnson.

Sportcerpts

by Eldon Miller

If there is any truth in the saying that history repeats itself K-State basketball fans should be rather uneasy about the Wildcats' game with Colorado at Boulder.

K-State, with a 6-0 Big Eight record, stands in a position to go through the conference undefeated and on into the NCAA tournament.

In 1952 K-State was leading the conference with a 7-0 record, having defeated a fine Kansas university team led by all-American Clyde Lovellette, and was rated the number two team in the nation when it went to Boulder.

Colorado was not regarded highly that year, having only a 2-6 conference mark and 5-13 for the season. The Cats had walloped the Buffaloes, 92-40, earlier at Manhattan.

But the Colorado team, coached by H. B. (Bebe) Lee, handed K-State a stunning 67-57 defeat. Kansas beat the Cats at Lawrence, winning the conference, and went on to the 1952 Olympics at Helsinki, Finland.

This season the conditions are remarkably the same. K-State is undefeated in the Big Eight at 6-0 and first in both the AP and UP polls.

Colorado is tied for last with Nebraska with a 1-6 record and has a 5-11 mark for the season. They have dropped an 83-54 decision to K-State already this year.

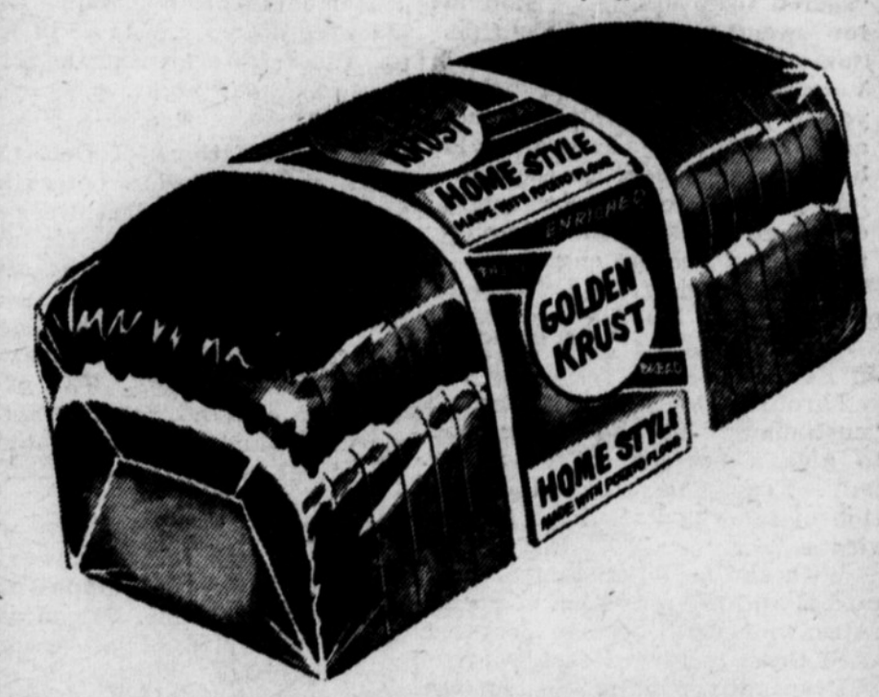

Tomorrow night's game between Kansas university and Iowa State at Lawrence should prove to be a "test case" for Wilt Chamberlain's new passing game. Wilt, affectionately known as the "Dip" by his teammates, will have another big barrier around him in Iowa State's zone.

The Cyclone's coach, Chuck Strannigan, who was able to to a fairly good job of holding down Wilt's scoring game last year, will have John Crawford (6-5) John Krocheski (6-7) and Don Medsker (6-8) in the lineup against the big Jayhawk center.

It will be interesting to see how Chamberlain plays offensively against the Cylones after Monday's game with Colorado. Chamberlain scored only six points on two free throws and two field goals, shooting only six times from the field. He was content with passing off and letting his teammates score.

'We're Happy To Announce . . .'

"BE MY VALENTINE," say Charlotte Chastain, TJ Jr, and Pat Tramel, EEd Jr, as cupid comes early to the Pi Beta Phi house. The poem on the large hearts revealed the pinning of Sue Higdon, EEd Soph, and Richard Bach, ME Soph. The red and white valentine setting was complete with the appearance of the locked Sig Ep "Heart" and Pi Phi "Arrow," red roses, and the passing of the traditional candy.

Custom of Valentine Giving Is Still Popular Every Year

An especially popular phrase around the 14th of February—"Won't you be my Valentine?"—is one that students from grade school through high school through college never seem to tire of. And Valentines of all shapes and sizes are flooding the United States mails today.

There are several different beliefs as to how Valentine's Day began.

The word "Valentine" was referred to quite frequently in English literature as a day "sacred to lovers." A synonym for sweetheart was Valentine. Some believe that the origin of Valentine's Day began when young people of long ago met and drew lots to see who would be their sweetheart for the coming year. The couples would exchange presents and sometimes even become engaged.

A plausible reason for the origin is that it's the survival of a Roman festival that takes place on February 15.

Through the years it became "customary" for the young man to give a present to the young lady. From this grew the tradition of sending Valentines to "favorites."

With the establishment of post offices and the reduction of postal rates, the mail became crowded with these messages each year.

Eventually comic Valentines came into being—some of which were coarse and vulgar. In the early part of this century the Chicago post office rejected 25,000 of these Valentines on the ground that they were not fit to be carried through the mail. But over a million were still accepted.

Early in this century the custom of sending Valentines was chiefly for children. Parents sent Valentine messages to their children, and the children in return sent Valentines to their parents and playmates. Stores kept sparkle-covered cupids, red hearts, and colored paper in stock so that children could buy materials and make their own Valentines. In kindergartens they were taught how to make them.

Especially popular today are comic and contemporary Valentines. People send heart-shaped cookies and cakes and some even send flowers for Valentine gifts. Drug stores and candy stores in Aggieville and downtown have had chocolates in heart-shaped boxes on display for the past several weeks—but the supply has dwindled.

So the Valentine tradition has become an opportunity to send candy or flowers or cards to friends and sweethearts. And the message—"Be my Valentine"—remains popular.

"Spiritual Responsibility of Leadership" will be the theme of the Newman club convention held at Kansas State today through Sunday.

The convention will open tonight with a mixer at the Wareham hotel scheduled for 7:30 p.m.

The keynote convention address will be given by Col. Benedict A. Henderson, OFM, post chaplain at Ft. Riley, who will speak Saturday at 10:30 a.m. in the Luckey high school auditorium. Colonel Henderson's address will be followed by a panel discussion at 11 a.m.

Regional meetings will convene at 1:30 p.m., and at 3 p.m. officers will be elected in the second plenary session of the convention.

The Most Rev. Frederick W. Freking, D.D., Salina bishop, will say Mass at 8 a.m. Sunday at the Seven Dolors church. There will be a breakfast in the church hall at 9:30 a.m.

Presentation of a Mr. and Miss Newmanite award will be made by the Rev. E. J. Weisenberg, S.J., chaplain of the Central States province, at the Cardinal Newman banquet in the K-State Union at 7 p.m. Saturday. The award is given to the most outstanding Newman club male and female in the Central States province.

Speakers at the banquet will be the Rev. Charles W. Albright, C.S.P., executive secretary of the National Newman Club Federation; and the Rev. Gerald Van Ackeren, S.J., of St. Mary's college.

The inaugural ball will be from 9 p.m. to midnight in the Union, with music furnished by Larry Smith and his orchestra.

The K-State Newman club will have its regular bi-monthly meeting Sunday morning following the 9:30 mass and communion service.

Representatives from 61 Newman clubs of the Central States province, which comprises the states of Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, Nebraska, and Kansas, will be present.

Two Sunday Speakers Slated by Gamma Delta

Topics for the meeting are "Sources of Power-Prayer" by Frank Werner, and the "Congregation and Its God-Given Work" by Reverend Rosenkoetter.

Colorado Jaunt Takes K-Staters To Youth Camp

By MAGGI SULLIVAN

Informal discussions around a pot-bellied stove, skiing down snowy Colorado slopes—these are only a few of the activities enjoyed between semesters by ten Westminster Fellowship members and their sponsor, the Rev. E. I. Abendroth.

The camp is owned by Westminster Fellowship at K-State and will accommodate 15 people. This is the second year the trip has been taken.

No set schedule was followed by the campers. The purpose of the trip was relaxation, fellowship, and discussion. The camp has no modern conveniences, so the students did their own cooking on an old fashioned wood-burning stove.

Winter sports of all kinds kept them busy during the daytime hours, and the evenings were spent in roundtable discussions on subjects ranging from the meaning of the sovereignty of God and freedom of man, to dating and going steady.

Wesley Group Elects Officers

Newly elected officers of Older Youth Fellowship at Wesley Foundation are Marge Penrod, TJ Soph, president; John Ott, Ag Soph, vice-president; Mary Frances Clark, HEN Fr, secretary-treasurer; Marilyn McKnight, TJ Sr, publicity; Alice Ott, EEd Fr, recreation chairman; Galen Postier, Agr Fr, and Warren Roepke, worship chairmen; Judie Kroell, Bac Soph, and Ralph Sherman, LDs Fr, food chairmen; and the Rev. Robert Simpson and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bennett, sponsors.

Council Decides Election Dates

The Council discussed election dates in its meeting a week ago today, and a motion was entertained setting March 25 and 26 for the primaries and April 1 and 2 for the general ballotting. However, the motion was tabled for this evening's meeting.

Other items of importance on the Council agenda include discussion of a retreat for both new and old Council members after SGA elections, and discussion of an orientation program for the new members.

Of lesser importance, a motion tabled last week which calls for a revision of the vacation schedule will be acted on; the Council will discuss its recommendations to the Traffic Control board;

The motion concerning vacation schedules calls for a longer Easter vacation and a shorter between - semesters vacation. The proposal last week was for the addition of three days at Easter, and for paring the same number of days off the between-semesters break.

The constitutional ammendment would stipulate that SGA should keep a copy of the constitution and by-laws on file in the SGA office. The Student Body President would be responsible for seeing that the editor of the Student Directory has the latest, revised copy of those documents. At present, the only copy of the constitution and by-laws is in the Student Directory, according to the report.

Nun Reports U.S. Needs More Poets

"What our country needs to assure its future is not more Sputniks, but more poets," said Sister Madeleva, president of St. Mary's College of South Bend, Ind., at assembly this morning.

"Poetry and philosophy don't enlist too much interest in this age of satellites," she said, "but if we are only aiming at the moon, we are aiming infinities lower than God."

The poet-educator, speaking on "Poetry and Philosophy," said she would feel much more secure in our struggle with Russia if our country would have a return to thought, wisdom, and contemplation. She then quoted from the Old Testament, "When vision fails, the nation perishes."

Clad in the traditional Nun's habit, Sister Madeleva asserted that man is vowed to the highest form of thinking: contemplation. She told the audience that contemplation literally means "in the temple," or as she paraphrased it, "in the House of God."

The role of the poet she described as "Divining the spiritual, in the things of sense. The view what is meant by things of poet sees from God's point of the physical world."

The difference between the philosopher and the poet, Sister Madeleva said, is that "The philosopher seeks to know truth for its own sake and is satisfied with the truth. The poet takes the truth of the philosopher and fashions it inot a form of beauty."

She read several of her poems to illustrate how in everyday experience she had found religious and poetic significance. In introducing her to the audience, President McCain described Sister Madeleva as one of the most outstanding critics and poets of our nation at present.

IPC King, Queen Crowned Friday

Dee Ann Johnston, EEd Fr, Kappa Delta, and Jim Mentgen, ChE Fr, Phi Kappa, reigned over the fifth annual Interfraternity Pledge council dance Friday night in the Union ballroom.

The pair was elected from a field of 32 candidates representing K-State's sorority and fraternity pledge classes. "Sweetheart ball" was the theme of the 9-12 p.m. dance and Matt Betton's orchestra played.

Mentgen's election as pledge king marked the third straight year the Phi Kappa candidate has won the title.

Nearly 300 couples attended the Valentine event, estimated IPC president Jack Robbins, Ar 01. The king and queen were crowned by last year's royalty, Mel Eaton, EEd Jr, Gamma Phi Beta, and Joe Gardner, BAA Fr, Phi Kappa.

The throne for the event was an imitation-grass-covered platform with a trellis decorated with hearts. A large heart provided a background for the scene. The colored lighting of the ballroom added to the effect.

Queen Johnston commented after the dance, "Well, I just stood there. I really didn't expect to get it. I thought the turnout was really great. I hope it's as good next year."

A surprised Mentgen said, "I was shocked. It felt wonderful. I felt some pressure since Phi Kappa had won the title the previous two years." Asked his reaction to his throne-mate, Mentgen said, "She was pretty nice. Personally I felt she was the best candidate."

IPC head Robbins described the dance as a success. "It went over real well; we had a good crowd and kept them there all evening. I guess there were almost three-hundred couples," he said.

Pledges voted for the candidates upon entering the ballroom. Punch and cookies were served at intermission.

Appreciative Crowd Sees de Paur Gala

Leonard de Paur's famed de Paur Gala choral group, presented by the Manhattan Artist series Friday night at the College auditorium, was heard by an appreciative audience. The group, including soloists, chorus, and orchestra, presented music of various moods.

The program included "Lost in the Stars," part III of "Carmina Burana"—The Court of Love, and the back-alley opera "Archie and Mehitable."

"Lost in the Stars" by Kurt Weill with lyrics by Maxwell Anderson, is based on the famous Alan Paton novel, "Cry, the Beloved Country." In this story of inter-racial violence Miss Inez Matthews, soprano, recreating her role of Irina from the original Broadway production, sang the foreboding "Trouble Man," and the hauntingly wistful aria, "Stay Well." McHenry Boatwright, baritone soloist, sang the paternally affectionate "Thousands of Miles" and the rather nostalgic "Little Grey House." Miss Bernice Hall, soprano, pleased the audience with her narrative ballad, "Big Black Mole." Paul Westbrook acted as narrator.

The Court of Love, part III of "Carmina Burana" was sung entirley in Latin. The text, dating back to the 13th century discusses the joys of life with a relish that recalls those ages when Pan and Jove were not considered incompatible deities. Miss Matthews' solos included "Amor Volat Undique," "Petit Puella," and "In Truti[illegible]" "Dies, Nox et Omnia" and "Circa Mea Pectora" were sung by Boatwright. The chorus furnished rhythmic background music and group numbers.

George Kleinsinger's "Archy and Mehitabel" followed the intermission. With the orchestra to one side of the stage, the action with soloists and chorus took place on the other side. Miss Matthews portrayed the sophisticated but rather vulgar Mehitabel with her easy-going "tourjours gai" philosophy. Melvin Stewart, tenor, played the part of Archie, the poetic and philosophic cockroach, in song, pantomime and dance. Boatwright was the villian tomcat, Bill. Paul Westbrook narrated the story in a simple and easy fashion. The presentation was based on characters created by poet-humorist Don Marquis.

MANHATTAN ARTIST SERIES brought the de Paur Gala to the K-State campus Friday night. The varied program featured soloists, orchestra, and a mixed chorus in concert and opera productions. Numbers included, "Lost in the Stars" the Kurt Weill-Maxwell Anderson hit musical, George Kleinsinger's "Archy and Mehitabel" and Carl Orff's "Carmina Burana."

Dead Week Is Discussed

Student Activities board will consider four proposals by Associated Women Students organization today concerning a suggested "dead week" preceding finals, according to Pat Loyd, BA Sr, chairman.

"We want to give them full consideration and go over them in detail before making any ruling on them," Loyd said. "This would be put into effect next fall if passed, and perhaps some this spring, although the calendar is pretty full by now."

Posters on campus will be discussed either tomorrow or the following Monday, Loyd reported. Further action may be taken on several clubs, depending on whether or not their projects are in on time for the 4 p.m. meeting tomorrow.

Loyd expected a few fund-raising projects to be in for discussion tomorrow, too, and explained they would be taken care of with the AWS approval if they met the deadline for consideration.

Union Can Be Wholesome Spot, Can Be Not-So-Wholesome Too

OVERHEARD IN the K-State Union the other day: "You could get lost in here—in a wholesome sort of way."

The question arises now—do K-Staters get lost in a wholesome way—in the art lounge, listening to music, reading the books—or is it less than wholesome? Do they get lost from classes, entangled in coffee cups, bridge games, and idle gossip?

We're not in any way trying to start an anti-Union campaign. It's a beautiful building, has for the most part a well-organized activity program, and has done a great deal to cement relations between Greeks and independents, besides offering a focal point around which the campus entertainment evolves.

Too frequently, however, we feel students forget that there are other buildings on this campus—that all classes are not in the Union—and that much can be gained from discussion that is not over a cup of coffee.

SEVEN WEEKS EXAMS aren't as far away as you might think—and we understand the Union won't be giving any tests. It just might be worth your while if you bone up on a few other subjects. Or are you one of those chronic Unionites who has given up class for a more complete participation in our activity program?

We certainly agree that outside exchange of ideas, bull sessions, and extra-curricular activities all play a big part in college life—but this isn't what most of us paid our tuition for. And with enrollment rises expected, few students are going to be capable of spending their eight-hour day expounding on the latest Greek function—or the latest all-College dance, for that matter, and making the grades necessary to meet the competition.

We'd like to see Dr. Lafene offer other shots besides the anti-flu vaccine. We've gotten the idea that some of the same faces that you see at the same tables day in and day out are chronic ailments. Understandably, the disease is catching. It's not as much fun to sit by yourself—so why not bring the gang?

We're not sure what the real cure for the Union bug is—but we'd imagine that if a few of the diseased would try attending some classes, they just might find something of interest. We understand the College has hired some pretty good profs this year.

ANYHOW, A MORE IMMEDIATE possibility . . . . what do you suppose would have happened if Sister Madeleva had walked into the state room this morning at 9:30, been given a microphone, and gone "Poetics and Philosophy" on the Unionizers? Would you have been left holding the bag in the Auditorium? Dollars to doughnuts (from the state room, or course), unless you happen to be a pledge, you'd have been caught with many others in the Union—which isn't a bad thing in itself. It's kind of a matter of values, and we'd like to see K-Staters regain their senses in that direction. We'll be the first to admit that there's an awful lot of us headed towards the unwholesome, less valuable use of time.—Sue Goss

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS BY BIBLER

Sinatra Scores in Serious Role; Mitchum, Jurgens Are Convincing

The current flick at the Campus theater is "The Joker Is Wild" with Frank Sinatra starring in the life story of Joe E. Lewis, nightclub entertainer. Sinatra, once again, proves that he can be a serious actor as well as a vocalist and comedian.

Sinatra does not sing much in the movie but this is mainly because some Chicago thugs work him over, leaving him with a fractured skull, severed voice box, and a few knife scars here and there. However, he does manage to sing his big hit of the day, "All the Way," before this little episode.

At one stage of his drinking or rather night club career, he passes out and falls flat on his face. As anxious friends help him to his dressing room, someone yells, "Call him a doctor." And Sinatra opens his "road-map" eyes and slurs, "Don't call me a doctor, call me a drunk."

Jeanne Crain is the girl Sinatra never gets around to marrying. When he finally decides that he is not too busy to marry her, he discovers she has given up and married someone else. He takes this jolt pretty well, though. He marries Mitzi Gaynor on the rebound.

The movie is actually quite heartwarming and full of dry humor and jokes. But the most frequent comment of people coming out of the movie was, "Gosh, I'm thirsty."

The story is basically a cat and mouse game atop and beneath the South Atlantic ocean during World War II between the captain of a U.S. destroyer and a German submarine captain.

The movie, oddly enough, has two conflicting protagonists who both win the sympathies of the audience. Robert Mitchum is the destroyer captain, and Curt Jurgens is the submarine captain. Both turn in a convincing job of acting, particularly Jurgens.

Hollywood should be commended for at last coming out with a movie showing that some of the Germans during World War II were not so bad after all. Surprisingly enough, they are human just like Americans.

Jurgens plays a disillusioned and tired German officer left over from World War I. He is not a staunch supporter of the "new Germany;" nor does he read "Mein Kempf" between depth charge blasts for courage.

The American and German captains have the same philosophy of the war. Neither believes in war. The reason they stalk each other for 90 thrilling minutes is because they are duty-bound.

As the two captains take turns out-foxing the other, a mutual respect blossoms. It is at this point that the audience gets involved in a big emotional problem. The German and American are both such darn nice guys—who is going to sink who?—maybe they'll just turn around and go back to their respective countries and stop bothering each other. But no, our two heroes are stubborn or else persistent in completing their mission. They both stay on "course 140" till the bittersweet end which is quite touching and satisfying to a by-then frustrated audience.

Indiana Has Nation's Biggest Snowfall—Five Feet; Alabama To Boston Area Gripped by Storm

By CHAS. H. SCHREIBER

Boston—The east coast blizzard centered over northern New England today with sharpened intensity. Sub-freezing winds blew over its white wake on the hurricane path from Alabama to Boston.

The death toll for the 10-day cold wave that began February 6 rose to 223.

It was a numbing Monday from the Gulf coast, where two to three inches of snow fell in the weekend storm, to the Northeast where official depths of 42 inches were blown into towering drifts on gale force winds.

Boston was buried under 18 inches of snow, a 24-hour fall that broke a 37-year record by 1½ inches. Up to 27 inches fell in suburban areas. Accompanying high tides forced 50 families from homes in Quincy.

The worst snow in the nation, however, was outside the sweeping storm path in the northwestern corner of Indiana where a Lake Michigan squall dumped four to five feet of snow. Drifts blew to 18 feet. Michigan City, Ind., was virtually isolated in zero temperatures, and a full state of emergency was declared with aid summoned from as far away as Chicago.

Reds Kidnap Plane

Seoul, Korea—South Korean intelligence officers expressed belief today Communist hatchet men had kidnaped a Korean airliner at gunpoint and flown it to North Korea with its 32 passengers in a cold-blooded attempt to gain hostages.

Two of the 32 persons aboard were Americans. Two others were Germans. On the basis of past experiences the North Korean Comunists might try to use them as hostages to force the exchange of captured master spy Pak Chung Ko—head of Red Korean activities in Japan, Korea and Hong Kong.

The ROK intelligence officers noted that the apparent kidnaping came at a time when Chinese Communist Premier Chou En-Lai was in Pyongyang, the capital of North Korea, for conferences with North Korean Premier Kim Il Sung.

U.S. Gen. George Decker, United Nations commander in South Korea, demanded the immediate return of the plane. He called for a truce commission meeting at Panmunjom tomorrow to arrange for its return.

Postal Hike Planned

Washington—Senate Republican leader William F. Knowland proposes that out-of-town letter stamps be raised to five cents for three years and then cut back to four cents.

He offered this plan as a compromise to salvage President Eisenhower's proposal to raise out-of-town mail to five cents an ounce. In-town letters would go from the present three cents to four cents under both proposals.

The Senate Post Office and Civil Service committee will conclude hearings tomorrow on the postal rate issue. A showdown in the committee may come this week.

The House already has passed a postal bill to raise the first class rate from three cents to four cents, and airmail from six to seven cents. The measure also would increase rates on other classes of mail.

Cats Cool Fired-Up Buffs With 68-62 Basketball Win

K-State's Wildcats shook off a determined Colorado basketball team, 68-62, at Boulder Saturday night before 6,300 fans to register their eighth straight win and run their conference record to 7-0.

This victory enabled K-State to keep two games in front of Kansas university, which slipped into second place ahead of Oklahoma in the Big Eight standings. Kansas has a 5-2 mark.

The Jayhawks downed Iowa State, 90-61, while Oklahoma was surprised by Missouri, 74-53. Colorado is in the cellar with a 1-7 league record and over-all mark of 5-13.

The Buffaloes, apparently not over-awed by K-State's number one national ranking and 16-1 season's record, gave the Cats a rough go until midway through the second half when K-State broke a 46-46 tie and scored 11 straight points to make CU number 17 on its list.

The Wildcats' Bob Boozer was high scorer for the game with 19 points. The 6-8 junior forward was also the leading rebounder with 8 grabs.

Both teams scored well from the field with K-State hitting 26 of 55 field goal attempts for a 47.3 percentage and the Buffaloes scoring at a 46.2 per cent clip with 24 of 52 shots connecting.

IM Volleyball Tonight

CU Cops Triangular

Six meet records fell and two others were tied during the sixth annual triangular track meet in which the Colorado Buffaloes were victorious over K-State and Iowa State Friday night in Ahearn field house. Colorado compiled 58½ points while the Wildcats tallied 39½ and Iowa State 31.

Colorado's converted football ace Eddie Dove was the only double winner of the evening as he swept both hurdle races, edging K-State's Gene O'Connor. Dove tied O'Connor's 60-yard high hurdle mark of 7.4 seconds set in 1956.

Coach Haylett's forces claimed two of the six meet records, setting new standards in the mile relay and the high jump. Dave Burton, Larry French, Jim Vader, and DeLoss Dodds lowered the mile relay mark to 3:19.1. The previous low in the relay was run by Iowa State in 1956 at 3:22.5. The foursome's time also broke the varsity and Field House records.

In the high jump, K-State's sophomore standout Steve French leaped 6-4½ to better the old mark of 6-2¾ set by Terry Berg of Colorado and Robert Clark of Iowa State.

The Buffaloes broke both of the distance standards in the mile run and the two-mile run. Mike Peake finished the mile with the time of 4:20.9 and Bernie Frakes clipped 18 seconds off the old two-mile run record with a time of 9:25.2.

Iowa State set new standards in the shot put and the 880-yard run. Phil Delevan heaved the shot 54-10⅜ to set a new Field House and meet record which was previously 51-3¾. K-State's Jim Cain set a new varsity shot put record with a toss of 52-10 which bettered Rollin Prather's mark of 52-4½ set in 1948.

Al Meyer was the other record breaker for the Cyclones as he finished the 880-yard run in 1:56.1.

Gym Team Wins

The K-State gymnastics team defeated Kansas university, 72-32, Friday in Ahearn gymnasium. The win gives the Cat gymnasts a 4-1 record for the season.

Robert Gramzow, team captain, was the leading K-State scorer tain Allen Olsen had 12 points and with 22 points. Alternate Cap-Harold Loomis and Mike Dziura each had 11.

Mermen Swamped

K-State swimmers lost to a powerful Oklahoma university team, 75-11, Saturday at Norman. The Sooners placed first in all ten events with the Cats picking up one second and eight third places.

Coach Bill Thrall termed the OU team as one of the top five in the nation this season. He noted they placed seventh in the NCAA meet last season and should do even better this year.

Wrestlers on Road For Two Matches

K-State's wrestling team, having a 4-6 season's record, tackles undefeated Iowa State college at Ames tonight and Iowa State teachers college at Cedar Rapids tomorrow.

Iowa State's undefeated team has had only one "tight" match, and that was a 13-13 tie with Oklahoma State university.

Coach Fritz Knorr is concerned about conditions of Ray Glaze, Gary Haller, and heavyweight Bob Schmidt who had colds during Thursday's practice session. However, he still is counting on the three as part of his lineup both days.

Probable starters:

123 pounds—Billy Youngers
130 pounds—Russell Grant
137 pounds—Riley Miller
147 pounds—Pete Everist
157 pounds—Pat Doyle
167 pounds—Ray Glaze
177 pounds—Gary Haller
Heavyweight—Bob Schmidt

THE PLEDGE YOU SAVE MAY BE YOUR OWN

Today's column is directed at those young female undergraduates who have recently pledged sororities and are worried, poor lambs, that they won't make good. Following is a list of simple instructions which, if faithfully observed, will positively guarantee that you will be a mad success as a sorority girl.

First, let us take up the matter of housemothers. The housemother is your friend, your guide, your mentor. You must treat her with respect. When you wish to speak to her, address her as "Mother Sigafoos" or "Ma'am." In no circumstances must you say, "Hey, fat lady."

Second, let us discuss laundry. Never hang your wash on the front porch of the sorority house. This is unsightly and shows a want of breeding. Use the Chapter Room.

Third, meals. Always remember that planning and preparing meals for a houseful of healthy girls is no simple task. Your cook goes to a great deal of trouble to make your menu varied and nourishing. The least you can do is show your appreciation. Don't just devour your food; praise it. Exclaim with delight, "What delicious pork jowls!" or "What a yummy soupbone!" or "What scrumptious fish heads!" or "What clear water!"

Fourth, clothing. Never forget that your appearance reflects not just on yourself but on the whole house. It was well enough before you joined a sorority to lounge around campus in your old middy blouse and gym bloomers, but now you must take great pains to dress in a manner which excites admiring comments from all who observe you. A few years ago, for example, there was a Chi Omega named Camille Ataturk at the University of Iowa who brought gobs of glory to all her sorors.

Camille hit on the ingenious notion...

Camille hit on the ingenious notion of suiting her garb to the class she was attending. For instance, to English Lit she wore a buskin and jerkin. To German she wore lederhosen and carried a stein of pilsener. To Econ she wore 120 yards of ticker tape. Her shiningest hour came one day when she dressed as a white mouse for Psych Lab. Not only her Chi Omega sisters, but the entire student body went into deep mourning when she was killed by the janitor's cat.

Finally, let us take up the most important topic of all. I refer, of course, to dating.

As we have seen, the way you dress reflects on your sorority, but the men you date reflect even more. Be absolutely certain that your date is an acceptable fellow. Don't beat about the bush; ask him point-blank, "Are you an acceptable fellow?" Unless he replies, "Yeah, hey," send him packing.

But don't just take his word that he is acceptable. Inspect him closely. Are his fingernails clean? Is his black leather jacket freshly oiled? Is his ukulele in tune? Does he carry public liability insurance? And, most significant of all, does he smoke Marlboros?

If he's a Marlboro man, you know he's a lot of man. You know he has taste and discernment, wit and wisdom, character and sapience, decency and warmth, presence and poise, talent and grit, filter and flavor. You will be proud of him, your sorority will be proud of him, the makers of Marlboro will be proud of him, and I will be paid for this column. © 1958, Max Shulman

The makers of Marlboro wish to announce that Mr. Shulman has been paid for this column and will continue to be paid for bringing you his homely philosophy throughout the school year.

Prof Presents Paper To Musician Conclave

Morris D. Hayes, assistant professor of music at K-State, will present a paper at the annual meeting of the Music Educators national conference. The meeting will be held March 19-26 at Los Angeles.

The paper, "Rehearsing the Stage Chorus," was written at the request of the Opera Workshop committee's report at the last national meeting in St. Louis. Hayes is a member of the committee, which is a part of the Music Educators national conference's Commission II, "Music in American Life."

Hayes' paper deals mainly with the problems involved in the rehearsal of a chorus. The paper also outlines a basic plan to bring more effect from a chorus.

"Last year's national conference meeting in St. Louis decided that too much emphasis was put on solo personnel during a number and not enough on the chorus. A request was made for a paper of this type in order to help improve the abilities of a background chorus," stated Hayes. "The paper also explains the relationship betwen the orchestra and the chorus.

Bowling Champ To Exhibit Here

K-State students will have an opportunity to see one of the nation's top bowling stars in person February 20, when Bill Lillard will give an exhibition at the Student Union. The former national match game and ABC all-events champion will appear at two different times, 3:30 p.m. and 7 p.m.

Lillard's appearance will be sponsored by the Union Games committee according to Bill Harrison, Games committee chairman. Lillard is currently on a nationwide exhibition tour.

The experienced bowler has compiled several tournament marks that rank among the all-time greats. Lillard has compiled a 206-243 average for 800 games to lead the All-Star Tournament finalists. He also set the cash-prize record for ABC tournament records when he won $2,180.75. In five years of competition, Lillard has an average of 206. His twelve straight 200 games ties an ABC record previously achieved by Joe Wilman and Don Carter.

Snow Scenes Photo Wanted

Miss Hostetter announced that she needs a campus scene, preferably not of Anderson hall, for a future edition of the magazine.

"After the recent snow," she remarked, "many people were out taking pictures of the campus." Those interested are asked to submit a contact print. Miss Hostetter will judge those prints submitted and use the best one on the cover of a future copy of the K-Stater.

The K-Stater is willing to buy the print used, and Miss Hostetter will credit the photographer in her "Odds and Ends" column.

A good spring shot of the campus will also be needed later on, Miss Hostetter remarked.

Student Governing Primary Scheduled for March 25, 26

Student Council set dates for Student Governing association elections in its regular meeting last night. Primary elections are to be March 25 and 26, and the general election will be April 1 and 2.

Election petitions are to be available March 3, due at noon March 15. That will give students interested in running for Student Council, or any of the other offices to be decided in the SGA elections, twelve days to collect the required 25 signatures.

The Council also voted to "strongly urge" petitioners for Student Council to attend all Council meetings between the due date for petitions and the elections.

A retreat is planned for the Council-elect and the old governing body on April 12 and 13. The first day will be for new and old members alike, while the second day of the retreat will be for new Council members only, though outgoing Council officers will stay to assist.

The Council voted to have a Student Council Recognition banquet on March 11. An outstanding Student Council member and outstanding student members from each SGA standing committee will be selected beforehand and announced at the banquet. The outstanding Council member will receive a trophy, and outstanding committee members will receive paper certificates.

The Council voted to recommend a new vacation distribution. Under the current distribution, school is dismissed for two weeks for Christmas vacation. Three weeks later, students get a one-week, between-semesters vacation. At Easter, April 4-7 is a vacation period (Friday through Monday).

Under the plan to be recommended, this would be revised to add three days to Easter vacation and subtract three days from the between-semesters break from classes.

A Campus Business Relations committee of Jayann Divine, HE Soph; Carl Stevens, FT Jr; Bill Warren, Ar 03; and Jeanne Hill, Sp Soph, was appointed and given the authority to study student expenditures. Cal Adams, PsP Sr, was appointed acting chairman of the Elections committee.

KSC To Get Scholar Hall

Plans are underway for K-State to have its first scholarship house next fall, Kenneth M. Heywood, director of the Endowment association told women attending the AWS meeting in the Union last night.

Scholarship houses, in use by many other colleges, provide inexpensive housing for students who work in the house, according to Miss Margaret Lahey, associate dean of students. Heywood said the college is planning to use the old Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity house for a scholarship house next fall.

Plans were announced for activities on All Women's Day March 13. Starting at 1 p.m. four discussion groups will talk over problems concerning the home, business, and cultural and social activities. A dinner will be served at 5:15 p.m.

Former treasurer of the United States, Mrs. Georgia Neese Clark Gray is scheduled to speak to the group. A style show will be presented by Mahattan stores with girls from the organized houses modeling.

Top UGB Post Vacated; Keith Swenson Resigns

Resignation of the chairman of the Union Governing Board, Keith Swenson, Ar 05, was announced last night. He will resign from office as soon as a new chairman can be appointed.

Swenson is working on city planning in Wamego and will be unable to continue his duties as UGB chairman.

The new chairman will be chosen from the remaining members of the board, and a new members will be selected to fill the vacancy on the board.

In other business, Union director Loren Kottner said Case Bonebrake, head of the heat and power department of the Physical Plant, plans to install floodlights on the island in front of the Student Union.

Jack Hamilton, BA Jr, vice president of the Union program council, reported that the council wants to include married and independent students in the Union programs. It hopes to start a file of every student's activities for the Placement bureau.

Lowell Novy, VM Soph, reported on the Big Four Plus Two talent show that performed at K-State, Kansas university, and Nebraska university last weekend. He said the most receptive crowd was at Nebraska while K-State had the largest audience and KU the smallest.

He said the council is planning the Union's second birthday, to be called "SU Days," March 7. It will be the last birthday celebration until the Union is five years old.

Concerning automatic pinsetters, Jim Smith, Union Games director, said the Union couldn't get a satisfactory contract with the Brunswick-Balke-Collender company unless $1,600 was added to the downpayment settled on earlier. No definite decision was made about the pinsetters.

Class Fires Own Rockets As Fort Riley Supervises

A rocket launching project by several K-State engineering students was reported yesterday by Clyde Sprague, ME Sr, at the monthly luncheon of the engineering experiment station.

Using rockets they designed and built outside of class, several students attempted launchings under army supervision at Fort Riley recently, Sprague said.

An engineering analysis class did a paper analysis of rocket performance as an experiment, and student interest led to the project, according to Robert Crank, assistant professor of mechanical engineering and instructor of the class.

Sprague reported that the rockets were set off by remote control, and in one successful test the rocket went out of sight. The others did not leave the launching platform.

Each rocket contained a smoke bomb to help chart its course.

The rockets, two feet in length and 1½ inches in diameter, had fins, streamlined noses, and were made of alloy steel tubing and aluminum. They were fueled with three parts zinc dust and one part sulphur.

Dead Week Proposal Gets SAB Approval

A dead week will be observed before semester finals this semester, according to plans approved at the Student Activities board meeting yesterday.

The board okayed an AWS plan that all organizations temporarily disband meeting and activities the week preceding final week, and that there be no major time-consuming activities during the week.

The board also discussed Senior Week. Barbara Ericson, BA Sr, and president of Mortar Board, explained that Blue Key and Mortar Board will be in charge of selling Alumni association memberships and senior badges during the week, February 24 to March 1.

A tentative schedule has been set up for Senior Week. This includes a dinner in the Student Union February 25 and a special section at the K-State-Missouri basketball game March 1. Senior badges will be needed to enter the special section.

The senior class is receiving 50 cents from each cap and gown rented which will pay for the senior gift.

Religious Emphasis Shifts Toward Quaker Minister

Dr. Cecil E. Hinshaw, Quaker minister, will give the second of his seminar talks on "Racial Toleration versus Brotherhood" at 3 p.m. today in room 208 of the Student Union as part of Religious Emphasis Week.

A faculty forum, headed by Dr. Earle Davis, head of the English department, will be at 4 p.m. today in All-Faith chapel. The forum, sponsored specifically for the faculty, will discuss "Faculty Freedom and Sacred Scripture." Those on the panel will be Dr. Webster Sill, Dr. Hinshaw, Father Gerald Van Ackeren, and the Rev. Howard Wilson.

The gospel of St. John will be discussed by the Rev. Roy Turner, Episcopal chaplain at K-State, at 4 p.m. in Danforth chapel.

A second seminar, "The Book of Mormon," will be given at 7 p.m. in the All-Faith chapel, by Evan A. Fry, Mormon radio minister.

Mr. Fry's minsterial work began with his ordination as a Deacon of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter Day Saints in 1921. He became an Elder in 1930, and a High Priest in 1936.

"Religion and T. S. Elliot" will be the subject of a book review to be given by Dr. Davis. The review will be at 8 p.m. in the Student Union browsing library.

The daily skeptics' hour was at 11 a.m. today in the main lounge of the Student Union. Guest speakers are available for discussions and conferences this week.

Dr. Lafene Reports Standing Room Only

"Standing room only" was the word at Student Health yesterday morning. "The many students who were sick over the weekend, apparently value their social life over their health, and, consequently came here twice as sick Monday morning," said Dr. B. W. Lafene, director of Student Health.

The influenza vaccine center has been set up again in the Student Union, after a new supply was received this week.

Young, Rogerson Answer Attack; Students Report Brandy Doomed

To the Editor:

I AM GENUINELY SORRY that my alleged "view of India" has hurt the feelings of an Indian student at our school. I am also bewildered by a good deal of what was said ostensibly in reply to me. But I limit myself to the following points:

1. I have been teaching 19th century American writers, term after term and with some zeal, for the past ten years, and doubt that I can be accused of thinking it is wrong to like them.

2. I did not tell my interviewer that I think Indian students backward, but that I think the Indian educational system (which is really British, in origin, and puts great emphasis on memorizing things) backward. I did say that the students are rebellious, and am interested to learn that it is a crime for young people to rebel against things they feel to be wrong.

3. I am deeply indebted to Miss Anita Grimm for the information that the country I visited so extensively has an ancient civilization, and wish to thank her for it.

Philip Young, associate professor of English

Dear Editor:

IN FRIDAY'S COLLEGIAN two of your readers attack Prof. Philip Young for some views on Indian education ascribed to him in an article published two days earlier. It may soothe them to learn that when the article first appeared, and I brought the paper into our office and showed it to Mr. Young, he commented that most of it was accurate and well done, but that he had not described Indian students as "backward," and he regretted the impression that this remark would be sure to make. Your correspondents had every right to resent the word, but it would have been charitable of them at least to consider whether, even with the Collegian, they can afford to believe everything they read in the papers.

WHAT MR. YOUNG had really said was that the Indian educational system itself, as a piece of intellectual machinery, is pretty largely based on 19th century British conceptions, and in this sense is behind the times, or "backward." Even if one disagrees with this judgment, there is no point in assuming that it is intended to be unfriendly or insulting; and certainly it has nothing to do with the abilities of teachers and students. The attack on Mr. Young is actually quite unjustified.

Brewster Rogerson, associate

(Editor's note—Professor Young's comment was, "They (Indian students) are formal in class and, by our standards, very backward. Our reporter was there—where were you, Professor Rogerson?)

YESTERDAY CAMPUS PATROLMEN took a positive step in the enforcement of law and order. In the past burglars, vandals, and sex maniacs have performed their acts almost unnoticed by the wary officers. But no longer will this type of thing be allowed to continue, for they have decided that the next offender is to be shot. We deeply regret that the selected victim, who is to be the martyr of law enforcement at Kansas State college, is Brandy, beloved dog of the campus.

CRIMES OF THE SENTENCED include the affection for donuts in the Union, an occasional stroll through the Library or a classroom, and a friendly greeting for everyone he meets. This criminal has made the mistake of attaching himself to all whom he greets, even those in blue uniforms, and having a general love of life. We wonder if the brave patrolman who squeezes the trigger on this helpless offender will first ask him to sit up or roll over.

Ailing, Flu-Ridden Scholars Hark:

With Student Health crowded, an immunization point being operated in the Union, and respiratory infection sneaking across the campus striking everyone in its path, it is time to take a look at some of the "wise" students attending this institution of higher learning.

For instance, a few days ago Sherman Clancy Clouderville, Bac Jr, dragged himself into the reception room at Student Health, supported his full 6-3, 210-pound, germ-ridden frame on the desk, looked up with anguish-laden eyes, and squeaked, "Could you give me a little medicine? I have a slight cold."

The Student Health nurse, having a keen eye for diseased scholars, immediately stuck a thermometer in Sherm's mouth and said, "Looks like we had better put you to bed."

"No, No," shreiked Sherm, sputtering the thermometer along with a few million germs into the air. By the time the nurse had fought her way through the dense fog, Sherm was gone. It seems that he was determined not to spend the night in Student Health, a fate he considered worse than death.

By this time Sherm was weary so he decided to snuffle over to the Student Union for a hot cup to revivify his sunken spirits. As he entered the east door of the Union, he spotted the immunization station in the main lobby. His face paled to a waffley white, his whole body trembled, and he crept furtively down the stairs, through the dive and the games area, up the stairs, and into the state room.

He breathed a sigh of relief as he saw a group of his friends at a table in the corner. He threaded his way through the maze of tables and chairs (coughing now and then—spreading microscopic particles thither and anon) until he reached his friends' table and collapsed into a chair. A sickening silence crept over the group. All eyes were directed at Sherm—at his runny, red nostrils—at his beady, bloodshot eyes—at his pale, papery skin. Each of his friends jerked out a handkerchief, held it over his nose, and departed—leaving Sherm alone—ailing, friendless, and medicineless.

Two days later Sherm dragged himself into the reception room at Student Health, supported his full 6-3, 210-pound, germ-ridden frame on the desk, looked up with anguish-laden eyes, and squeaked, "Could you give me a little medicine? I have a cold."

The nurse, by now wary of frightened flu-carriers, said, "Sit right down, I'll call the doctor."

In a few minutes the doctor arrived, took one look at Sherm, and said, "We have a bed for you, it's too bad you didn't come in sooner; you could have been out by now."

Sherm breathed one submissive sigh and mumbled, "I guess I should have, but I've been pretty busy lately, Doc."

North Korean Reds Refuse to Return Airliner; May Use Occupants for Political Bargaining

Compiled from United Press
By CHAS. H. SCHREIBER

Panmunjom, Korea — Communist North Korea today rejected a United Nations demand for return of a hijacked South Korean airliner. It seemed certain the Reds planned to use the 34 persons aboard as blackmail for recognition of the Red regime.

Two Americans and two Germans were aboard the plane which disappeared into North Korea Sunday.

Top ROK government officials met to determine their next move. However, foreign ministry officials declared there can be "no direct negotiations between North and South Korea."

U.S. Navy Capt. George W. Kehl presented the U.N. command demand for return of the plane at a meeting of the Joint U.N.-Communist Secretariat here in the neutral zone dividing the two segments of Korea.

North Korean Col. Kim Choon Kyung bluntly rejected it.

Kim claimed the two-engined DC-3 of the Korean National airlines entered North Korea "voluntarily" in a "righteous action to escape the war policy of the American imperialists and the puppet Syngman Rhee clique."

Therefore, he said, return of the aircraft was not a matter for the military armistice commission to discuss and it should be taken care of in "direct" negotiations between the South and North Korean governments.

Pancake Flippers Race

Olney, England — Defending champion Sandra Sibley, 19, dashed from the Olney market place to the church door in one minute 10.8 seconds today to set England's challenge time in the great international Shrove Tuesday Pancake race against the American girls of Liberal, Kans.

The time was 2.8 seconds slower than Sandra's winning time last year and Olney's anxious townspeople feared it would be too slow to beat the Liberal pancake flippers who compete against Olney in the annual event.

In eight years, each town has won four times.

Each race is run at noon local time, and because of the time differential Olney had to wait six hours before the Liberal race was run and the final result known.

Olney and Liberal are tied 4-4 in the current series. Mrs. Pauline Montana, the American favorite, was confidently expected to put Liberal ahead when the final results are known.

Wildcats To Have Track Meet With Emporia State, Omaha

K-State's track squad will entertain Emporia State and Omaha university tonight at 7:30 in Ahearn field house in its second home indoor meet of the season.

Cat Coach Ward Haylett will shuffle event assignments because of illness, injury and needed strength in various events. Gene O'Connor, senior hurdler and team captain, is listed as a questionable performer because of a hip injury received during the Saturday night triangular.

The varsity and Field House record-holding mile relay team will also be altered in an attempt to put more emphasis on the half mile. Larry French will compete in the 880-yard run instead of running his usual leg on the mile relay team. Chuck Burgat will replace French and team with Dave Burton, Jim Vader, and DeLoss Dodds on the relay unit.

Coach Haylett also said that he would run Duane Holman in the mile run instead of his usual two-mile assignment. Tom Rodda will be scratched from the mile run because of illness.

Emporia State's Hornets recently defeated Omaha University in a dual meet, sweeping all events except the hurdles. The Hornet's strength will be in the pole vault, half mile, broad jump, 60-yard dash, and the mile run.

Paul Whitley, Emporia distance runner, won the mile run in the Omaga meet with a time of 4:24.7. It is also reported that one Omaha trackster is pole vaulting at better than 13-4.

The Hornets will also enter Rex Ressler, and Duane McIntyre in the sprint events. McIntyre will also participate in the shot put.

Cats First by AP; Cincy Close Behind

K-State retained its first place rating in the weekly Associated Press basketball poll although it was hard pressed by Cincinnati university.

The Cats received 980 points while Cincinnati totaled 971. The Bearcats got 37 first place ballots compared to 33 for K-State, but it was not enough to overtake the Big Eight team.

Voting is based on a 10-9-8 system. A first place vote counts 10 points, second place 9 points, third place 8 points, etc.

KU Humbles Inept Mizzou

Kansas university defeated the Missouri university basketball team, 84-69, at Lawrence last night to keep a tight hold on second place in the Big Eight conference.

The Jayhawks ran their conference record to 6-2 in downing the Tigers who are in fifth place with a 3-5 mark.

The game was not as close as the score indicates as KU, paced by a 34-point effort by Wilt Chamberlain, thoroughly outclassed Missouri in the first half and posted a 43-17 halftime lead.

The Tigers were able to pull back to a respectable deficit in the second half as Chamberlain, forced to ease off defensively because of four fouls, let the Tigers in for easy crip shots.

The referees had a very busy night as 59 fouls were called in the game, 30 on Kansas and 29 on Missouri.

A&S Plan Tour For HS Guests

Kansas high school students have been invited to attend Arts and Sciences Day this Saturday, according to Bill Schicktanz, GA Sr, president of Arts and Sciences council. This year will be the last in which the Science groups will be separated from the Arts.

On the day's program will be a buffeteria in the Student Union at noon, and guided tours through the Field House, journalism building, biological science building, chemistry building, and Eisenhower hall throughout the afternoon. Special exhibits are planned by most of the 22 departments in the School of Arts and Sciences.

Committee members for the February 22 event are Karen Peterson, MGS Sr, and Betty Britton, EEd Jr, buffeteria; Winkie Killian, Art Jr, and Marcia Boyd, TJ Sr, advertising; Schicktanz, Miss Britton, and Annette Galyon, BMT Jr, tours; and Annette Tighe, PEW Jr, correspondence.

First K-State Senior Week To Start with Union Buffet

A buffet banquet for seniors in the Student Union main ballroom, will lead off activities for K-State's first Senior Week at 6 p.m. Monday. Tickets for the dinner will be on sale for $1.50 today, tomorrow and Friday in the Student Union and Anderson hall, according to Barbara Ericson, BA Sr, vice-president of the senior class.

L. W. Newcomer, K-State alumnus and chief of the Kansas Turnpike authority will speak at the banquet. Newcomer is a member of the State Board of Engineering examiners and was selected for Who's Who in Engineering in 1954.

Senior badges will be given free to any senior who buys an annual or lifetime membership to the K-State Alumni association. The annual membership is $3 and a lifetime membership costs $50.

All other seniors may buy their badges from members of Blue Key and Mortar Board in the Union and Anderson hall for 50 cents starting Thursday and continuing through next week, Miss Ericson said.

Membership in the Alumni association is being stressed this year and Miss Ericson said, "We feel that class spirit, senior tradition, and attitude toward Kansas State tie in with a graduate's membership in the Alumni association.

Coffee and doughnuts will be sold to seniors in the Union Dive every afternoon February 24-28.

All seniors who attend the K-State-Missouri basketball game, may sit in the reserved section north of the Purple Pepsters cheering section, providing they have senior badges for identification. The section will have its own cheerleaders, yells, and pennants.

Traffic Bills May Injure Job Chances

K-State grads or students leaving Manhattan with unpaid traffic violations may be ruining their chances for employment.

The Manhattan Police department is frequently asked to supply employers with information on violations and police arrests. So far this month the police department has received 90 requests for police checks on people applying for employment.

"Usually," says Police Clerk Erma P. Sebring, "We don't bother with students who have one or two unpaid overtime parking violations. But when a student has three we are required to issue a warrant for his arrest. If he leaves town without paying it goes down on our records, and this information is forwarded to any inquiring employers."

Mrs. Sebring cited the case of a foreign student who had left the country without paying 40 parking tickets that were issued to him. She said because of this he would not be permitted to reenter the United States.

"We realize," Mrs. Sebring said, "that students sometimes need to blow off steam. We tend to overlook the student who has one intoxication violation against him. But we cannot overlook the consistent violators. If he is caught more than once, then there is nothing for us to do but give an inquiring employer all the information about the arrest."

Mrs. Sebring said all police violations concerning a student are sent to the Dean of Students office. The dean may take further disciplinary measures if he desires.

Traffic Tickets Total 3,327; Students Fail to Use Decals

A total of 3,327 traffic tickets have been given out since last September, according to Roger Ward, K-State Traffic and Security officer.

"The biggest offenders are those who don't display the identification and parking permit decals on their car windows," Ward said. "These people buy these decals for the sole purpose of being able to drive and park their cars on campus, and they won't even use them," he said.

"Many students believe that we can't identify them if they don't have a sticker on the window. They neglect to realize that we have the license number and all we have to do is check with Topeka to see who the car belongs to. It takes a little longer, but we find out just the same," Ward said.

Ten of the most frequent violations are no parking permits, no identification displayed, parking in reserved area, parking in prohibited area, parking overtime, blocking other vehicles when parked, parking in fire lane, speeding, reckless driving, and running stop signs. Students caught speeding, reckless driving or running stop signs are taken to Manhattan court.

An average of 554 tickets are given each month. At this time last year, approximately five thousand tickets were distributed to violators.

About 1,250 of the total tickets issued this year were given for not having identification displayed. "If these people would obey just the first rule and display their identification tags, they could cut the ticket problem almost in half," said Ward.

Married Men Ratio Increases on Campus

One of every three male students enrolled at K-State this semester is married, according to statistics released from the registrar's office.

In a male enrollment of 4,796 for this semester, 1,539, or 32.1 per cent, are married. This figure represents an increase of 25 married men over last semester despite a drop of 300 in total enrollment.

In the fall of 1954, only one male student in five was married —or 800 out of 3,949. Since '54 the male enrollment has increased only 20 per cent while the married enrollment has increased 100 per cent.

To make a short story even shorter, there are 847 more men enrolled this semester than for the fall semester of 1954. Of this 847 increase, 739 are married.

Local Guard May Be Cut After July 1

Reduction in the Manhattan National Guard unit is unlikely before July 1, 1958, according to Capt. J. W. Conkwright of the local Guard unit.

Recent Pentagon proposals to trim the nation's National Guard from 400,000 to 360,000 have met opposition from Kansas Governor George Docking and the Guard's Adj. Gen. Joe Nickell.

"I don't know the actual number of student members, but approximately 60 K-Staters train with us, coming from Guard units all over the state. They are assigned to the 110th ordinance and the 891st engineers' battalion (the two Manhattan units) while attending school," Capt. Conkwright commented.

"Actually, it's really too early to tell. If there is any reduction in strength it will be as of July 1, 1958. The possibility of a slight reduction here is uncertain now, however," he said.

Nickell has asserted that it costs less to maintain the Guard than regular army units. He has also said the Guard is necessary to take up any slack resulting from a reduction in the Armed Forces.

Campus Observes 'Religion Emphasis'

"Jewish Literature" will be the seminar topic of Rabbi Meyer tonight at 7 p.m. in the All-Faith chapel. The seminar is part of Religious Emphasis Week.

Dr. Cecil E. Hinshaw, Quaker minister, will give the third of his seminar talks on "Racial Toleration vs. Brotherhood" at 3 p.m. in room 208 of the Union.

Dr. Samuel George, minister of the First Presbyterian church, will discuss the Acts of the Apostle at 4 p.m. in the All-Faith chapel.

Dr. Neal Carmen will head a discussion of "The Divine Comedy" at 8 p.m. in the browsing library of the Student Union.

The daily skeptics' hour was at 11 p.m. this morning in the main lounge of the Student Union. Guest speakers are available during the week for discussions and personal conferences.

"THE BOOK OF MORMON" was explained in part by Evan A. Fry, a radio minister, in a talk at the All-Faith Memorial chapel last night.

Campus Week Which Emphasizes Religion Should Include Program for All Religions

WE'RE EMPHASING RELIGION this week. No specific religion, you understand. K-State's Religious Co-ordinating council has worked long and hard (with the approximately $500 which it received in appropriations from the student activity fee for this year) to present an emphatically religious program.

And just for the record, to date we've emphasized religion as seen through the eyes of the Roman Catholics, the Quakers, the Episcopalians, the Mormons, and the Presbyterians.

THROUGHOUT THE WEEK, speakers from the Jewish and Christian churches will join those mentioned to help K-Staters in emphasizing religion. In carrying out the theme for the week, a majority of these named will speak in terms of religion and literature.

We don't doubt the qualifications of a single speaker on the agenda. We want to emphasize our own belief in these men as intelligent, capable speakers.

But we feel the week might be more educational.

THE COUNCIL has done a fine job of educating a primarily Christian campus on Christian religion and literature. It's even gone so far as to include Jewish religion and literature.

But somewhere, 'way back when, we got the idea that there were other religions besides these two. Not that we're condemning them certainly. It's just that we would like to know a lot more about religions other than our own, and since an educational institution should emphasize educational programs, couldn't we combine the two ideas?

WHILE WE DON'T want to enter into the squabble of whether or not any of the countries are "backward" or not, we'd still like to hear more about religions which are more foreign to us. We'd like to know what the Moslem, or the Hindu, or the Buddhist, or a member of one of the many other religions of the world has to say about literature. How does his literature—and, in turn, his religion—differ from the Christian, or the Jewish ones, with which we have become more familiar after constant contact?

WE WOULD even go so far as to suggest that many of these religions could be discussed, either individually or by forums, by students on our own campus who have traveled many miles to attend Kansas State. And we don't believe there is any limit to the understanding and good will that could be obtained in all quarters by the exchange of such educational and broadening information.

MR. WEBSTER, whom we find invaluable on such questions, defines religion as "any system of faith, doctrine, and worship; as, the Christian religion; the religions of the Orient." The emphasis on any is ours—but we'd like to suggest to the council that in emphasizing religion next year, it branch out and venture out in water just a little deeper. If we're to be an educational institution attempting to broaden the general knowledge of the student —why don't we at least offer him a more complete picture?

WHICH BRINGS TO MIND another interesting point: anyone ever notice the crosses in the All-Faith chapel? Ask a Jew, or a Hindu, or a Moslem why the symbols of the death of Jesus Christ are used in a building equally (?) theirs for worship services. We'd imagine they'd be more than broad-minded about the situation, but let's quit kidding each other and call a spade a spade. For this Christian and Jewish Emphasis Week, let's attend those meetings in the Christian chapel.—Sue Goss.

Witness Charges Airline-TV Deal 'Engineered;' Says Mamie's Relative Was Chief Draftsman

By CHAS. H. SCHREIBER

Washington—House investigators today summoned a key witness who claims a relative of Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower "engineered" the government's award of a Miami television channel to National Airlines.

The witness, A. Frank Katzentine of Miami, also has charged in an affidavit that FCC commissioner Richard A. Mack "pledged" his vote in advance of the award to the airline. Mack has been accused of accepting $2,650 from Thurman A. Whiteside, a lawyer representing the airline in the contested TV case before the Federal Communications Commission.

Katzentine faced some searching questions at 9 a.m. by the House Subcommittee on Legislative Oversight about his own conduct as an unsuccessful applicant in the hotly disputed contest over Miami's channel 10.

Attorney Paul R. Scott, a director of National Airlines, testified yesterday Katzentine was "using blackmail" to get Whiteside to withdraw from the case. Scott also said Sen. Spessard L. Holland (D-Fla.) had spoken to Mack on Katzentine's behalf. Holland had no immediate comment on Scott's statement.

Scott said further that he had heard "rumors" Sens. George A. Smathers (D-Fla.), A. A. Mike Monroney (D-Okla.) and Warren G. Magnuson (D-Wash.) approached FCC commissioners in the case.

In the affidavit, dated February 15, 1958, Katzentine said a trusted friend told him Gordon Moore, husband of Mrs. Eisenhower's sister, "was engineering this application for National Airlines and that they were sure to win."

Missing Plane Found

Naples — A U.S. Air Force plane missing since Saturday midnight with 16 servicemen crashed on the slopes of Mount Vesuvius, the Air Force announced today. There was no sign of life.

An Air Force spokesman said the twin-engined C-47 transport crashed on the northern slope of the towering volcano apparently within minutes after it took off from Naples for Athens. Bad weather hid it from sight until today.

The plane was en route to Athens from Ramstein, Germany, and touched down on Naples to refuel. It took on a U.S. sailor as a hitchhiker and disappeared into the night.

Planes and ships of four nations carried out a search for four days throughout the rugged mountains of southern Italy and the sea off Italy's eastern coast but heavy fog and low hanging clouds masked the plane until today.

Korea Ready To Forget

Seoul — President Syngman Rhee of the Republic of Korea, who fought the Japanese for 40 years, appeared today to be mellowing toward his old enemy.

In an exclusive interview held in the Presidential palace here less than two weeks before Japan and Korea are to resume negotiations looking toward establishment of normal relations between the two countries, Rhee said:

"Korea is ready to forgive and forget the past, if only we have the chance.

"I wish to say that Japanese Prime Minister Kishi has shown recent willingness to be more reasonable in his dealings with Korea. For five years the Japanese persisted in claiming that 83 per cent of Korean property was still theirs, and supported the statement of a Japanese official that Korean independence was a violation of international law and that the 40-year Japanese occupation was beneficial to the Korean people," he said.

"We did everything we could to persuade them to withdraw these claims and threats, but for five years Japan did not listen. Finally Premier Kishi withdrew them, and just recently we released 300 Japanese fishermen who had violated our peace line."

This line, he said, was drawn "for the sake of peaceful relations between Korea and Japan." The line originally was proclaimed by General Douglas MacArthur.

Daily Emerald Editor Attacks Women's Fashions, Says Women Must Unite in Battle Against Sack

By Judie Ross

From the Oregon Daily Emerald comes this editorial . . . . "From our casual and uninformed observations, the alarming trend in dress manufacture seems to be slipping rapidly toward the mysterious. That is, the close-fitting garments are apparently declining in deference to the sack-like efforts now glutting the fashion market.

"We've looked forward to our college years when we expected to see a daily parade of females arrayed in flattering color patterns and decked out in pleasing styles. For despite the rigors imposed by dormitory and sorority life, women in college can be at their loveliest.

"Generally we think we'd find agreement on this opinion, though dissenting houseboys might offer vivid pictures of these same beauties during non-man hours.

"Let this then be an appeal to the proletariat that could be college women. Unite in the battle against the oppressive sack, cast off the shackles of the burlap bag, and denounce the figure-wrapper . . . we like you as you are. Why distort?"

Colorado State university may have the answer to the problem, "What can we do to make exchange functions more fun?" From the Rocky Mountain Collegian, CSU's paper, comes the following . . . .

"Shirts and skirts but which one flirts? This will be the question to be decided Sunday afternoon as the Kappa Alpha Theta sorority and the Alpha Gamma Rho fraternity function at the Theta house. The boys will be dressed as girls and the girls as boys for the afternoon of fun. In this turnabout function there will be a box lunch social in which the boys will bring an empty box and the girls will supply the food. The girls are to make the passes, but will they?" One has to admit that it is at least different.

Oklahoma university, another institution of "higher learning" has something new on its educational program. The forgotten art of "how to erect an Indian tipi" is featured this month in a series of color slides being shown at the campus museum.

The slides show that the Flathead Indians use only four base poles, fewer than most tribes and that the job of erecting the tipi is strictly women's work, according to the Oklahoma Daily.

The real trick of the thing seems to be in pitching the tipi with only four poles, extra stick props and a blanket.

SGA Committees Open Fifteen Positions

Fifteen positions on Student Governing association committees are now open, according to committee chairmen. The Freshman Orientation committee has seven openings; Big Eight SGA conference has four; and Campus industries has four.

Applications will be accepted through Friday at the SGA office in the Union activities center.

Students working on the Orientation committee will plan the program for incoming freshmen next fall. The Big Eight Conference committee will have charge of the Christmas vacation meeting in Kansas City—K-State will be host this year. Campus industries is trying to raise the minimum wage of student help.

Graduate Students

Graduate students who will be candidates for MS or PhD degrees at the June, 1958 commencement are to meet Thursday, February 27, at 5 p.m. in the Memorial chapel, according to Dr. Harold Howe, dean of the Graduate school.

Discussion will be on the requirements for receiving these degrees. This includes the thesis or report, oral examination, academic costume, and commencement attendance.

•

History Professor's Talk

James C. Carey, professor of history, will address a dinner meeting of the Central Missouri State college faculty at Warrensburg, Mo., today.

His talk is entitled, "Where Are the Professors Who Profess a Profession?"

Angel Flight

Twenty-five women in Angel Flight are scheduled to perform between halves of the K-State-Missouri basketball game March 1st in the Field House.

Angel Flight will march in six intricate drill routines. In addition, the girls will perform a specialty number, which will be a marching maneuver similar to the "bunny hop."

Charlene Strah, TJ Jr, will be the drill leader. This appearance will be the third public performance of Angel Flight this school year. Last fall they marched at the AFROTC review and in the Homecoming parade.

The female drill team will be accompanied by the Air Force ROTC band and the K-State band.

Brandy, Phi Delt Mascot, Released from 'Dog Jail'

Brandy, Phi Delta Theta's mascot, and visitor to the Union and other campus buildings, is no longer being confined to the Veterinary hospital, according to Ed John, VM Jr.

The dog was picked up Monday by the campus patrol after it received complaints that he was disturbing some girls in front of Anderson hall.

Traffic and Security Officer Roger Ward thinks Brandy was just trying to be friendly but there is a city ordinance which says dogs must either be fenced in or held on leash. Ward also said that Brandy's presence in the Union state room is against food and health laws and this could lead to trouble if he were spotted there by a food inspector.

John said when the dog was picked up, one of the patrolmen told him they were going to shoot him. However, an agreement was worked out with the patrol.

The campus patrol will leave Brandy alone as long as he doesn't bother anybody. If the dog becomes a nuisance the patrol will contact the fraternity to come over and pick him up. John said the fraternity would not tie him up, but they will try to keep Brandy in the house.

Esther Valdes Gets Award For Brotherhood at College

Esther Valdes, ML Jr, received the fourth annual B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation Brotherhood award, at the Religious Co-ordinating Council luncheon today. The presentation was made by Rabbi Myron Myer of St. Louis, Mo.

The award is sponsored by the Women's Grand Lodge of the Kansas Association of B'nai B'rith. It is to recognize the student who has contributed most during the school year to the development of understanding and good will among the several religious, cultural, and ethnic groups which comprise the campus community.

Charles A. Jacot, assistant dean of students said, "Over a period of three years Miss Valdes has demonstrated leadership and willingness to give personal service to a variety of campus organizations concerned with the development of international understanding, brotherhood, and religious tolerance."

She is a member of the Canterbury club, Episcopal student group, and was the club representative to the Religious Co-ordinating council. The council is made up of representatives from all religious organizations at K-State.

Miss Valdes is president and past secretary of Club Cervantes, and was a member of the Pan American Day committee.

She is a past vice-president and past secretary of Cosmopolitan Club. She was also on the club's Feast of Nations committee.

"This is the third year Miss Valdes has been nominated for the award, and throughout the three years her name has been among the very top on the list," said William C. Tremmel, director of Religious Activities.

ESTHER VALDES, ML Jr, won the B'nai B'rith Brotherhood award for her part in linking cultural, religious, and ethnic groups at K-State. The award was made at noon today in the Union.

K-Staters Give $450; Fund Drive Continues

Contributions to the United Fund drive on campus last week amounted to approximately $450, according to Mary Beth Brooks, HEJ Soph, publicity chairman of the Student Governing Association Funds and Drives committee.

"The drive will be continued through Friday, since we feel that students simply haven't taken the full responsibility necessary in supporting it. For the large numbers of students we have at K-State, the amount given is awfully small," commented Kay Eplee, BA Jr, committee chairman.

"We've decided to discontinue the booths in Anderson hall, since they haven't proved successful. However, we will have a booth in the Union, and two girls will go to the organized houses to pick up any more contributions there," Miss Eplee said.

A competitive basis for the drive wasn't used this year, according to the committee chairman, since it was decided that donations should be on an individual basis rather than by organized houses. "Each independent student received an envelope for contributions, and we'd like to have those in as soon as possible," she commented.

Russian's Religion Subject of Review

"Religion and Dostoevski" will be the subject of a book review to be given by Melvin Seiden, assistant professor of English, tonight at 8 in the Union browsing library.

Professor Seiden's talk will be based on a chapter from the "Brothers Karamazov," "The Inquisitor." His review is being presented in connection with Religious Emphasis Week.

Dr. Emerson Abendroth, Director of Westminster foundation and pastor to Presbyterian students at K-State, will discuss "The Letters of St. Paul," from the New Testament, at 4 p.m. today in the All-Faith chapel.

Dr. Abendroth received his Bachelor of Divinity degree at McCormick Theological Seminary, and his Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy degrees at Columbia university.

The fourth seminar talk by Dr. Cecil Hinshaw, Quaker minister, on "Racial Toleration versus Brotherhood" will be given at 3 p.m. in room 208 of the Union.

The B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation Brotherhood award was presented to Esther Valdes, ML Jr, by Rabbi Myron Meyer from St. Joseph, Mo., at a luncheon in the Union.

The fourth and final Skeptics' hour will be at 11 a.m. tomorrow in the Union main lounge. Guest speakers will be available for discussions and personal conferences. Coffee will be served.

KS Music Department Reports Violins Gone

The third theft on campus in two weeks was reported yesterday when three violins were found missing from the Music department's instrument room in the College auditorium.

Topeka police reported that a man tried to pawn one of the violins in a Topeka pawnshop but when asked for identification he ran away, leaving the instrument in the shop.

The man was described as white, 26 to 28 years old, about 5-8, 155 pounds, sandy haired, clean-cut and neat, and wearing a light tan car coat. He had told the pawn broker he had some more "stuff" to sell.

The two violins not recovered are in cases stamped KSC 190 and KSC 95. Anyone knowing anything about them is urged to contact the campus police.

The violins are owned by the Music department but were checked out to students. No auditorium doors or locks were forced or broken and the instruments are thought to have been lying out in the open.

Head of the Music department, Luther Leavengood, said, "They were worth a total of about $75—nothing else is missing."

"I don't think there is any connection between the missing violins and the earlier thefts," campus patrolman Roger Ward commented.

Dean Weber Will Receive Honorarium

Dean Arthur D. Weber of the School of Agriculture will be honored at a faculty lectureship dinner, next Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. in the Student Union. The subject of his address is "Calories, Colleges, and Culture."

President James A. McCain will introduce Dean Weber and present a $100 honorarium to him from the endowment fund.

Two members of the graduate faculty receive this award each year and are chosen by secret ballot by the graduate faculty. Dr. Howard T. Hill, professor of Speech, received the honor first semester. This is the third year the awards have been given.

A Cappella Choir Plans 10 Concerts

K-State's A Cappella choir will make 10 concert appearances during its annual spring tour March 10-13, according to William R. Fischer, director of the K-State choral program.

The 69-member choir will open its tour with a concert March 10 at the Clay Center high school and then continue on to Beloit, Mankato, Norton, Colby, Oakley, LaCrosse, Hoisington, Ellsworth, and Wichita.

Most of the concerts will be for high school audiences. This will be the 12th annual spring tour for the A Cappella choir.

Gum Chewers, Litter Bugs Are Cause of Union Mess

WE'VE LISTENED to gripes from all quarters about the table tops at the Student Union—comments berating employees for failing to keep the shiny surfaces a gleamingly pure, unleadened top all day long. "Nothing worse than a dirty table top," Staters complain.

Ah, but we happened across a secret failing of the gum-chewing segments of our campus—that of depositing said gum underneath the nearest surface (shiny or not!), i.e. the state room counter.

AND FOLLOWING THROUGH our little research project, we went to a logic professor and broached this problem: if one finds foreign objects, such as leftover coffee, empty cups, used Coke containers, and other elements of the eating process, on the table at which one sits, what can one assume?

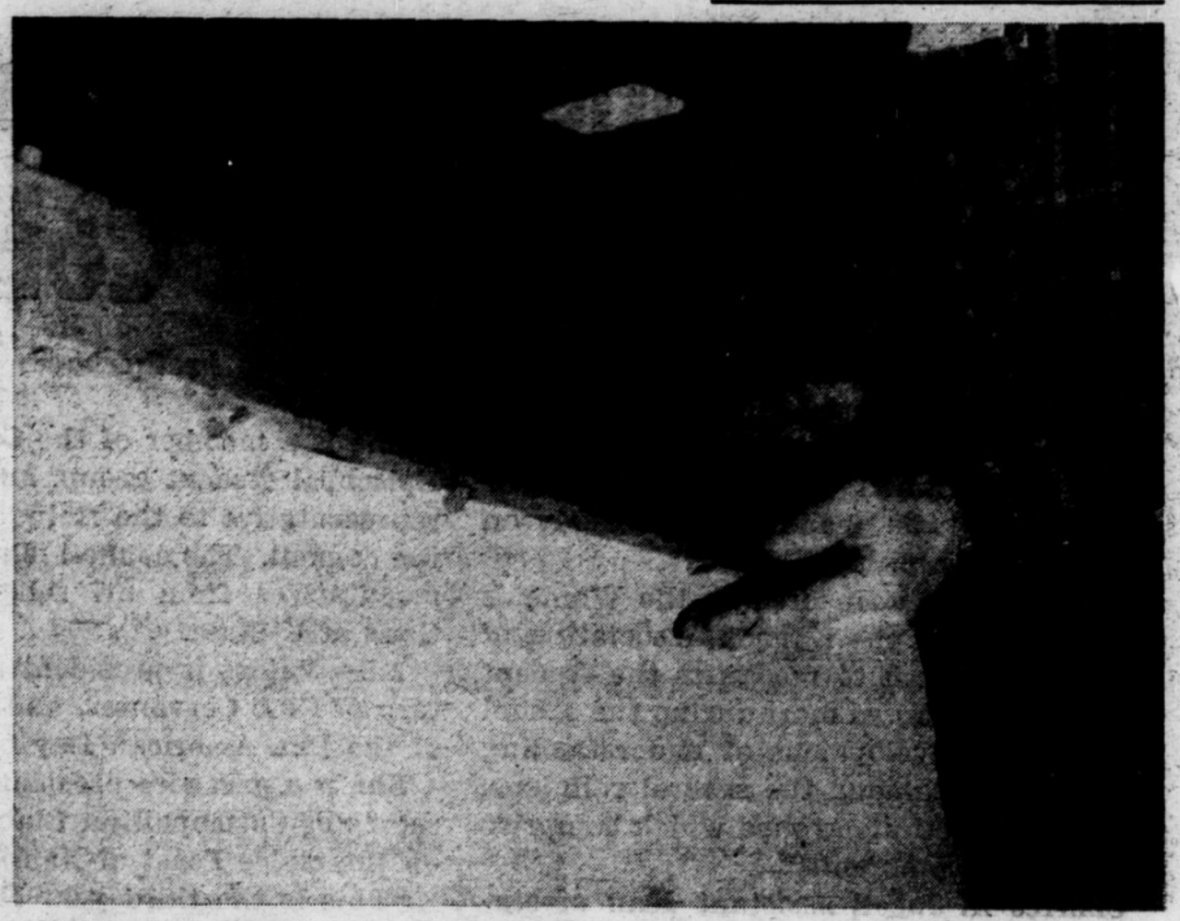

Being brilliant as we've found most logic profs to be, he boldly suggested that someone of the homo sapien type had probably come, seen, and conquered the table—leaving the ruins of the battle equipment there on the field for us.

SINCE WE ARE a peace-loving campus, however, we'd like to broach a suggestion: why don't we play grovernment and rehabilitate before we pull troops out of the area? Every good army has a mess sergeant—and for the sake of the reserve guard, life might be pleasanter if we'd make use of it.

Anyhow—if you're not doing your part, don't knock the guys who are at least trying!

AND IN CLEANING UP a few other details, we'd like to remind students that this is the last of the United Fund drive, and we encourage you to do your part if you haven't already done so. This is one opportunity for K-Staters to do good the world around, and one which shouldn't be passed up.

"ALWAYS ROOM FOR ONE MORE"—piece of gum, that is, under the counter in the Union's State room. But in view of the value of the Union, shouldn't it deserve better treatment than this?

Readers' Forum

Dear Editor:

I would like to go on record as being in accord with the spirit of Dr. Young's letter that appeared in the Collegian, February 18. Your editor's note (which failed to close quotations) at the end of Professor Rogerson's letter closed with " . . . where were you, Professor Rogerson?)"

Having been misquoted by a Collegian reporter, I feel that Dr. Rogerson's rebuttal is every bit as qualified as the report by your reporter. Many of us feel that freedom of the press involves some responsibility for accuracy.

O. Boyd Mathias, general studies instructor

(Editor's Note—If our reporters are as inaccurate as your letter infers, sir, then we can agree, "Dr. Rogerson's rebuttal is every bit as qualified as the report" which our reporter turned in. And, lastly, sir, we'd like you to go through each issue of the Collegian, checking each fact mentioned. While all of us feel that freedom of the press involves great responsibility for accuracy, we are willing to allow for an occasional Vanguard. In this case we are claiming an Explorer.)

Sudan Asks Security Council To Settle Border Dispute; Explosive Situation Involves Egypt-Sudan Border Areas

Compiled from United Press
By CHAS. H. SCHREIBER

Khartoum—The Sudan, abandoning hope that its border dispute with Egypt could be settled by local negotiation, decided early today to take its case to the U.N. Security Council.

At the same time, the government alerted army and police forces for possible emergency action. Premier Abdullah Khalil told the United Press the Sudan will use troops if necessary to drive Egyptian interlopers out of the disputed Halieb area.

Reports reaching Khartoum said Egypt is massing troops along the border in the vicinity of the two areas in dispute, creating a potentially explosive situation.

Foreign Minister Mohammed A. Mahgoub, whose efforts to negotiate a settlement ended in a deadlock last night, is scheduled to return to Khartoum from Cairo today. Khalil said, however, the Sudanese ambassador will remain in the Egyptian capital at least for the time being.

In Cairo, an Egyptian spokesman charged that Mahgroub, who talked yesterday and last night with President Gamal Abdel Nasser and Foreign Minister Mahmoud Fawzi, showed no real interest in a settlement.

"It is . . . obvious that the Sudan's fundamental purpose was to create confusion and provocation," he said.

Khalil, interviewed in his "White Palace" in Khartoum last night, emphasized that the Sudan is determined to defend its territory, no matter what the cost.

Rally Protests Hi-Jacking

Seoul—More than 50,000 persons jammed Seoul's Capitol plaza today to protest the Communist hijacking of a South Korean airliner and its 34 occupants.

The Korean Federation of Patriotic Organizations, a Nationalist group which sponsored the rally, sent messages to President Eisenhower, United Nations Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold, Republic of Korea President Syngman Rhee, West German President Konrad Adenauer, UN Commander Gen. George Decker and the International Red Cross.

Each of the messages appealed for action in recovering the plane and its passengers and crew, including two American pilots.

South Korean police said two former North Koreans suspected of carrying out the hijacking plot had written farewell messages before boarding the Korean National airlines DC-3 Sunday.

Police officials said Kim Kyung, Taegu clothing store operator, sent his customers a mimeographed letter expressing his appreciation for thier "good business relationships." They said Kim Soon Ki, 26, sent his brother a tell-tale telegram which said "Soon Ki destination aircraft incident."

Becks Sentenced Today

Seattle—Dave Beck, former president of the Teamsters union, will be sentenced in county court today for embezzling a $1,900 Cadillac from the union he headed.

His son, Dave Beck, Jr., will be sentenced at the same time for stealing $4,650, also in Cadillacs, from the Union.

Judge George H. Revelle is to convene his King County Superior court at 11:30 a.m. and the sentences are the first items on his calendar.

The two men were convicted in separate trials of selling automobiles owned by the union and pocketing the proceeds for their own use.

Their attorney, Charles S. Burdell, said both convictions will be appealed immediately to the State Supreme Court "and even higher if necessary."

Beck senior is scheduled to go to trial in Federal court at Tacoma, Wash., on May 5 on charges of evading federal income taxes.

Army Gesture Generous

Hong Kong—Red China's army is making another bid to improve relations with the civilian population.

The first step was to order army units to grow their own pork and vegetables.

The latest is an order under which virtually all private homes requisitioned from civilians will be returned. This decision came at the All-Army Barrack Control Work conference in Peiping.

The conference, according to the Communist New China News agency, "decided that excepting the Marine Defense units, Frontier Defense units, Anti-Aircraft units, Railway corps and the National Defense Engineering corps which really need private homes and could continue to rent and use them, all PLA (People Liberation Army) units should as of March this year, cease renting private houses they have already rented."

Coeds, Salesclerks Question Popularity of Cocktail Dress

By MARLENE SMITH

Is the cocktail dress replacing the formal in the K-State coed's wardrobe? Apparently the coeds and Manhattan salesclerks don't see eye to eye on this question; for the college women seem to lean toward the cocktail dresses, while the clerks think that they are only a temporary trend.

Last semester there were four important all-College dances. Of these, only the Arnold Air society ball was formal. Although the men wore either uniforms or tuxedoes, many coeds wore cocktail dresses instead of formals. Cocktail dresses were also worn to the Homecoming ball, the Stan Kenton dance, and the Snowball, all of which were semi-formal.

Loren Kottner, Union director, defined semi-formal attire as suits for the men and cocktail dresses or formals for the women. So the coeds can take their choice when it comes to the what to wear question.

When ten coeds were asked which type of dress they preferred for dances, each one chose the cocktail dress. Reasons given for this preference were, "they're easier to get around in," "they're so much more comfortable," "they're more practical and economical," and "they're easier to store." Some coeds thought that cocktail dresses offered more variety in material and style.

According to the Manhattan merchants, however, the coeds will leave their cocktail dresses and turn to formals as spring comes closer. One sales clerk said that she felt the interest in cocktail dresses was just a holiday trend and that many of the dresses sold as cocktail gowns were really just sheath dresses or ballerina formals.

One clerk gave this as the reason for his conviction that the coeds will wear more formals than cocktail dresses this spring. "Women simply will not be able to purchase cocktail dresses for spring. The manufacturers that have an extensive line of cocktail dresses for the holiday season make only one or two styles for the spring. They concentrate on formals."

"Our spring formals are different this year," said another clerk. "Both materials and styles have changed."

Taffeta, lace, and chiffon are the three most popular formal materials, but chiffon, which is easy to snag, is gradually being replaced by orlon organdy.

Lots of Little Ones Flank 'Library;' Resources Vast

If your girl asks you to meet her at "the Library," you probably take for granted that Farrell is the place in question.

But if you can't find her there, don't give up. The campus abounds with many smaller libraries, some of them unknown to a lot of students.

But Farrell still gets the big share of student "business." Over 275 books are checked out there each day, according to Richard Taylor, library instructor and head of the circulation department.

This number is greatly increased at the end of the semester, however, when term papers are due, and tests are coming up. Then the total often jumps to as high as 400 books a day.

Over 218,500 books are available in Farrell, the main library on the campus. In addition, according to W. F. Baehr, head librarian, there are several thousand journals and publications which aren't catalogued.

Class reserves, in the basement, houses all books required as outside reading by professors.

In continuations are over 300,000 unbound publications ranging from scientific journals to popular weeklies. Not limited to American publications, the department has magazines from many foreign countries.

K-State has had a library ever since the College was founded. First housed in the old Bluemont College building, located near where the dairy farm is now, the Library moved with the College to a new location, now known as the Farm Machinery hall, in 1875. At that point the selection of books was small, consisting of donations solicited from the East, mainly religious books and Greek and Latin classics.

In 1878 the present Anderson hall was being built. In 1879 the Library moved into the uncompleted building and occupied the corner now housing the Comptroller's office.

Fairchild hall became the home of the Library in 1894, and there it stayed until a library building was built in 1927.

The Library is now open to students over 14 hours a day Monday through Thursday, and 10 hours on Saturday. In the best interests of the students, evening hours during the week were recently extended to 10 p.m.

The campus abounds with lesser known libraries. Almost every department of every school can boast a small research library. The poultry department library consists of about 1,000 books, according to L. F. Payne, professor in poultry husbandry.

This library has such exclusive entries as a six-volume edition of every article on pultry published at K-State between 1905 and 1956. There are also cards on file for every article on poultry appearing in a technical journal in Farrell library, amounting to over 35,000 references.

The library also has a bibliography of every poultry thesis written in the United States since approximately 1896.

Thirty-one book editions were printed before 1850, and are considered quite valuable.

Two school libraries are kept in Seaton hall and Willard hall.

In Seaton is the Engineering reading room and the Architecture and Allied Arts library. The library houses over 5,000 books, and is used by architecture students, and those in painting, drawing, sculpture, and similar subjects.

The library has several very old and valuable books, one dating back to 1581, and thought to be block printed. The cover is of Moroccan leather and is still in very good shape. Printed in Italian, it has numerous detailed drawing of buildings.

In Willard hall is found the chemistry and physics library. Although no total has been taken of the number of physics books, it is known that there are about 3,800 chemistry books in the department. One whole room is devoted to bound volumes of technical journals in many languages and from foreign lands.

The Student Union library is the only one on campus devoted to fiction. Here can be found around 125 books of poetry, short stories, plays, and anthologies.

A unique library is found in Anderson hall where Placement center is located.

This library consists of pamphlets from more than 325 private firms and 53 governmental agencies. The pamphlets are filed in individual envelopes and placed in pigeonholes along two walls. The companies recruit on campus regularly. Pamphlets from companies which do not do regular recruitings are available in filing cabinets.

Survey Results Help Lengthen Library Hours

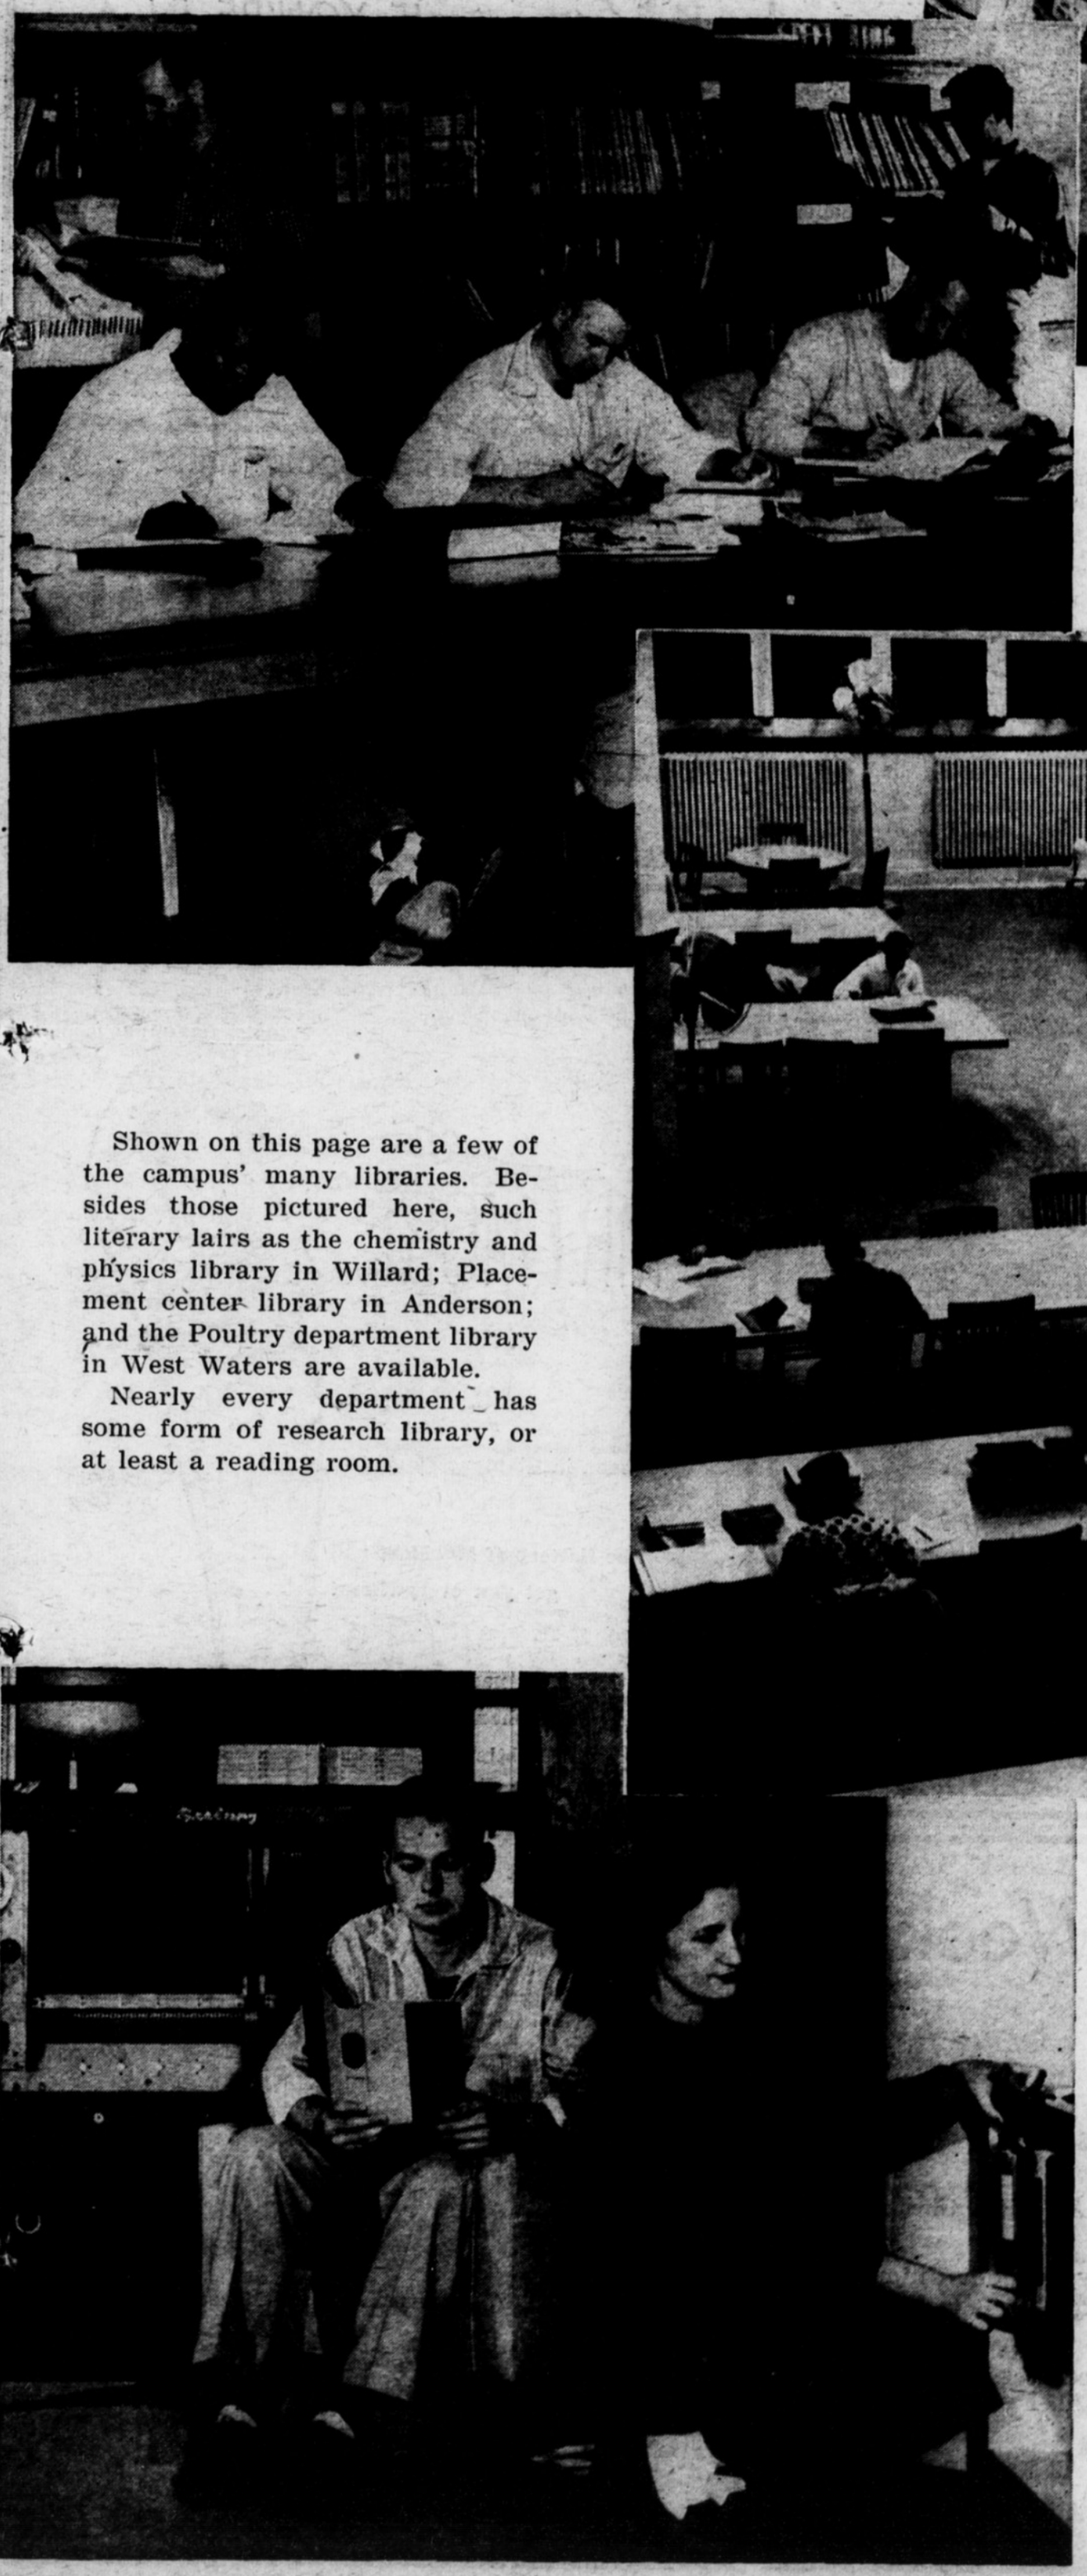

Later library hours Monday through Thursday, with the possibility of extending hours on Friday and Sunday, are the result of a survey of fraternities, sororities, and independent organized houses, taken by the Student Council library hours committee.

The library is now open until 10 p.m. Monday through Thursday, instead of the former 9:30 p.m. closing time.

"If interest is shown, closing hours on Fridays and Sundays may be extended also," said George Hooper, BA Sr, chairman of the committee. He said the committee hopes students will take advantage of the later hours so that they may be continued.

NCAA Cage Tickets Selling Through KU

Tickets for the Western Regional NCAA basketball tournament are being sold only at the Kansas university ticket office, according to Frank Mosier, K-State ticket office manager.

Mosier said there are $2 seats for both Friday and Saturday night, March 14 and 15.

The Western Regional NCAA will match the winner of the Big Eight conference against the winner of the Missouri Valley conference. Cincinnati is leading the race for the Missouri Valley title.

In the lower bracket of the tournament, Oklahoma State has been selected as the At-Large team to meet the winner of the Southwest conference. Texas Tech and Arkansas are currently running a tight race for that conference title.

Mosier said people wanting to secure tickets for the tournament should send their order to Earl Falkenstien, business manager, Allen field house, Lawrence, Kansas.

Sportcerpts

by Eldon Miller

K-State's basketball team, ranked No. 1 in the nation and first place in the Big Eight conference race with a 7-0 record, is faced with a rather unfortunate situation until its March 8 date with Kansas university.

The Wildcats, playing four opponents before the KU game, will have a struggle on their hands in quest of a "cinch" for the Big Eight crown.

Because of its high standing, K-State has been and will be the prime target for all other conference teams.

Many people undoubtedly think that the Cats should be able to easily over-run their opponents like Kansas university is doing.

However, K-State is having a much rougher time than the Jayhawks because of one main reason according to Coach Tex Winter—PSYCHOLOGY.

"Other teams play us with the idea that they can beat us," said Winter, "and, consequently, they give us real rough games. But KU, with Chamberlain in the lineup, poses quite a psychological barrier for the opposition. Everyone is going to be mean for us until the season is over."

The Wildcats game with Missouri university at Columbia this Saturday will undoubtedly be a very tough one for K-State.

Mizzou showed surprising power last Saturday at home, whipping Oklahoma university, 74-53, to knock the Sooners out of second place in the Big Eight race.

The Tigers, although not possessing a lot of good basketball talent, play an aggressive type of basketball which is difficult to cope with. They are particularly rough when playing before partisan crowds in the 6,000 capacity Brewer field house in Columbia. Missouri fans are among the most enthusiastic in the league.

Speaking of enthusiastic crowds, the Colorado Buffaloes can be thankful they still have their fans behind them despite their 1-7 conference mark and 5-13 overall record.

In the game last Saturday the referees were having a rather hard time keeping things under control. Once when the ball went off the court and under the bleachers, an official spent some time trying to retrieve it from the crowd which was reluctant to give it back.

Later there were barrages of paper thrown on the floor by the fans who, probably frustrated over the team's earlier showing in the season, felt that there might be an upset.

Tex Has 71-37 Record

Coach Tex Winter, now in his fifth year at the Wildcat basketball helm, has won 71 games while losing 37 at K-State.

Three Join KS Faculty; One Resigns

Three new appointments and one resignation have been announced by the office of President McCain.

Appointed were Dean Albert Hammond, horticulture instructor; Bobby C. Strait, electrical engineering instructor; and Brian Christopher Cummings, anatomy instructor. Richard J. Wang, instructor in electrical engineering, has resigned.

Organ Recital To Cover Music of Four Centuries

Marion Pelton, assistant professor in the Department of Music, will present an organ recital Sunday at 3 p.m. in the College auditorium. She will be assisted by a brass choir directed by Clyde Jussila, instructor of music.

Choir members are Robert George, MEI Sr; David Frey, MEI Sr; Robert DeCou, MEI Jr; Donna Frey, MGS Fr; Thaine Carpenter, MEI Sr; and Richard Bayles, Eng Fr.

Professor Pelton returned to K-State last fall after an absence of two years during which she attended the Columbia university graduate school. She was on the staff of the Music department at the university where she taught piano and organ and was assistant librarian for the music library there.

Music of four centuries for organ and brass instruments will be included in Sunday's program:

"Praeludium," by Pachelbel; "Meinen Jesum lass ich nicht," (chorale and variations), Walther; "Prelude and Fugue in D Major," Bach; two fanfares, "Praise to the Lord" and "To Thee Alone Belongs Glory," Bach; "Trumpet Voluntary," Purcell; prelude on the chorale "Adam's Fall," Hom-ilius; "Canzon noni toni," Gabrieli; "Elevation," Dupre; "Fugue," Henegger; 'Dieu Parmi Nous" (La Nativite du Seibneur), Messiaen.

Arts and Sciences Day Is Scheduled Tomorrow

Arts and Sciences day is expected to attract approximately 130 students from 30 Kansas high schools, according to Bill Schicktanz, GA Sr, president of Arts and Sciences council. They will arrive at 11 a.m. to register in the Student Union ballroom.

Twenty-two departments in the School of Arts and Sciences are participating in the school event.

Each of the departments will set up an exhibit in Eisenhower, Willard, Kedzie, Fairchild, or Nichols, to introduce the visiting high school seniors to its program.

A buffeteria is the first event on the program, to be held in the Union ballroom. Special guests will be the dean and the associate deans of students. Dean Young will give a short welcoming speech.

A movie will be shown in the Union little theater at 1 p.m. Sponsored by the men's Physical Education department, the film will concern the 1956 Olympics.

After the movie at 1:20 p.m., the main group will be put into three smaller ones and will be taken on tours of various campus buildings. Included in the tour are Kedzie hall and Nichols gymnasium.

Fairchild hall will show the geology exhibit, which will include a "finger fatigue" test. Willard will house the physics exhibit and the chemistry exhibit, including a miniature hydrogen bomb, a demonstration of a common belch, and the odors of chemistry.

Eisenhower will have all other exhibits. The Mathematics department exhibit, to be in J118, will feature fun with math, a demonstration of an abbacus, an explanation of the Greek and Russian numbers systems, and a demonstration of the use of algebra.

Other exhibits and the room numbers are business administration, J112; economics and sociology, J201; education, J101; English, J118; art, J121; speech, J20 and J22; history, J224; government and philosophy, J211; music, J123 and J124; women's physical education, J112; psychology, J201; air science, Eisenhower hall; and military science, J126.

Missing Violins Turn Up In Union Lost and Found

The two violins missing from the Music department were located yesterday. Campus patrolman Roger Ward said he was notified at 1 p.m. yesterday they were in the Student Union lost-and-found department.

A Union custodian found the violins Monday night among the coat racks for cafeteria patrons.

Personnel in the lost-and-found department at the Union had no idea where the violins belonged until they read yesterday's article in the Collegian concerning the missing instruments, according to Ward.

A third violin was recovered in a Topeka pawn shop by Topeka police, but as yet it has not been returned to the campus.

Head of the Music department Luther Leavengood valued the instruments at about $75. He had no idea how they got in the Union.

Ward said he didn't think there was any connection between this case and other recent thefts.

Flanagan To Play For Dance Tonight

Ralph Flanagan

Over 500 couples are expected to attend the Military ball tonight at 9, according to Bob Carlson, BA Jr, publicity chairman for the dance.

Ticket sales for the dance are far ahead of last year's sales, partly because of the Flanagan dance band being offered, Carlson said.

The semi-formal dance will feature the crowning of the Military Ball queen at 10:30 p.m. The Queen is chosen by a vote of those attending the dance. Queen candidates are Lois Bones, EEd Jr; Nancy Payne, EEd Soph; Judy Jackson, BA Fr; Carolyn Banks, Psy Fr; and Sandra Tenorio, SEd Soph.

Ralph Flanagan and his orchestra are being brought from Miami for the dance. Flanagan's band is one of the best known in the country. It has broken attendance records in dance halls all over the country.

Although a particular arrangement of a tune might be a driving Latin beat, or a slow ballad, each Flanagan arrangement revolves around the rhythm section, for it is here that the basic beat for dancing originates and is kept constant throughout the number.

UPC Plans Show, Party This Week

A basketball listening party and the Union movie, "Three Coins in the Fountain," are the featured activities in the Union this weekend.

The Union Hospitality committee will sponsor the listening party at 7:15 p.m. Saturday in the Union main lounge. Coffee and doughnuts will be served. The movie will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the little theatre Friday, Saturday, and Sunday.

On the Union Program council agenda last night was the possibility of having informal group discussions on various academic and cultural subjects.

Definite plans will be made by the Coffee Hours committee concerning the time, place, and discussion topics. The committee plans to contact colleges which already have similar programs.

The Y-Orpheum chairman announced that a mail order ticket sales system has been arranged to accommodate students, out-of-town alumni, and students' parents. Further information will be announced.

Four Events Today Close REW Fare

Four campus activities today close K-State's Religious Emphasis Week program.

The book of Revelation will be discussed by Rev. Dr. William C. Tremmel, assistant professor in religious activities, at 4 p.m. in the All-Faith chapel.

The Rev. Dr. Leslie L. Kingsbury will discuss the general epistles and homilies at 3 p.m. in the chapel.

The daily skeptics hour will be at 11 a.m. in the main lounge of the Student Union. Guest speakers will be available for discussion and personal conferences.

Fourteen Picked as KS St. Pat, Patricia Finalists

Fourteen candidates for St. Pat and St. Patricia were named last night. They were chosen by the various engineering departments. Each couple represents a department, with the exception of the nuclear and chemical engineering departments, which jointly chose one couple.

Three St. Patricia finalists will be chosen by a 14-man committee from Sigma Tau, honorary engineering fraternity, at a tea Sunday, March 2 at 2:30 p.m. in the Student Union Walnut dining room.

The three St. Pat finalists will be chosen at a smoker at 7:30 p.m. in the dining room, reports Bill Harrison, NE Sr, chairman of the St. Pat smoker and St. Patricia tea.

Engineers will vote in the final selection of St. Pat and St. Patricia on Wednesday and Thursday, March 5 and 6.

St. Pat's Prom will be Saturday, March 15, in the Student Union Main ballroom, and will climax Engineer's Open House.

The winning pair participates in ribbon-cutting ceremonies, is awarded trophies, reigns during the Open House events, and St. Patricia is escorted through the maze of displays that comprise the Open House exhibition.

NOMINEES for St. Pat Prom royalty are Mary Beth Brooks, HEJ Soph, and Charles Johnson, AgE Sr, agricultural engineering; Jan White, HT Jr, and Bob Main, IT Soph, industrial engineering; de Ann Johnston, EEd Fr, and John Quinn, CE Sr, civil engineering. Each engineering department selected a pair of candidates to represent it in the contest.

High School Guests To Visit KS Campus

WE HAVE COMPANY coming this weekend. Approximately 150 high schoolers will be on campus Saturday to take part in Arts and Sciences Day, which is being sponsored and planned by the Arts and Sciences council.

Important in an evaluation of the success or failure of the event over last year's is the fact that approximately 20 students attended in 1957. Assuming that we're attempting to show potential Staters the worth of our campus, you can't hope to influence many when only 20 attend!

This isn't the real problem this year. Although we may wish more would take part, there's ample evidence in number alone of some improvement over the planning done last year. The question now is whether or not organization of festivities has been sufficient.

AN ENROLLMENT GAIN can do nothing but good as far as the campus is concerned, and attracting high school students is the first step in building a better institution. With more students we can hope for an expansion of faculty and facilities, as well as developing a more competitive spirit in classes and activities.

The students that are here tomorrow will be forming opinions on K-State that will return with them to schools, homes, and friends. For the College's sake, and at least for hospitality's sake, we hope Kansas State makes the guests feel at home. We're not only welcoming them—we'd like to see them back!

WITH YESTERDAY'S PICTURES of the College libraries still in mind, we might mention that students will do well to take advantage of the extension of closing hours to 10 p.m. Now that we've won this point, and it's certainly a valid one, patronage of the Library until that time is almost a necessity.

We can't blame the librarians for denying the privilege of later hours to five or ten studious individuals; it will take more than a few to give reason for the change. So the masses who've signed petitions demanding the revision would be smart to take advantage of the service while it's offered. If readership, or research, falls off, the campus just might see another change come about.

WE'D LIKE TO EMPHASIZE once again that letters to the editor must be kept to 250 words or under—we're sorry we can't use the longer ones, but we simply don't have the space. We know its been mentioned before, but we hate these accusations that we won't print complete letters simply because we don't like what they say . . . 'tain't so, people!—Sue Goss

Readers Comment on Editor's Religious Emphasis Week Stand; Indignant K-Stater Says—Orchids to RCC, Onions to Collegian

Dear Miss Goss:

Congratulations on the stand you took in yesterday's Collegian condemning the RCC. After reading your article, I feel one of us is misinformed on the nature and purpose of RE Week. Since your business is to print facts, please enlighten me on a few points.

1. You stated $500 of the student activity fee was appropriated for RE Week. I am informed by the RCC treasurer that the amount is closer to $1,000. The difference is being made up by the religious groups on the campus who think RE Week is worthwhile.

2. You say "the week might be more educational." I'd like to know what is un-educational about Dostoyevsky or T. S. Eliot? I personally found it very educational. Presumably, you don't consider Eliot "educational" enough for K-State. I'd like to arrange a date so you can explain his poetry to me.

3. You say that we should offer the student a more complete picture of religion. Unless my "uneducated" mind serves me wrong, I counted 27 lectures, seminars, discussions, and coffee hours this week. Also RE Week has been extended from three days to five.

4. You would like to have seen the program include comparative religion. The theme for the week is "Religion and Literature." Comparative religion is an entirely different subject! You maintain that the literature of other religions should have been included. If you can find a place for it in the schedule, why don't you apply for program chairman for RCC next year?

One final word, Crusader. Orchids to RCC . . . Onions to you.

Ron Butler, Chm Sr.

(Editor's note: We'll be happy to clear up those points for you. 1. This needs no further comment—we're happy to print that campus groups donate money for speakers, but the entire student body is responsible only for the less than $500, according to Dean of Students Herbert Wunderlich, which is apportioned from its activity fee. 2. We find all of these men highly educational, but still, more education is not a bad thing. As it happened, we did not attend Davis' lecture—but we heard it one Sunday night with fellow Canterburians, so perhaps we're not as unfeeling as you might suspect. We also realize that there are other Eliots of different religions than ours—we'd like to know more about them. 3. Quantity has never been synonymous with quality, Mr. Butler. 4. We said nothing about comparative religion . . . we'd just like to see a comparison between religions, not among the Christian religions—or would you prefer we correctly label the five-day session Christian and Jewish Emphasis Week? Apparently Reader Butler is satisfied with REW as it stands—fine. But we'd still like to see it properly named, since an institution of higher education shouldn't pretend to educate when it's narrowing the field.)

Dear Editor,

In reply to your editorial of Wednesday, February 19, we agree with your ideas that it would be good to broaden our knowledge of religions other than our own.

Perhaps the Jews, Moslems, and Hindus would not object to crosses in the All-Faith chapel, but if you were more observant, you would have noticed that crosses are used only for Christian services, and that other religious groups are perfectly at will to use their own symbols. When the All-Faith chapel is not in use, there are no religious symbols of any kind. Danforth chapel is the only chapel where Christian symbols can always be seen.

Off the record, one does not usually refer to deceased persons as "Mr." (Webster), and we also think it is an insult to your intelligence to rely on a dictionary to define religion. We are referring to a statement made by a professor that dictionary definitions for familiar words are used only by ignorant persons or those unfamiliar with our language.

In regard to your statements that Hinduism, Islam and other religions were not represented, we know that qualified speakers in these areas were not available for this Religious Emphasis Week.

We feel that perhaps your editorial was written in haste and without investigation of the true facts.

Marilyn Waller, PsP Fr
Mary Bricker, HEN Fr.

Dear Editor,

I understand that senior badges are to be given free to any senior purchasing a membership in the K-State Alumni association, according to the February 19 Collegian.

Miss Sue Goss,

I read your editorial with considerable interest and approval. There should be recognition of the other religions . . . but if you will refer back to a year ago—just after religious emphasis week, you will find an effort was made to do so in "Religions of the Campus" talks. A young man from Jordan talked on and explained the Moslem beliefs; another from India told us about Hinduism; one from China talked about Confucianism, and since no one would discuss Buddhism Dr. Parish was called on to do so. All were good, but almost no students came, and only a small group of townsmen and faculty.

Ada Billings, professor of history, government, and philosophy.

(Editor's note: We're glad to know that some attempt is being made, even if it was not entirely successful. Wouldn't you agree, though, Professor, that perhaps if such religions were allowed to share the spotlight during Religious Emphasis Week, more success would be inevitable? We can't help but assume it would add a great deal of interest, and we believe there are many who'll agree.)

Harmonizers Begin Program Rehearsal

The Union Harmonizers chorus last night began a series of weekly rehearsals for "Mugs, Mustaches and Music," to be presented Sunday, April 13, in the Union ballroom.

The April program, to be announced later in more detail, will feature quartets from K-State, Manhattan, and high school quartets from the Manhattan area. Several special attractions are planned.

The practice session each Thursday is not only a rehearsal but is open to all men who like to sing and other interested persons.

"We welcome all fellows whether they can carry a tune or not, if they like to sing," said George Roggendorff, VM Sr, chairman of the Harmonizers committee. He said the weekly gathering is for "fun, fellowship, and recreation."

Sammy Coen, Junction City, area director of the national SPEBSQSA (Society for Preventing the Extinction of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America), will be a guest at the Thursday night meetings.

The two-hour meetings will be interrupted with a coffee break and will feature special entertainment. Tonight, John McComb, PrL Jr, will sing folk songs and will accompany himself on the guitar.

Area, National Meets Draw on KS Faculty

Luther Leavengood, head of the K-State Department of Music, will be chairman of the college orchestra music section during a conference of the West Central division of the Music Teacher's national association February 25-27 in Denver. He will also appear on a panel which will discuss the certification of music teachers.

The West Central division includes Kansas, Missouri, Colorado, Nebraska, Iowa, and South Dakota. This is the first year that a college orchestra music section has been organized.

Acropolis defeated South Jardine, 15-3, and 17-15; the Hobos beat the Vets, 15-7, 10-15, and 15-3, in the only three game match of the evening; Wesley Foundation won from the Newman club by forfeit; and Delta Sigma Phi stopped Tau Kappa Epsilon, 15-2, and 15-3.

Sigma Nu edged Acacia, 16-14, and 15-12; Delta Tau Delta defeated Phi Delta Theta, 11-0, and 15-13; Pi Kappa Alpha beat Phi Kappa Tau, 15-2, and 15-6; and Beta Sigma Psi defeated Kappa Sigma, 15-9, and 15-6.

Monday night's schedule:

7 p.m.—Sigma Chi vs Sigma Alpha Epsilon, northwest court; Lambda Chi Alpha vs Beta Theta Pi, southweast court; Alpha Kappa Lambda vs Sigma Phi Epsilon, northeast court; and Farm House vs Theta Xi, southwest court.

8 p.m.—Kasbah vs YMCA, northwest court; Westminster Foundation vs Jr. AVMA, southwest court; American Institute of Architects vs Sigma Phi Nothing, northeast court; and La Citidel vs House of Williams, southeast court.

Wildcats To Risk 7-0 Record In Basketball Tilt with Mizzou

K-State's basketball team will again put its spotless conference record in danger tomorrow night when it meets Missouri university at Columbia. Game time is 8 p.m.

The Wildcats, having a 7-0 Big Eight mark and ranked number one nationally at 17-1, have become top upset bait for the rest of the conference since their 79-75 victory over Kansas university February 3.

The performances of the opposition in the past two contests is indicative of the pressure put on the Cats. Two weeks ago K-State slipped past Iowa State, 77-70, and last Saturday the Wildcats had trouble in downing Colorado, 68-62. Both the Cyclones and CU played their best basketball of the season.

Of the five remaining Big Eight games on the Cat schedule, Coach Tex Winter sees the MU tilt as the big one. "Of course, it's next and we are bound to see it as all-important," said Winter. "But Missouri on its home court is always a tough one to win.

"There already have been a lot of surprises in Big Eight play. It's reasonable to assume there are some left."

Missouri Coach Sparky Stalcup is also in doubt about the outcome of the conference race.

"The Big Eight race is not over yet," said Stalcup after seeing his team get beaten by KU Monday, 84-69. "We can beat K-State if we don't have an epidemic of measles."

"To beat K-State a team has to match their height. If Harbin has only the three day measles and the rest of the boys don't come down with the disease, the Wildcats can be beaten.

"In that game my back line would be Harbin, John Stevens (6-6), and Cliff Talley (6-6). This would match the Wildcats height."

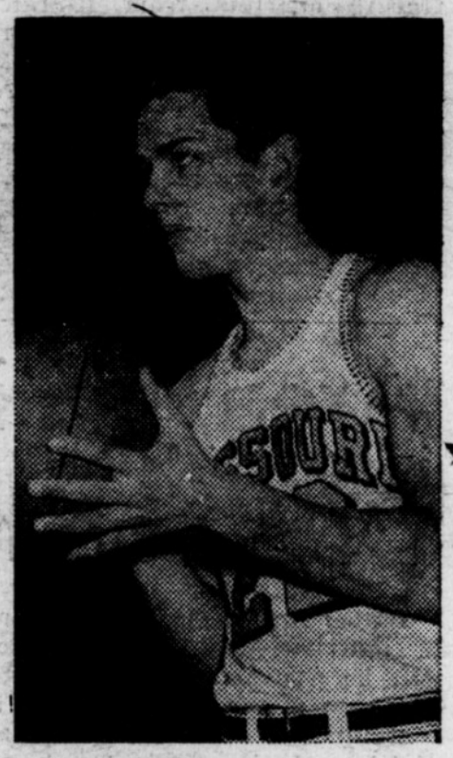

In its last home game, Mizzou treated guest team Oklahoma rudely, knocking the Sooners out of second place in the conference with a 74-53 victory. Missouri has a 3-5 conference mark and is 9-9 in all games.

Winter said the Cats are reacting very well to their national ranking.

"We are giving maximum effort in every game. It's a real credit to our opponents and to Big Eight basketball that most games are decided by such narrow margins.

Probable starters:

| K-State | Pos. | Missouri |
|---|---|---|
| Boozer (6-8) | F | (6-) Talley |
| Abbott (6-3) | F | (6-6) Harbin |
| Parr (6-9) | C | (6-6) Stephens |
| DeWitz (6-3) | G | (6-1) Forrest'll |
| Matuszak (6-0) | G | (6-3) Seibert |

SONNY SIEBERT, 6-3 junior guard, could give the Cats trouble at Columbia Saturday. Siebert is leading Missouri scoring with 285 points and a 16.7 average.

KU Hawks on Road For 'Rough' Games

The Kansas university basketball team goes on a two-game road trip this week-end which should find it against very bitter opposition. The Jayhawks are at Nebraska university Saturday and Iowa State Monday.

Last Saturday KU swamped Iowa State, 90-61, and a week earlier trounced the Cornhuskers, 102-46. Both games were at Lawrence.

Neither the Cyclones nor Nebraska are happy about the losses and hope to do something about it.

Nebraska Coach Jerry Bush is not too optimistic about beating the Hawks but is sure that Wilt Chamberlain will not duplicate his feat of two weeks ago, matching the entire Nebraska team scoring with 46 points.

"That's the only thing I am sure of," said Bush. "Chamberlain will not score 46 points against us here."

Iowa State, which thought it could play a running game with Kansas but found out different, is making different plans.

Coach Bill Strannigan's team is ready to change tactics, to revert to a proven method of handling Kansas—ball control will be the theme Monday.

Last year the Cyclones handed Kansas its only set-back in conference play, a ball-control 39-37 defeat at Ames.

Wildcats To Host Cowboys In Dual Indoor Track Meet

Coach Ward Haylett's track team will meet some of the top performers in the nation tonight when the Wildcats entertain Oklahoma State university in a dual indoor meet in Ahearn field house. The dual will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Heading the list of standouts for the Cowpokes is Jim Graham, OSU pole vaulting star. Graham's best is 14-8½—the highest any midland vaulter ever attained. Graham qualified for the 1956 Olympics but had to relinquish his berth to Bob Gutowski, the present world record holder with a mark of 15-8¼, when he sprained an ankle.

Close behind Graham is sophomore Aubrey Dooley, who is a consistent 14-foot vaulter. Both Graham and Dooley will be eyeing the Ahearn field house record of 13-11¼ set by Iowa State's Hal Mullison in 1956.

Another field house record, the 60-yard dash mark, is also in danger of falling. The Cowpokes' Orlando Hazley will be trying to better former Wildcat Thane Baker's 6.1. Terry Wilkinson, OSU distance runner, is also expected to score in the mile and two-mile.

Kenneth Covert, from Meade, will oppose DeLoss Dodds in the 440-yard dash for possibly the closest match of the evening. Covert ran several 47-second quarters last year on an outdoor track compared to Dodds 48.3 time outside. Dodds has compiled three first place performances and one second place in four meets this year. Dodds' only setback came at the Michigan State relays.

"Oklahoma State is strong in all events, except possibly the hurdles and shotput," said Haylett. "The meet hinges on the outcome of the hurdles and the various distance events."

Team captain Gene O'Connor, who did not compete in last Tuesday's triangular, will participate in both hurdle races but will not run on the mile relay team. O'Connor is recovering from a back injury received during the Colorado-Iowa State triangular last Friday.

With O'Connor out of the mile relay, Coach Haylett's combination wil be Chuck Burgat, Dave Burton, Jim Vader and Dodds. This foursome ran the distance in 3:21.6 in last Tuesday's triangular.

Sophomore Steve French, victorious in three of the four meets in the high jump, will be shooting for the field house record of 6-4¾. His best for the year is 6-5, posted during the Nebraska dual.

KS To Meet I-State In Swimming Contest

K-State swimmers meet Iowa State tomorrow at 2 p.m. in Nichols pool. They will try to improve their season dual record of 5-4.

Coach Bill Thrall considers Iowa State as one of the best teams in the Big Eight. The Cyclones finished second in the Big Seven meet last season and Thrall looks for a stronger team this season.

Ron Mlnarik and Dale Wassmuth led the Iowa State squad. Mlnarik placed first in the Big Seven 200-yard breaststroke last season, and Wassmuth accomplished the same feat in diving.

This will be the next to last home meet for the Cat swimmers as they complete their home schedule against Nebraska university next Saturday to close out the regular season.

Probable K-State entrants:

200-yard freestyle—1, Tom Coblentz; 2, John Nickel

200-yard breaststroke—1, Mihordin; 2, Rader

Tiger Cager Back

Don Hymer, 6-4 sophomore forward, has joined the Missouri university basketball squad this week after missing four games due to an eligibility mix-up.

Hymer, along with 6-5 sophomore Al Abram, was declared scholastically grounded at the semester, but a check of grades this week disclosed that he had mistakenly assumed his own ineligibility, without securing a grade in one course.

When grades were officially released Tuesday, the discrepancy was caught.

Cats and OSC In Gym Match

K-State's gymnastics team travels to Alva, Okla., to meet Oklahoma State college Saturday.

K-State has a dual meet record for four wins and one loss this season. Wins are over Fort Hays State, 58-37; Oklahoma State, 58-36; Colorado State university, 58-54; and Kansas university, 72-32. The loss was to Nebraska university, 68-37.

High point man for K-State this season is team captain Robert Gramzow. He has 73 points and is undefeated in free exercise. Alternate captain Allen Olsen has 45 points, and has won the side horse event four times.

A Campus-to-Career Case History

"Problems keep life interesting for a telephone engineer"

"I've taken part in all kinds of engineering projects during the five years I've been with the telephone company," says Bill Rhode, M.E., Tulane, '52. "Each project brings special problems to solve.

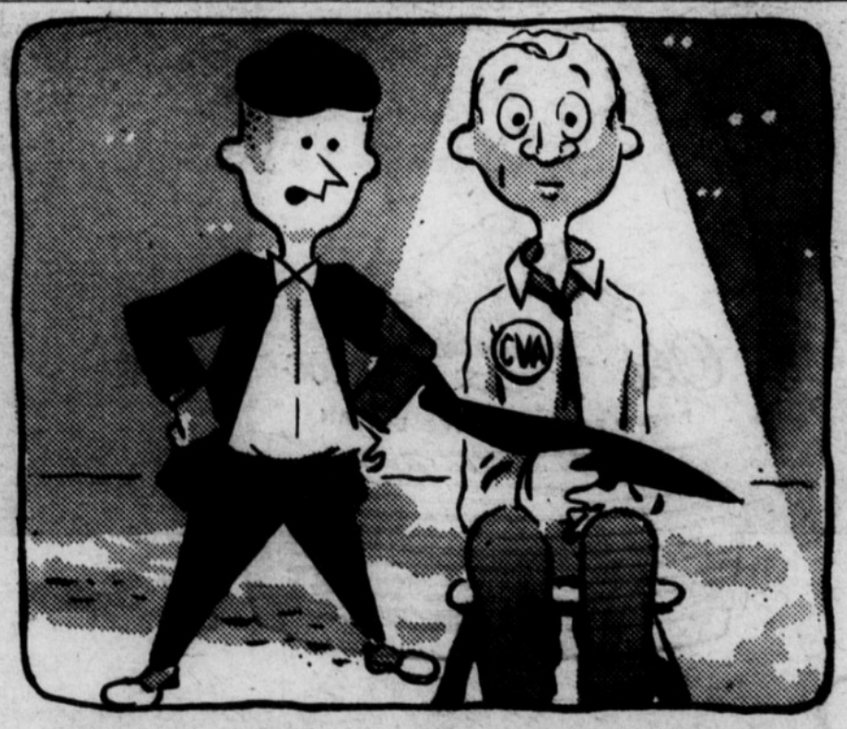

"Take a couple of recent jobs I did as examples. One was to plan and oversee the relocation of telephone facilities near a new drawbridge. The job included designs for attaching telephone cable to the finished bridge and for providing service to the bridgetender's office and the locks.

"The other job was completely different. I was asked to make an experimental installation of some newly developed line concentrator equipment. After selecting the test location, I engineered facilities for the remote concentrator unit, and trunk plant to the central office.

"Another thing about these jobs — they're a result of the growth of the telephone business. Not only do problems like these keep life interesting for a telephone engineer, but they mean that careers are full of opportunities to show what you can do and get ahead."

Flowers Rank High On Student Gift Lists

By MARGE PENROD

"Roses, roses, and more roses" is the cry of the flower-loving public, according to local florists. Roses seem to appeal to students, youngsters, and oldsters alike. Everyone is buying them.

The popular roses are followed closely by the flowers of fraternities and sororities. Of course, the traditional holiday flowers are not negelcted—Easter lilies, hydrangeas for Mother's Day, Memorial day peonies, and the Christmas poinsettias.

Despite the fact that he is becoming more "flower conscious," the student, more often than not, needs help in deciding which of the gorgeous array of flowers displayed in the florists' coolers will suit his needs.

Students are ordering flowers for almost all occasions now. In the recent flu epidemic, many sent single blossoms to friends who were ill. Roses are used to announce pinnings and engagements. Organizational flowers are often presented to people about to become members. They are also sent as a symbol of congratulations.

Flowers are sent in many shapes and forms—corsages, bouquets, sprays, wreaths, plants, and single buds. Corsages are not popular for dances since the College has a ruling against them. Except for the traditional Homecoming mum, very few students buy them. They are, however, presented as gifts to housemothers and important guests.

Frat Men Use Imagination In Selecting Party Favors

By JOYCE RECTOR

Professors may complain that their students don't show much orginality in the classroom, and this may be so. But just wait until it come to picking favors for parties. Those frat men seem to go all-out!

A trip around a sorority house or dorm can be quite an experience when one is on the lookout-for all those cherished souvenirs girls love to pin up on their bulletin boards or clutter on their desks.

One of the most unique gifts is in the possession of a senior. Thinking back some four years, she remembered vaguely, "I believe I got it at a spring formal. I just looked at it and wondered what I was going to do with an honest-to-goodness oil lamp."

Some of the souvenirs are a little more practical than oil lamps. For instance, the girls seem to be plentifully supplied with jewelry cases, pin cases, lipstick cases, and musical powder boxes, all of which come in handy. On the other hand, purple garters, while very decorative for bulletin boards, are seldom, if ever, put to any other use.

Jigger sets are fairly common. One girl, when asked what fraternity favors she had to offer, lugged a big box out from the depths of her closet, opened it up, and displayed a large mixing jar, swizzle stick, and two glasses. The owner looked proud, but rather vague.

Numerous and varied stuffed animals occupy beds, desks, dressers, and other vacant spaces. The ratio of animals to girls in a room is usually in excess of three to one. The animals range from blue-gray lions and small floppy-earred puppies to huge ungainly pink poodles. A few small, bright red mongrels are also to be seen now and then. White fur kittens that spin around while playing Brahm's "Lullabye" are popular too.

Paddles are popular party favors, too. They are found in many colors, and range in size from three or four inches to three feet long.

In the line of wearing apparel, fraternities have given pajamas, black Derby hats, sweatshirts, terry cloth robes and towels, and painted blue jeans.

Many coeds have souvenirs from other campuses. From Kansas university comes a large scroll comemmorating an annual Christmas turkey pull, a souvenir and program in one. Another girl remembers that at Syracuse university in New York, her favor was a fraternity necklace.

YWCA-YMCA Plan Marriage Discussion

The YWCA and YMCA plan many activities together even though the two groups are separate organizations. The next project the two groups are planning is a Courtship and Marriage seminar.

According to Jim Swank, BA Sr, the seminar is one of the main activities co-sponsored by the YWCA and YMCA. Both organizations have a joint conference in Estes Park, Colo., each summer. Representatives from various YWCA and YMCA organizations throughout the United States will gather in Colorado for the conference this summer.

Neither the YWCA nor the YMCA are affiliated with a church body. The two nondemoninational groups are among the older campus organizations. Jo Lydick, HT Sr, is president of the YWCA, and Kent Pridey, Agr Sr, is president of the YMCA.

The two groups schedule separate meetings throughout the year. However, joint meetings are held when the two groups are working on special projects or having seminars or social functions together.

Both the YWCA and the YMCA carry out individual projects throughout the school year. The most important annual project for YWCA members is the Y Mart. This is primarily a money making activity and has been carried out for many years. Chairman of this year's Y Mart was Rogena Long, BMT Jr. Gifts and other items from foreign countries constitute the major proportion of articles displayed and sold at the Y Mart.

At the present time YMCA members are studying the chief religions of the world. Discussion groups are being led by K-State professors together with outsiders. The discussions are intended to reveal the background of the world's important religions and their relationships to one another.

The religions being discussed include Judaism, Islam, Christianity, Catholicism, Budhism, and others. The girls responsible for the discussions are Cay Carrel, ChW Jr, and Kay Nordstrom, HT Soph, co-program chairmen; and Connie Merritt, Ch Soph, and Lynne Martin, EEd Soph, religious life chairmen.

One of the activities of YMCA members is participating in intramural sports program on campus. YMCA members participate in several intramural sports and in past years have won many intramural awards.

Council Receives Ten Bids For K-State Insurance Plan

Student Council representatives opened bids on specifications for a group health insurance plan for K-State students in the Union Saturday.

The Council received 10 bids, though none has as yet been selected. The Health Insurance committee has scheduled a meeting tomorrow, and will go over the bids to pick the one best suited for Kansas State.

The committee will make a recommendation to the Council, though the governing body must okay any committee proposal before it can become fact. Warren Keegan, EE Sr, said that the committee recommendation would probably not be presented to Student Council before March 3.

Insurance companies were allowed to submit alternate plans. The committee must weigh the price quoted by the companies, and also what the student will get for that price. Four companies submitted alternate specifications from those prepared by the Council, while six companies bid on the SC specifications.

Two of the most likely bids received were from Kansas Blue Cross-Blue Shield and Mutual of Omaha. Blue Cross-Blue Shield bid on the Council's specifications and Mutual of Omaha submitted an alternate plan.

The Mutual of Omaha plan includes a $1,000 blanket accident benefit, a $1,500 accidental death and dismemberment benefit, a $300 surgical schedule, $15 a day for hospitalization with a 60-day limit, and a catastrophe medical expense allowance of 75 per cent of the cost in excess of $1,000, though it is not to exceed $3,500.

Rates for the Mutual of Omaha insurance would be $8.75 for a single student for a period of six months; $17 for a married student and his wife for six months; and $23 for student-spouse-dependents for a six-months period. Yearly, the rates would be $17.50 for single student, $34 for student-spouse, and $46 for student-spouse-dependent.

The plan, which is the same as that now in operation at Nebraska university, also includes polio benefits, an allowance for a registered nurse of up to $10 a day with a $150 limit, and an allowance for physician visits to a patient confined in a hospital of $15 for the first day and $4 for each succeeding visit.

The Blue Cross-Blue Shield bid, if accepted, would provide hospital board and room up to $9 a day for 120 days, a $300 surgical schedule, and a schedule for physicians visits which would pay nothing for the first and last days, $5 for the second through the sixth days, and $3 for the next 115 days.

Rates for the Blue Cross-Blue Shield plan are $9 for the single student for six months, $18 for student-spouse for six months, and $24.50 for student-spouse-dependent for six months. Yearly rates would be $18 for single student, $36 for student-spouse, and $49 for student-spouse-dependents.

The Blue Cross-Blue Shield plan also includes "service benefits" which cover hospital and physician charges for injury or sickness cases.

The Council read bids on its own specifications from Royal Globe Insurance company, Globe Life & Accident Insurance company, Continental Casualty company, American Casualty company, Mutual of Omaha, and Blue Cross-Blue Shield. Alternate bids submitted were from American Casualty, Indemnity Insurance company, Continental Casualty, and Mutual of Omaha.

Lee To Give Council Activity Ticket Views

Athletic Director H. B. (Bebe) Lee will air his views on the activity ticket situation at Kansas State before Student Council at a 5 p.m. meeting in the Union today.

Lee will tell the Council of the views of the Athletic department, in an attempt to arrive at a solution to the activity ticket problem. The meeting stems from a series of meetings of Lee, Dean of Students Herb Wunderlich, Collegian editor Sue Goss, TJ Sr, Student Body president Neil Scott, Soc Sr, and Student Council chairman Paul Hatfield, AEd Sr. Council officials indicated hope for a possible solution which would be satisfactory to all parties concerned.

Other items on the agenda for the early Council meeting include a report on the recent book exchange, a report on the Student Governing association recognition banquet, and a motion concerning a bill for damages from an Aggieville merchant after the victory celebration following the February 3 basketball win over Kansas university.

The bill for celebration damages is from the Smart Shop. It is for $10, with the alternative that the Council could replace the damaged item—a trash box. Councilman Bill Brethour, AH Sr, will make a motion that Student Council pay the $10, since material to make a similar box would cost $12.45.

The SGA recognition banquet may be open to attendance by all students. The Recognition Banquet committee will recommend that course of action this evening. An outstanding Council member and outstanding members from each of the SGA standing committees will be named and honored at the banquet.

Jackson Crowned At Military Dance

Through a tunnel of ten arched sabers marched Judy Jackson, BA Fr, to be crowned queen of the Military Ball by President James A. McCain Friday night in the Union ballroom.

More than 500 couples attended the annual dance, sponsored by Scabbard and Blade, Army ROTC honorary society. Music was furnished by the 16-piece Ralph Flanagan dance band, which included a vocalist who looked like Doris Day.

Scabbard and Blade president Craig Fischer, BPM Sr, termed this year's Military Ball a success and added, "I think we had five of the best-looking queen candidates you'll ever see."

Buffet Opens Senior Week At 6 Tonight

The first Senior Week at K-State will begin with a buffet banquet in the Student Union main ballroom tonight at 6 p.m. Approximately 150 seniors have purchased tickets, according to Barbara Ericson, BA Sr, vice-president of the senior class.

L. W. Newcomer, chief of the Kansas Turnpike authority, will speak at the banquet. Newcomer is a K-State alumnus.

Senior Week will conclude with the K-State-Missouri basketball game Saturday night. A section north of the Purple Pepsters cheering section has been reserved for seniors wearing badges for identification. The senior section will have its own cheerleaders, yells, and pennants.

Each afternoon during Senior Week coffee and doughnuts will be sold to seniors in the Union dive.

Panhel Council Sets Schedule Of Rush Teas

The schedule for Panhellenic teas April 19 was discussed by Panhellenic council at its meeting February 10.

Panhellenic council representatives will go to all girls' dorms March 31 to invite those girls going through Rush Week next fall to participate in the teas.

Houses will entertain at scheduled times, with Kappa Delta, Pi Beta Phi, and Gamma Phi from 1 p.m. to 2:30 p.m.; Chi Omega, Kappa Kappa Gamma, and Delta Delta Delta, 2:45 p.m. to 3:55 p.m.; and Alpha Xi Delta, Alpha Chi Omega, and Alpha Delta Pi, 4 p.m. to 5 p.m. The houses entertaining from 2:45 p.m. to 3:55 p.m. will serve refreshments.

The representatives also discussed the suggested Homecoming rules made by the Homecoming committee. The committee proposed that a subcommittee be made up of the Panhellenic council and Interfraternity council presidents and one regular committee member, to select judges for Homecoming events.

Peronists, Reds Lend Support To Argentine Election Victor

Buenos Aires—Returns from Argentina's first free election in 30 years indicated today that Dr. Arthur Frondizi had won a landslide presidential victory with the backing of Communists and supporters of ousted Dictator Juan Peron.

Peronists traded shots with a crowd of opponents after polls closed in downtown Buenos Aires last night. About 1,500 followers of the former dictator had marched through the city carrying pictures of Frondizi.

Latest returns gave Frondizi and his Intransigent Radical party 817,416 votes to 483,236 for Dr. Ricardo Balbin, candidate of the People's Radical party.

Frondizi led in most of Argentina's 23 election districts. Unofficial calculations showed he had captured 300 of the 466 votes in the National Electoral college, where 234 votes are needed for election.

Candidates of 13 political parties were entered in the presidential race. However, only Frondizi and Balbin had a chance at election under Argentine election laws designed to enforce a two-party political system.

Frondizi, an attorney and economist who advocates a government-controlled economy, said in a victory statement that his first act would be to release from prison persons convicted of political and labor agitation.

Rebels Kidnap Racer

Havana — Cuban government officials decided to go ahead with the Grand Prix Auto race today in spite of the embarrassing kidnaping by Cuban rebels of its star performer, Argentine Juan Manuel Fangio.

Fangio was abducted at gunpoint last night in a daring rebel raid that put the government of President Fulgencio Batista in an uncomfortable spot.

Fangio, five-times world auto racing champion, was marched out of a crowded lobby in a downtown hotel by two gunmen.

Fangio's life was not believed in danger. The rebel underground had threatened to spoil Cuba's greatest sports event—today's $10,000 Grand Prix—but was not believed prepared to go so far as to harm Fangio.

Rescuers Use Spoons

Cambridge City, Ind.—Rescue workers digging carefully with spoons freed a 42-year-old man trapped for eight hours yesterday when a well cave-in buried him to his armpits.

The situation was so delicate that state police re-routed highway traffic away from the area for fear vibrations would loose more gravel on the nearly buried man.

Wilbur (Pete) Harold was caught 16 feet below the surface when the sides of the well caved in as he was digging for a broken drill point in the basement of his home in nearby East Germantown.

His helpers, Paul Stone and Park Sourbeer, alerted police and about 100 rescue workers rushed to the scene.

A barrel-like structure was placed over Harold to prevent him from being buried alive by falling gravel, and oxygen was adminstered throughout the long ordeal.

Because of the narrow size of the hole, only one man at a time could dig, and the cramped workmen had to be relieved every half-hour.

Show Exchange Planned

Washington—Eric Johnston, President of the Motion Picture Association of America, says negotiations with Russia will begin next month on an exchange of motion pictures.

Johnston said the exchange is part of the recently signed cultural agreement between the United States and Russia.

Johnston was asked about the effectiveness of a cultural exchange between the United States and Russia in the midst of the arms race between the two countries.

He replied that as long as people are working together to better understanding, progress toward peace is being made. He said it was better to have people working together in at least one phase of unified living than none at all.

Farmers Decrease

Washington—Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson is expected to blow one sweet and one sour note March 5. He will report the per capita farm income for 1957 was about $993—$16 greater than the previous record set in 1951. The sour note will characterize the total net income—$11,500,000,000, down from the $12,100,000,000 of 1956. The reason for the seeming contradiction is that there were far fewer people living on farms. The number dropped from 22,257,000 in April, 1956, to 20,396,000 in April, 1957.

Disarmament Post Out

Washington—President Eisenhower is expected to abolish the White House disarmament office given up by Harold E. Stassen and leave the arms question to Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

Dulles probably will leave day-to-day efforts to find a disarmament solution to Philip J. Farley, his special assistant for atomic energy matters. Farley has headed state department disarmament operations for several months.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS BY BIBLER

Screen Scene

Faulkner Novel Flops as Film; 'Raintree County' Finds Favor

William Faulkner fans probably know that his book "Pylon" is being rehashed at the Campus theater this week—and if they're smart they'll stay home.

"The Tarnished Angels" adds Rock Hudson and Dorothy Malone, throws in Robert Stack for the dramatic note, and winds up with an answer which is strictly Hollywood.

The only saving grace we could find was the photography, which came out of the scuffle as the one figure reflecting a Faulkner tone, and almost saved the movie from minus points.

Hudson was cast, per usual, as Rock Hudson. Just to appease a few, he half-heartedly attempted to follow character—that of the dreaming, drinking reporter who falls in love with a story—and the story's wife.

Dorothy Malone is the woman in question—and there's still some question as far as we're concerned just why another stage prop wasn't used instead. Any of the male audience will probably pant its approval—as did Hudson—but as far as acting is concerned, we're afraid Miss Malone just didn't ring true.

Robert Stack, the devil-may-care pilot, is the man-on-the-Liberty-bond-poster for whom country-born Malone falls. To make things even more unreal, blonde Miss'I'll-follow-you-everywhere Malone announces she's leaving Stack. Why? "I'm in a family way."

Following marriage, a son, and two crack-ups which leave Stack at the bottom of the sea, Malone is saved from the Villain by our Hero, Hudson.

Just to stay a Knight-in-Shining-Armor for his many fans, Hudson does a dramatic story-telling job for his city editor which practically brings tears to the eyes of the entire staff—and gets him back in the newspaper's good graces.

As we've mentioned—you'd be better off studying. That Stack is left at the bottom of the sea isn't nearly as bad as the fact that they let this one out of Hollywood—our apologies to Mr. Faulkner.—Goss.

"Raintree County," currently playing at the Wareham, is a long and drama-packed movie with enough trimmings to make up for some improbabilities in the plot.

An effort to give movie-goers another "Gone with the Wind," the three-hour picture offers beautiful color photography through Camera 65, an interesting musical score, an attempted panorama of the Civil War, and a cast which includes Liz Taylor, Monty Clift, Eva Marie Saint, and Agnes Moorehead.

Hollywood tries a little too hard to stretch the analogy, however, as most of the war scenes have little, if anything, to do with the story.

Opening in Raintree County, Ind., Camera 65 spotlights Monty Clift, a rural teacher, and Eva Marie Saint, his childhood sweetheart, looking for a mythical "rain tree."

Liz Taylor, a Southern belle, visiting the North for no particular reason, stumbles on them, and the odor of magnolias melts Clift's abolitionist heart. She returns to the South only to come back shortly and imply that Clift has certain marital obligations, which he promptly discharges.

He and Eva Marie Saint parry a few verses from Lord Byron before he goes South with his new bride.

Through a well-developed series of eerie scenes in which Taylor exposes some ghastly skeletons from her childhood, it becomes apparent that she is more than emotionally disturbed.

The pair make a long and frustrated attempt to make a go of the marriage, but Taylor, realizing that her past is too much with her and her mental state is a drag on her husband, pulls a spine-tingling exit to allow him and Saint a chance to find their rain tree.

Freudian overtones creep up constantly in Taylor's capable characterization and her reminiscenses about her past are designed to keep the audience slightly on edge.

Some witty repartee by the two females and several clever lines from Clift provide the humorous interludes in the lengthy drama.

During one exchange, Taylor chides Saint for not speaking, asking her where her breeding is. Saint replies that she'll leave the breeding to Taylor. Ignoring this, Taylor comes back with, "Be sure to drop in on us some time. My husband always said that of all his fast friends, you were the fastest."—Gilmore.

Dear Collegian,

Brandy is a nuisance? I ain't never been much for saying who is or who ain't botherin' me but I do like dogs. From what I hear, most students like dogs. Anyway Brandy don't seem to be all dog. He sleeps like a student (anywhere and anytime), he eats like a student (like a dog), he walks like a student (slow, unless going for food), therefore he must be at least part student. Now would we shoot a student for botherin' girls in front of Anderson hall? If we would, there would be a lot of dead students around these here parts. Brandy has become a part of our everyday, school life. Meeting Brandy is like meeting a friend. Let's keep him happy while he is around these halls of learning—who knows, he might become the smartest dog student in these parts.

KS Is 18-1

K-State's basketball team combined a 50 per cent shooting average and fine defensive play to subdue Missouri university at Columbia Saturday, 82-61.

This win and the Kansas loss to Nebraska put the Cats one victory from a cinch tie for first place in the Big Eight and two wins from a clear-cut championship.

K-State is 8-0 in the conference and 18-1 for the season while KU is 6-3 and 16-4.

But K-State is in no position to let up according to Coach Tex Winter. "The Nebraska win over Kansas only proves what I have been saying all along—any team in this conference can beat any other team on a given night.

"Oklahoma could be tough Tuesday and Missouri will probably play a good game against us Saturday. We are in a very good position now but we will still be playing the games one at a time."

The Wildcats, led by a 20-point output by forward Bob Boozer, hit 33 or 66 field goal attempts to post their ninth straight win. The 6-8 junior was also the leading rebounder with 16.

Missouri had only 18 baskets from the field in 60 shots for 30 per cent but outscored the Cats in free throws, 25-16.

The officials were kept busy in the game as 42 fouls were called, 24 on K-State and 18 on MU. The Tigers' Glenn Forristall, 6-0 junior guard, was the only player to foul out of the game, however.

K-State's Don Matuszak played his finest game of the season, according to Winter. The 6-0 junior guard was the main cog in the Cats ball-hawking 1-3-1 zone defense as he intercepted numerous Tiger passes and contributed 13 points.

Hawk-IS Game on TV

The Kansas-Iowa State basketball game at Ames tonight will be televised by WIBW-TV (Channel 13). The telecast will start at 7:30 p.m.

Gym Team Loses Meet

K-State's gymnastics team lost a close match to Oklahoma State college Saturday night, 60-54, at Alva, Okla. The loss brought the team's record in dual meets this season to 4-2.

Mike Dziura, a four event starter for K-State who scored 11 points against Kansas university, had the flu and was unable to make the trip.

NU Red Hot

Nebraska university stunned Kansas university, 43-41, at Lincoln Saturday in what was probably the season's biggest upset and one of the greatest "recuperation" performances ever stagged by a basketball team.

The Cornhuskers, trampled by KU two weeks earlier at Lawrence, 102-46, used ball control, a 60 per cent field goal average, and a storybook finish to defeat the Jayhawks, ranked fourth by the press polls last week.

Nebraska shot only 23 times, hitting 14, while KU hit 17 of 50 shots. NU led all the way until 7-0 Wilt Chamberlain tied it at 41-41 with 1:15 remaining.

Then Jim Kubacki, 5-9 guard, who had suited up only minutes earlier, hit a 30-foot set with :02 left for the win. Kubacki had not suited up for the game because of a knee injury.

Chamberlain, who had matched Nebraska scoring at Lawrence with 46 points, was held to 18 at Lincoln.

Thinclads Stop OSU In Indoor Dual Meet

K-State's tracksters scored heavily in the final two events to pull away and defeat Oklahoma State, 59-45, in a dual indoor track meet in Ahearn field hause Friday evening. The Wildcats scored 13 of the final 14 points for the victory.

DeLoss Dodds was the only Field House record threat during the meet as he tied the 440-yard dash record of 48:9 which was set by another K-Stater, Thane Baker, in 1953.

The Wildcat mile relay foursome of Dave Burton, Larry French, Jim Vader, and Dodds provided the highlight of the evening when they came from behond in the final quarter to win in the time of 3:20.

Steve French, K-State's high jumper missed a chance to break the Field House record of 6-4¾ but cleared 6-4½ to win his specialty.

Cat Mermen Lose

Records in three events were broken Friday as the Iowa State swimmers defeated K-State 55-29. The Cats season dual record is now 5-5.

Jim Mariner set a new record in the 200-yard backstroke for the third time this season. His 2:21 established a new K-State varsity record and a new pool record.

K-State's 410-yard medley relay team set a new pool record of 4:22.5. Jim Mariner, Dave Dicken, Allen Rader, and Gorden Harper established the record. Harper was used after Marion Towns and Ron Mihordin became ill and could not compete.

Mike Graham of Iowa State set a new pool record of 2:35.4 in the 200-yard breaststroke.

Abbott Receives Injury

K-State's Hayden Abbott may miss tomorrow night's basketball game with Oklahoma because of a leg bruise received in Saturday's game with Missouri.

The 6-3 senior forward was plagued with injuries last year but has missed only one game this season. He was out with the flu when K-State lost to Kansas university, 79-65, in the pre-season tournament.

'58 Seniors Dine Together

SENIOR BUFFET DINNER opened K-State's first Senior Week last night in the Union. L. W. Newcomer, former K-Stater and chief of the Kansas Turnpike authority, was the speaker. Extra tables had to be set up to accommodate a larger crowd than was expected.

H.B. 'Bebe' Lee, SC To Discuss KS Activity Card Problem

Athletic Director H. B. (Bebe) Lee was forced to cancel his appearance before Student Council to discuss the activity ticket situation yesterday.

However, the Council decided on a special luncheon meeting in the Union Thursday with Lee, since he informed it that he would be unable to attend Monday meetings next week or the week after.

The Council voted, after much debate, in favor of a Monday, March 17, athletic holiday, should K-State's basketball team advance to the NCAA regionals and win at Lawrence March 14 and 15. If Kansas State doesn't go to the regionals, or if the Wildcats are defeated there, the holiday will be added to Easter vacation. In that event, the extra day would fall on Tuesday, April 8.

In other action, Student Council voted to pay a $10 bill to the Smart Shop in Aggieville to replace a trash box ruined in the February 8 victory celebration following K-State's basketball win over Kansas.

The Smart Shop sent the Council a bill for that amount, but said that a replacement for the box would be accepted. Bill Brethour, AH Sr, reported that lumber to build a similar box would cost $12.45, so the Council, after some debate, voted to pay the bill.

George Hooper, BAA Sr, reported that the book exchange in the Union ended with a $5 deficit. The Council will pay half the sum, and Sigma Tau will pay the other half.

The Council voted to invite students to attend the Student Governing association recognition banquet, March 11. Tickets will go on sale at the information desk in the Union for $1.25 each. An outstanding Student Council member and outstanding members from each of the SGA standing committees will be honored at the banquet.

Wildcats Out for Crown Against Sooners Tonight

K-State's basketball team hosts Oklahoma university tonight in Ahearn field house in what could be the title clincher for the Wildcats. Tipoff time is 7:35.

The Cats, with an 8-0 conference record and rated number one nationally, were given a cinch tie for the Big Eight championship last night as second place Kansas lost to Iowa State at Ames, 48-42.

The Jayhawks, with a 6-4 league record, have a slim lead over Iowa State and Oklahoma who have 5-4 marks.

A win tonight would give the Wildcats their second conference title in three years and accomplish a feat which many thought impossible at the beginning of the season—knocking KU out of the top spot in the Big Eight.

K-State, fresh from an impressive 82-61 win over Missouri university at Columbia Saturday, will meet a Sooner team which defeated a very good Oklahoma State quintet at Stillwater last week, 52-48.

The OSU Cowboys had previously beaten two powerful Missouri Valley conference teams, Cincinnati and Bradley, on their home court.

Both Oklahoma and K-State are boasting impressive season records. K-State has its best

KSC Plans To Apply For Atomic Reactor

An Argonaut atomic reactor may be purchased for nuclear engineering instructions if present planning is successful, according to President James A. McCain.

"We are planning to make formal application for an Argonaut reactor soon," McCain said. "It would be useful not only for instruction, but also for research purposes."

Bids from various companies will first be accepted to determine the cost of the reactor, which is expected to be between $175,000 and $200,000, the President explained.

"We shall then apply to the AEC (Atomic Energy Commission) for the money," he said.

Robert Clack, instructor in the Mechanical Engineering department, commented that they expected to get a sub-critical reactor second semester next year and the 10 kilowatt Argonaut reactor by the spring of 1961. The building needed to house the latter could be completed by January, 1960, Clack estimated.

Juco Conference To Be Tomorrow

The fourth annual junior college conference will be on campus today and tomorrow with fourteen junior colleges participating.

The first meeting of former Juco students with their deans will be at 11 a.m. tomorrow to discuss ways to make the junior college-K-State transition easier. A luncheon will be in the Union west ballroom at 12:15 p.m. for students and deans.

AWS Petitions For 7 Officers Due Thursday

Applications for the seven positions as officers on the executive board of Associated Women Students must be turned in by Thursday at the AWS desk in the Union activity center.

The positions open for nomination are president, first vice president, second vice president, third vice president, recording secretary, corresponding secretary, and treasurer.

Requirements for women to be eligible for nomination are a 1.5 cumulative grade average, service on the Women's council for one full semester prior to election, and date of graduation not before May, 1959.

Applications may be picked up from AWS representatives or from Mary Beth McCoy, HT Jr, chairman of the nominating committee.

The election of the executive board will be during the second week of April. Term of office will be one year.

Hajda Works for Radio Free Europe

DR. JOSEPH HAJDA, assistant professor of history, government, and philosophy, works on a speech for Radio Free Europe in his home in Manhattan.

"Broadcasts over Radio Free Europe are one of the best ways to win friends for America. What's more, they are highly reliable friends," according to Dr. Joseph Hajda, assistant professor in history, government, and philosophy. He is actively helping in Radio Free Europe's fight against Communist propaganda. Since September of 1957, Dr. Hajda has recorded four speeches and presented them over the radio. Several more speeches are being prepared.

Dr. Hajda writes the speeches and records them in Czech, his native language. The recordings are then sent to Munich, Germany, where they are beamed across the Iron Curtain to Czechoslovakia.

"The purpose of the broadcasts," Hajda said, "is to inform Europeans about America." Dr. Hajda's topics so far have been "The Teaching of International Relations in American Colleges," "Meeting of the American Political Science Association in New York," "American Capitalism," and "The New Army." The last was a speech about Ft. Riley.

Radio Free Europe is a semi-private organization. Established almost nine years ago, it is allowed freer reign than the U.S. Information agency's Voice of America. RFE is not tied down by government policy and thus can choose its broadcasts.

Harder hitting and emphasizing interpretation of the facts, RFE reaches Poland, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Roumania, Yugoslavia, and Bulgaria. News, political analyses, and western music are broadcast. Quite often the programs are beamed to special groups such as labor, youth, women, and college students.

Hajda was born and grew up in Czechoslovakia. He graduated from the University of Prague with a Bachelor of Political Science degree in 1948. For two years after the war, he worked as editor of "Picture News."

Receiving a scholarship offer from the University of Miami in Oxford, Ohio, Hajda came to America in 1950. Since then he has received his BA and MA degrees from Miami, and his PhD from the University of Indiana. His major field is international relations and comparative government.

Busy Evening for Campus: Staters, Team Have Game

K-STATE'S BASKETBALL team has quite an evening ahead of it. Tonight it plays Oklahoma for the Big Eight title—and it's playing with a campus and alumni behind it. This promises to be an exciting evening for everyone involved.

While there were only 150 out of the approximately 1,100 seniors at the kick-off banquet for Senior Week last night, we're willing to promise you many times that number will attend the game tonight.

And, believe it or not, this is good. Dean of Students Herbert J. Wunderlich recently commented that sports do more in unifying students than almost any other single factor—other than perhaps political revolution! Since we're not proponents of the latter immediately, we'd naturally agree with Dean Wunderlich's views. Regardless of whether you're a senior or junior, whether you're in ag or engineering, arts and sciences or home ec—you can be proud of a single entity when K-State's basketball team hits the court.

YOU MAY NOT BE as proud of those five as you were when you aced your first chem class (if you're one of the lucky ones!), or as you were when you heard or read about intensive research at K-State, but we don't think you should be. We'd like to hope that the majority is here to be educated—not to support the basketball team.

We'll go one step further, however, and insist that both have their place on campus. Just as the steam whistle at 5 p.m. doesn't end the educational process of the day—the fact that this is an educational institution doesn't eliminate the contribution of teamwork, individual support of a group hope or feeling, or the mutual enjoyment of team success.

JUST AS YOU LEARN something from reading about two scientists who photograph the Russian satellite, we feel something can be gained from watching teamwork and the individual superiority which is evidenced on K-State's basketball team.

Entertainment plays a big part in any way of life. And since it's obviously here to stay, we're just real happy that our basketball team is on top. Excellence can be admired in anything—although the direction which it takes should be under constant surveillance.

AS OUR TEAM takes the floor, it might be well to take individual stock of the direction. The guys who play the game will be busy enough—but as spectators we just might get off on the wrong foot. And if so—we deserve to get booted with it.

Sportsmanship is old, its called trite, and some people even forget it exists. We hope that none of these pertain to the K-State reaction of the outcome of the game tonight. This game isn't "just a game," agreed. It determines whether we take the conference championship or remain tied for first (see story on page one). But our screaming, our unruliness, our poor taste won't change any score nor anyone else's mind about the game.

Just as we'd prefer education to take precedence over sports, we'll hope that K-State acts in a manner befitting its position as an institution of higher learning. Backing a team is one thing—but things overdone in this direction can do us far more damage than good.

OUR SPORTS are a good vital part of the instition which we attend. And, if badness comes from the good, it is through our own action and by our own hand—or mouth. We can't imagine any feeling on earth any more moving or unifying than that brought on by a darkened field house, a spotlighted Stars and Stripes, and K-Staters' singing our national anthem. Let's not ruin it by individual actions which follow such a well-staged beginning.—Sue Goss.

FOR K-STATERS who have not made the acquaintance of Charles M. Schulz's comic strip characters—this is good 'ol Charlie Brown, friend of all mankind. And in case you are wondering, he isn't hiding behind a balloon—that really is his head.

Peanuts' Creator Is Cartoonist of Year

Royalty is coming to the editorial page of the Collegian!—in the person of "Peanuts," Charles Schulz's inimitable newspaper comic feature. "Peanuts" will appear in the Collegian beginning March 10, two weeks earlier than we previously expected.

The Yale Record, college humor magazine, has announced its 1958 annual award for "Humorist of the Year" will be bestowed on Mr. Schulz for "Peanuts."

This isn't the first time "Peanuts" has earned the title of royalty. In 1956, the National Cartoonist society named Mr. Schulz "Cartoonist of the Year," for his laughable comic strip.

But royalty or not—we will be both pleased and proud to welcome Charlie Brown, Snoopy, Lucy, Schroeder, Linus, and all the rest of Mr. Schulz's "Peanuts" to our editorial page March 10.

Probers Find Flagrant Rules Violations; Mack Denies Illegal Action, Won't Quit

Compiled from United Press
By CHAS. H. SCHREIBER

Washington — A House investigator said today FCC Commissioner Richard A. Mack's reputed financial interest in an insurance firm holding the account of the National Airlines TV station in Miami is "unquestionably a flagrant violation" of government regulations.

Mack voted to award the hotly-contested channel 10 to the airline.

Rep. Morgan M. Moulder (D-Mo.) said evidence also showed Mack had violated other rules in his relationship with persons seeking to "influence" Mack's vote on the award of television channels by the Federal Communications Commission.

Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.) said on the basis of what already had been brought out in the explosive investigation of federal regulatory agencies, President Eisenhower should have called for Mack's resignation "before now."

But Moulder and other investigators said they wanted to hear Mack in the witness chair before comment on whether he should resign or be fired. Mack is scheduled to testify Thursday, but there is a chance he may be called tomorrow.

When Mack was first accused two weeks ago of having "pledged" his vote to Coral Gables, Fla., attorney Thurman A. Whiteside in the award of Channel 10 to National Airlines after Whiteside had given him $2,650, Mack denied any wrongdoing and said he would not resign.

Bulganin Losing Out

Washington—Nikolai Bulganin may be kicked out soon as Soviet premier, diplomats reported today.

If Bulganin is ousted, the action would be further evidence of the tightening grip of Communist party boss Nikita Khrushchev on the Soviet Union. It also would mean Bulganin would not attend an East-West "summit" conference if one is held.

The most recent and probably most important evidence of trouble for Bulganin was a switch in the election district he is to represent in next month's Soviet elections. Soviet voters are to select 731 deputies for the Council of the Union and 633 deputies for the Council of Nationalities. The two bodies make up the Supreme Soviet (Parliament).

In the 1954 election Bulganin represented the important Moscow City district in the Council of Nationalities. Of course he won. But in next month's election the Moscow district has been taken away from Bulganin and given to Nikolai M. Shvernik, former Soviet trade union leader. This shift has prompted speculation Shvernik might succeed Bulganin as premier.

Rebels Buy Planes

Singapore—The rebel Indonesian regime today was reported buying planes to challenge the air force of President Sukarno's government.

Des Alwi, a spokesman for the central Sumatra revolutionary regime, said in Manila that a "strong counterattack" will be launched by the rebels against the Jakarta government "in the near future."

Reports from Jakarta said Prime Minister Djuanda met last night for nearly three hours with the chiefs of staff of the three military services. The official Indonesian news agency Antara said it was believed the talks dealt with "further action" against the rebels.

Tragic Race Ends

Havana—Kidnaped auto ace Juan M. Fangio was released late last night, hours after the race in which rebel gunmen prevented his taking part ended in tragic death for at least four persons and injury to 28.

Fangio, who is an Argentine, arrived at the residence of his country's ambassador in suburban Miramar at 12:45 a.m. Embassy officials withheld details, but indicated he was released about 10:30 p.m.

The grand prix auto race, which Fangio had been favored to win, was called off hours after he had been snatched when Cuban driver Armando Garcia Cifuentes crashed into a wooden overpass, killing four spectators and injuring 28.

Aid Bill Halts Feuding

Washington — Bitterly-feuding President Eisenhower and former President Truman go to bat today for the administration's $3,942,000,000 foreign aid bill.

But they won't appear in the same room together at the same time.

Truman speaks at a luncheon meeting of a conference of national leaders to plug the aid program and Eisenhower appears at a dinner. The big rally is designed to sell the American people on the program and offset some congressional opposition by lawmakers who do not want to spend money abroad in an election year if they can help it.

Cats Could Clinch First

mark in Wildcat sports history, 18-1, and could be the first conference team to cop the championship with an undefeated record since 1945 when KU posted a 10-0 record in the old Big Six conference.

The Sooners are 13-6 for the season, their best record since 1947 when they finished at 24-7. OU has been able to finish no better than fourth place in the league since 1949 but are now in contention for second place.

The Wildcats may be without the services of forward Hayden Abbott, who received a charley horse in the Missouri contest.

The 6-3 senior was working out with the squad yesterday but is leg was heavily taped. Coach Tex Winter does not know if Abbott will be ready to go or not.

Oklahoma has the height and defensive ability to possibly contain K-State's offensive attack. The Sooners are among the national leaders in defense, holding their opponents to an average of 57.8 points a ball game. The Cats are currently scoring at a 71.8 clip.

K-State defeated OU at Norman earlier in the campaign, 64-60, but had to rely on a good free throw percentage to do it as the Sooners outscored the Cats on field goals, 50-38.

Oklahoma will probably field a team consisting of Joe King, 6-6 senior, and Bill Hammond, 6-6 sophomore, at the forwards; 6-8 junior Bob Stoermer at center; and Denny Price, 6-1 sophomore, and Roger Potts, 6-3 sophomore, as guards.

Another Sooner, 6-3 Gene Hudson is averaging 10.4 points a game but his field goal accuracy has dwindled to 13 per cent in the last three games so the senior guard will probably start the game on the bench.

The Sooners probable starters will average 6-5 compared to the Wildcats regular 6-4½ mean. However, if Abbott does not start, Winter will probably insert 6-8 sophomore Wally Frank into his spot, which will boost the Cat average to 6-5½.

The Cats will have three games remaining on their regular schedule. They will host Missouri Saturday and Kansas the following weekend, and will be against Nebraska at Lincoln Monday.

Probable starters:

| K-State | Pos. | Oklahoma |
|---|---|---|
| Boozer (6-8) | F | (6-6) King |
| Frank (6-8) | F | (6-6) Hammond |
| Parr (6-9) | C | (6-8) Stoermer |
| DeWitz (6-3) | G | (6-1) Price |
| Matuszak (6-0) | G | (6-3) Potts |

Jack Parr Named To All-Star Team

Raleigh, N.C., (U.P.)—Jack Parr of K-State, Vern Hatton of Kentucky and Jack Quiggle of Michigan State head a list of 19 college basketball players who will take part in the North-South All-Star game here March 28. Gene Shue, who plays for the Detroit Pistons of the National Basketball association, is the promoter.

Cyclones Bump Kansas; Hawk Title Hopes Slim

The Iowa State Cyclones handed the Kansas university basketball team its second straight loss last night at Ames, 48-42, to give K-State a cinch tie for first place in the Big Eight and provide a three-way battle for second place.

Kansas' Wilt Chamberlain played a fine game in scoring 26 points but the 7-0 junior center couldn't get enough support from his teammates as the Cyclones combined accurate foul shooting with a good outside scoring attack to avenge an earlier 90-61 loss to the Jayhawks at Lawrence.

Kansas is now 6-4 in conference play while Iowa State and Oklahoma are 5-4.

This is the second "revenge" defeat handed the Jayhawks in three nights as Nebraska made up for a 102-46 shellacking at Lawrence by stopping Kansas, 43-41, at Lincoln Saturday.

John Crawford, 6-5 senior forward, and Bud Bergman, 6-4 sophomore forward, paced the Cyclones with 14 points each.

Bergman hit three set shots from 30 feet or more and a 10 foot jumper in the second half to stave off a Hawk rally and put the Cyclones ahead for keeps.

Crawford hit eight free throws without a miss and garnered numerous rebounds to help the Iowa State cause.

Kansas led twice in the ball game, first on a 1-0 lead at the beginning and then 27-26 early in the second half.

Both teams used zone defense and the Cyclones were able to work the ball well for good outside shots. KU, on the other hand, was forced into a number of passing errors by ISC's sinking defenders who kept Chamberlain from moving too freely in the middle.

The Cyclones were able to build up a 17-10 lead and held on to leave the floor at half-time with a 23-18 advantage.

Chamberlain added more dunks and dips early in the second half to pull the Jayhawks to within one point and Ron Loneski, 6-4 junior forward, grabbed a loose ball in the Cyclone forecourt and drove all the way for a lay-in to place KU ahead, 27-26.

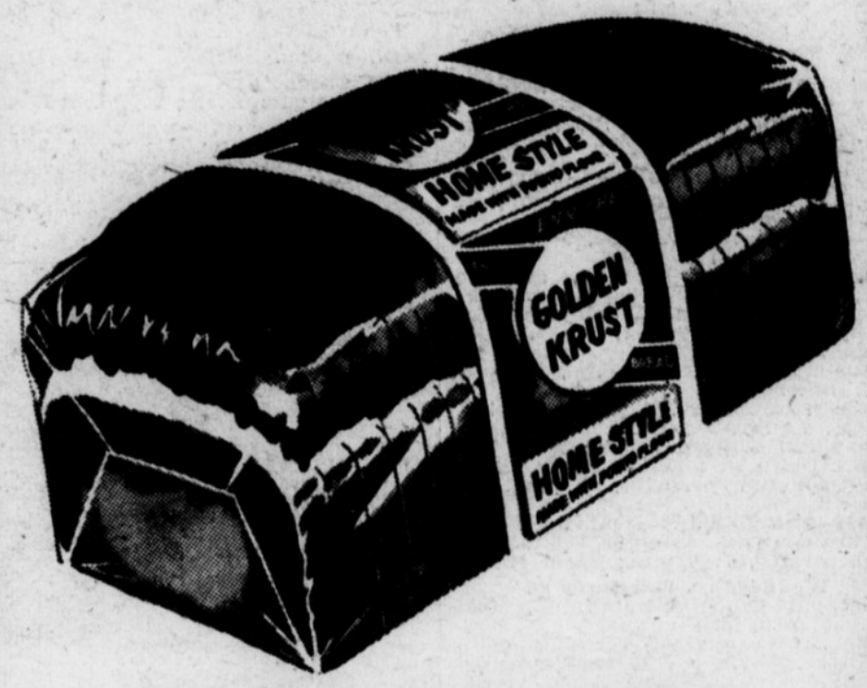

It was then that Bergman put on his outside scoring show over the Kansas zone and the Jayhawks could never pull back into serious contention.

K-State Tops UP Poll

Historical Box Is Discovered Under Anderson Hall Vault

A small zinc box with historical value was unearthed last Wednesday by workmen in Anderson hall. The box was placed under the main vault directly under the comptroller's office in Anderson, June 15, 1881, by A. S. Stewart, superintendent of printing, and I. D. Graham, telegrapher at that time. It was discovered when workers cut through an old foundation to run an electrical conduit.

The box is now in the historian's vault, according to C. M. Correll, College historian. Correll said that the item of greatest interest was the "Claim of the State of Kansas Relating to Agricultural College Lands," made by S. J. Crawford before the Secretary of Interior.

The College had received a land grant of approximately 83,000 acres which was short 7,000 acres of the expected land grant. The federal government claimed that some of the land originally given was "railroad land" and was therefore worth double value. A special act of Congress in the early 1900's finally made it possible for the College to obtain the land.

The box also contained old grade report forms, an 1881 commencement invitation, songbooks, programs, publications, student payrolls, unexcused absence slips, and assignment slips.

Correll said that the preservation of the documents was remarkable. He said that even the poorer grades of paper were scarely yellowed.

KS Endowment Gifts Reach $12,000 Mark

Funds received by the K-State Endowment association up to February 14 were more than twice those received by the same time last year.

Gifts totaling $12,141.98 had been given to the association by February 14 this year, according to K. M. Heywood, director of the Endowment association.

Last year an all-time high of more than $103,000 was donated to the Kansas State Endowment association. By the middle of February in 1957 the association had received $5,866.09.

The money is put into the Development fund, with which the association purchases equipment for the College and provides scholarships from the money donated.

One third of the $103,000 last year was donated by K-State alumni. Another third was given by various corporations interested in furthering higher education.

More than $16,000 came from personal gifts from people who are not alumni. Finally, over $19,000 was given to the Endowment association by several organized groups and clubs. Of this last figure, $16,000 was donated by the Kansas Council of Home Demonstration units.

Product Development Engineer Gerald A. Maley, like many other engineers, mathematicians and physicists, came to IBM directly from college. Here he tells how he put his E.E. degree to work in the exciting new field of computer development.

What's it like to be with IBM?

"What really sold me," says Gerald Maley, "was the way they approach engineering at IBM. I had expected rooms full of engineers at desks. Instead, I found all the friendly informality of my college lab."

An E.E., he came directly to IBM from the University of Buffalo in 1953. Starting as a Technical Engineer, he was immediately assigned to work, with two others, on designing a small calculator. Jerry Maley learned a great deal about computers in a very short time. Incidentally, this small calculator has gone into production. "It makes an engineer feel good," he says, "to see his project reach the production stage—and to be able to follow it through."

Promoted to Associate Engineer after sixteen months, he became the leader of a nine-man team, assigning problems to his group for solution, approving their block diagrams and the models they built. A short while ago, he was again promoted—this time to Project Engineer. "A particularly interesting aspect of my present job," Jerry Maley says, "is the further development of magnetic cores—new memory storage devices for electronic digital computers." His administrative details have been reduced to a minimum, freeing him for creative engineering work. Perhaps an hour a day goes into paper work such as requisitioning equipment for his group and reviewing technical publications, in counseling members of his team, and preparing for trips to technical society meetings.

Assigning problem to group member

Why he chose IBM

Of course, there were many reasons why Jerry Maley selected IBM. He was vitally interested in computers, and IBM is a leader in computer technology. He comes from a scientific family (his brother is a mathematician), and is fascinated by these IBM mathematical marvels which are revolutionizing ways of doing things in so many fields. He enjoys working on large equipment . . . and on "pulses." "It's more logical," he says. "In computer work, you can actually see electronics at work. And it's not all solid math, either. What's more, this field is so new, you're contributing along with everybody else in a short time." He endorses the IBM policy of promoting from within, with merit the sole criterion. The salary factor, although it was excellent, was not his first employment consideration, he recalls. The tremendous advancement potential was of greater importance.

Testing a new development

What about promotions?

When asked about advancement opportunities at IBM, he says, "You can hardly miss in this field and in this company. IBM sales have doubled, on the average, every five years. Company expansion at this rate—in a dynamic industry—makes my future look bright indeed." Since Jerry Maley came with IBM in 1953, career opportunities at IBM are brighter than ever, as all business, industry, science and government turn increasingly to automation through electronic computers.

Wildcats Down Sooners, Clinch Big Eight Crown

Kansas State Collegian

VOLUME LXIV NUMBER 93
Kansas State College, Manhattan, Kansas, Wednesday, February 26, 1958

By ELDON MILLER
Collegian Sports Editor

K-State's Wildcats became the 1957-58 Big Eight basketball champions last night as they defeated Oklahoma university, 68-51, in Ahearn field house before a crowd of 10,500.

The Wildcats now have a 9-0 conference record with three games left in league competition. Kansas university, last year's conference king pin, saw its faint hopes for a share of the league title destroyed by the Cat win. KU is in second place with a 6-4 mark.

K-State hit only 29.5 per cent of its field goal attempts, 18 of 61, compared to 34 per per cent by OU on 18 of 53 shots, but the

Board Okays Plans For Chimes, SDX

Approval of a change in financial program for Chimes, junior women's honorary and of an initiation banquet for Sigma Delta Chi, honorary for men in journalism, were the major actions of Student Activities board at Monday's meeting.

Pat Loyd, BA Sr, and SAB chairman, reported next week's agenda to include discussion and perhaps final action on a situation concerning campus signs and posters.

"Alpha Phi Omega, honorary scouting fraternity, has offered to make 50 outdoor sign boards to take the place of material being tacked on trees. We will attempt to decide whether or not to accept this as a substitute for the present sign problem," Loyd said.

The proposal was sent back to the committee and will be presented to the board again next week, according to the chairman.

Tabling of a motion to approve the Ugly Man on Campus contest, also under the direction of Alpha Phi Omega, was accepted by the board until further study is done on the situation. Objection to the "buying of an election" by a single group was made by the board, since votes could be purchased at one cent each under the present plan.

In giving approval to the Chimes' plan, Student Activities board agreed to their substituting the sale of megaphones for that of Jayhawk lollypops at the basketball game with Kansas university, since the group was unable to obtain the lollypops.

Drill Group Will Choose Honor Coed

Honorary Captain of Pershing Rifles will be selected from a group of 18 coeds by the men of K-State's Company G Monday night. She will represent K-State in competing for Regimental Honorary Captain at a gathering of 13 PR companies at the Seventh Regimental assembly at Oklahoma State university March 14 and 15.

The 18 women and the organized housing groups they represent are Sharon Frick, HT Soph, Alpha Chi Omega; Ann Hall, HT Sr, Alpha Delta Pi; Lois Nelson, EEd Sr, Alpha Xi Delta; Judy Higgins, SEd Soph, Gamma Phi Beta;

Pat Murphy, SEd Soph, Delta Delta Delta; Annette Maxwell, Gvt Fr, Kappa Delta; Judy Horn, EEd Jr, Kappa Kappa Gamma; Charlene Strah, TJ Jr, Pi Beta Phi; Jo Edwards, Pth Soph, Chi Omega; Betty Childs, HE Sr, Clovia.

The residence halls each have two candidates: Martha Finney, His Sr, and Judy Hafford, TxC Sr, Waltheim; Kay Fitzgerald, EEd Soph, and Sue Pruitt, EEd Soph, Van Zile; Carolynne Manka, PsP Fr, and Harriet Wetlaufer, HE Fr, Northwest; Susan Miller, SEd Fr, and Judy Hoy, RT Fr, Southeast.

The women will be judged on personality and appearance, said John Turner, EE Soph, public information officer of Pershing Rifles.

Summer Job Seekers: Interview Plan Changed

A change in interviewing procedure for summer job seekers has been announced by the Placement Center.

Students who will be interviewed for summer employment have been advised to bring their personal data sheets to their interviewer instead of submitting them to the Placement Center.

Blank data sheets may still be acquired from the Center, and help in completing them is available from Don Parks, graduate assistant in charge of the summer program. The Center stresses that data sheets should be completed as fully and accurately as possible.

Optional ROTC Suggested In Council Report to McCain

Student Council's Basic ROTC committee presented President James A. McCain with a report yesterday, recommending that Kansas State switch to an optional ROTC program for freshmen and sophomore men.

The report, representing two years research, study, and correspondence with other land-grant schools, points out that there are advantages on either side of the question—for an optional or a compulsory program. "After two years of careful research and evaluations of these arguments, we feel that in the best interests of all—faculty, students, and administration—the most desirable course of action is to adopt a program of optional basic ROTC," the report reads.

President McCain said that he would study the report, then give it to the Faculty Senate. The Faculty Senate, in turn, will probably submit the report to its Committee on Academic Affairs for study and a recommendation.

Provided the report gets a favorable recommendation from that committee, and provided it gets a favorable vote from the Senate, President McCain will approach the Board of Regents on the matter. If the Regents okay a switch to optional basic ROTC, the way will be open to ask the Kansas Legislature to revise its 1935 law which requires all regularly enrolled, physically qualified men attending land-grant colleges in Kansas to take military training during their freshmen and sophomore years.

"If it is desirable to have a large number of men taking ROTC, the more advantageous program would be compulsory ROTC," the report says. "On the other hand, if we desire an ROTC program that is adequate in quantity, higher in quality, and more desirable to all students, the advantage would lie with optional ROTC.

"An optional program has not been a pressing problem on this campus in the past, but with the increasing enrollment in male students and the decreasing ratio of commissions given through the ROTC department, there seems little need of a required program.

"We feel that the lack of facilities that will prevail on campus in the next few years will leave the Legislature no alternative but to adopt an optional program."

The committee — chairman Darrel Franklin, BA Sr; William Shilling, BA Soph; Don Hazlett, BA Soph; and Sam Warren, EE Sr—corresponded with every land-grant school in the nation in compiling material for the report. At the committee's request, the Psychology department conducted a survey of every tenth male on campus. Results showed a 2:1 ratio in favor of an optional program.

National Park Possible Here At Tuttle Dam

Establishment of recreational facilities around the Tuttle Creek Reservoir area may well open possibilities towards Kansas' first national park, according to the City Park board.

The board formed a Manhattan Area Park Development association at a meeting Monday, electing Dr. H. T. Gier, interim president until permanent officers can be elected at the first official meeting March 17.

Discussing plans for establishing a state-wide commission to further development, a telegram from Fred Seaton, Secretary of the Interior, was read which congratulated the group on its action. The mayor of Topeka has also endorsed the project, according to reports received at the meeting.

Providing a lake with a possible shore line of 1,000 miles, the area will offer a large lake below the dam for fishing, according to a report compiled by the association. The group is now drawing up further steps necessary in campaigning for the establishment of the national park.

Big Eight Championship Cinched; Activity Ticket Proposal Looms

WE'RE BIG EIGHT CHAMPS—and it's a nice feeling basketball-wise. It's just plain nice to be recognized for a job well done—or a game well played.

But with the forth-coming activity ticket proposal expected Thursday noon at Student Council from Bebe Lee, we understand certain factions of students would like to see high school students admitted to the main floor sections. If these same factions can vouch for their behavior, we can see some benefit.

Certainly, the behavior of some of the local high school crowd at last night's game, which was more than annoying to any fans sitting near them, points toward no such generosity. Granting that children will be children, it will be particularly nice if Lee's proposition excludes the intermingling of the two age groups at least.

WE'RE INTERESTED in the present discussion on the Student Activity board in regard to signs and posters. If there's one thing this campus could use less of—it's this menace to campus appearance.

We hope this business of tabling the problem doesn't continue indefinitely—and we'll most heartily agree with board chairman Pat Loyd that some decision should be made soon.

Things have gotten to the point this semester that if no contest, etc., is going on, we almost feel we're on the wrong campus. In the early a.m., when one is fumbling one's way to an eight o'clock, what happens when all your trailmarks are gone?

WHETHER YOU REALIZE it or not—Manhattan is working on a project which would add greatly to Kansas State, by establishing a national park in this area.

With the Tuttle Creek Dam only 10 miles away, facilities for boating, water skiing, picnicking, and the various other entertainments could certainly enhance our enjoyment of fall and spring weather.

K-Staters might take heed, and act accordingly in the same direction. Campus-wide enjoyment might easily result . . . . although we're not sure such a situation would do much for class attendance!—Sue Goss

Grading System Change Discussed, Could Cut Beer Money, Enrollment

By Judie Ross

As students anxiouly await the return of their first semester grades from the registrar, they might appreciate the latest thought on grading systems.

The new word on improvement of the great American educational institution is a set-up where students with low grades must pay more tuition. From the Branding Iron, the student publication of the University of Wyoming comes the following discussion of the advantages and disadvantages of the program:

". . . This means the fairly intelligent student who likes to play around would have to saddle himself to the books or run the risk of paying all his beer money for tuition. With an A average he wouldn't have the time to spend his beer money and with a lower average he wouldn't have any money to spend. This would leave all parties up to the millionaire set and make nearsighted bookworms of the poorer ones. It would do wonders to cut down enrollment though."

•

Considering Kansas State is paying homage to its seniors this week—a program sponsored by the seniors, planned by the seniors and for the seniors only—the following quip from the Oklahoma Daily is quite appropo, "A mature senior's philosophy of life: You're only young once, but if you work it right, once is enough."

The selecting of campus queens has been made a topic of considerable discussion throughout the past two years. AWS helped to solve the difficulties by its new rules and regulations. However, The Dakota Student, published by The University of North Dakota, had some interesting comments and a most unique suggestion on this same topic . . .

"Next thing we know the Math department will hold a contest and name the girl Miss Calculate. Or the law students will designate some girl as Miss Judge or Miss Demeanor. There are a few I could dub Miss Behave or Miss Conduct! Or how about Miss Chievous? Or Miss Place, Miss Match, or Miss Construce. Man, use your imagination, I could go on all day! I'm for picking one queen to reign over everything all year long and calling her Miss Cellaneous!"

There has been considerable comment on the topic "How Women Dominate Men" lately but the student paper of the Drexel Institute of Technology, The Drexel Triangle, carried an article about women not having a ghost of a chance in this masculine world . . .

"It's a man's world, all right. Want proof? Just look at the difference in these descriptive words and phrases. If a man doesn't marry, he's a "bachelor"—glamorous word. If a woman doesn't marry, she's an "old maid." When it's his night out, he's "with the boys." When it is her night out, she's at a "hen party." What he hears at the office is "news." What she hears at the bridge party is "gossip." If she runs it, "she wears the pants in that family." If he is overly solicitous of her, he is "hen-pecked." If he keeps an eye on her at a party, he is an "attentive husband." If she sticks close to him, she is a "possessive wife."

Postal Rates, Raises Expected; Provisions Stir a Senate Fight

Washington—Sen. A. S. Mike Monroney predicted today the Senate will approve higher postal rates and pay raises for postal employes by nightfall after a "big fight" on a key provision.

The Oklahoma Democrat said there probably would be a "fairly close" vote on his amendment to knock out a proposed five-cent stamp for out-of-town letters.

"If the Republicans all stand together," he admitted, "we can lose."

Monroney, a member of the Senate post office committee, is a leader in the fight to hold any postal raise to a four-cent stamp for both local and out-of-town first class mail. It now requires a three-cent stamp. He expected the support of all but a handful of Democrats.

Once details of the rate bill have been thrashed out a move is slated to tack on a committee-approved measure providing a 7½ per cent, 320 million dollar annual pay raise for some 500,000 postal employes.

Monroney predicted an expected move by Sen. Frank Carlson (R-Kan.) to eliminate a $240 cost-of-living bonus for low-scale employes would be "beaten overwhelmingly."

He voiced certainty the Senate would vote to tie the pay and rate raises together. He said it also was possible approval might come by nightfall on another bill to raise the pay of about a million "white collar" civil service workers by 7½ per cent. The civil service measure was scheduled for consideration after the postal bill is disposed of.

Rebels Ready to Die

Singapore — The Indonesian revolutionary regime is prepared to fight to the death to free the island republic of "Communist domination," Rebel Foreign Minister Col. Maluddin Simbolon said today.

A Jakarta government spokesman in Manila, meantime, warned "foreign powers" not to interfere in the internal affairs of strife-torn Indonesia.

At the same time, the government of President Sukarno stepped up its campaign against "foreign subversives" it claimed were supporting the revolutionaries in central Sumatra and northern Celebes.

These "foreign" elements were not identified, but observers said the reference obviously was to the United States and the Netherlands since Russia already has openly supported the Sukarno regime.

In Padang, rebel stronghold in central Sumatra, Col. Simbolon ridiculed the charges that the revolutionary regime is being supported by any foreign power.

"Just because we have our own beliefs, that should not be any excuse for Sukarno and his henchmen to accuse us of being agents for someone else," he said.

"I will not deny our policy is anti-Communist . . . the nation must be liberated from Communist domination," he said.

Aid Selling Flops

Washington—President Eisenhower's rally to sell Americans on foreign aid received a cool shrug from some congressional Democratic leaders today. They said the President won't change any votes in Congress.

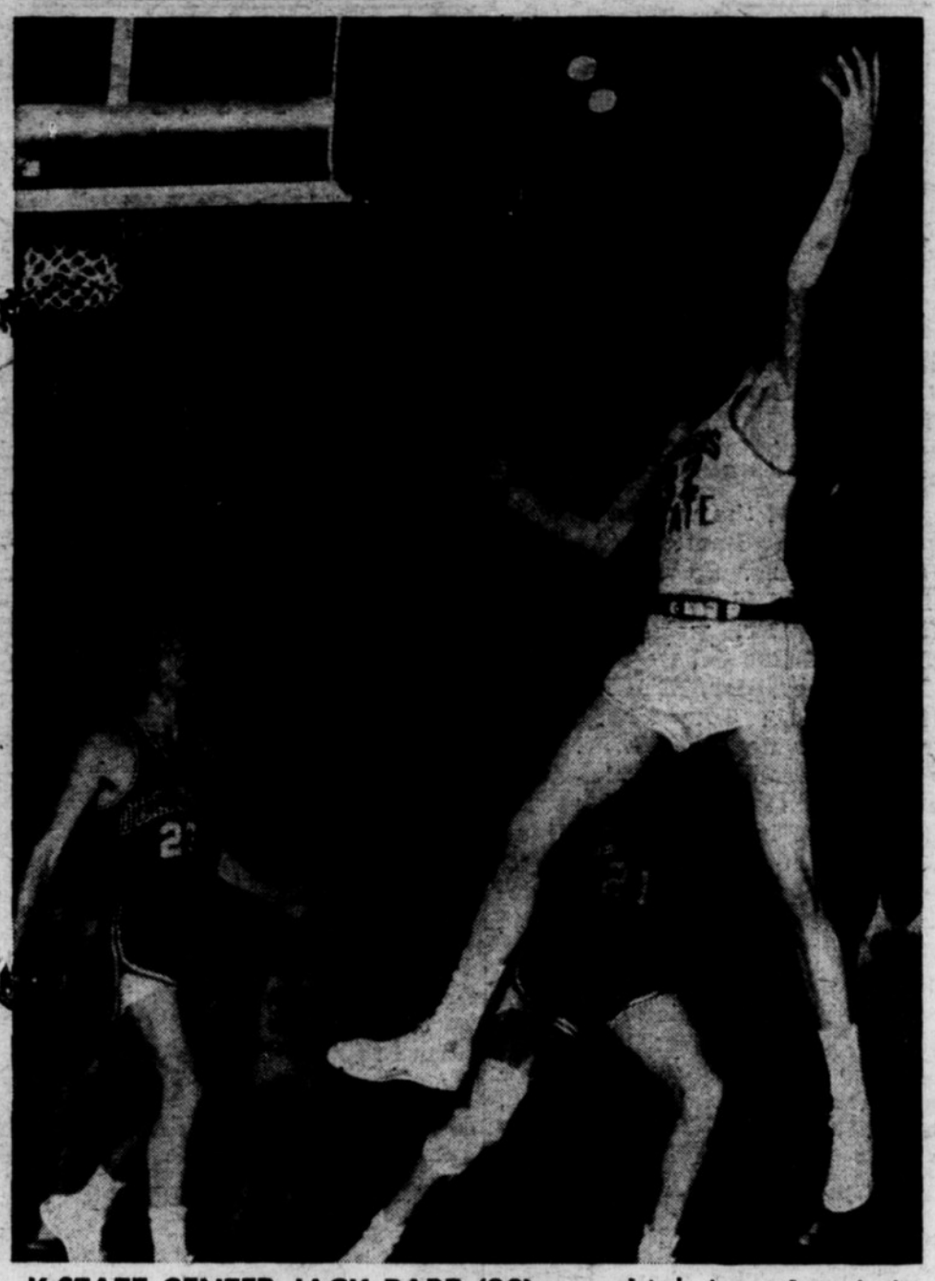

The President is asking "entirely too much" in his four billion dollar military and economic assistance program, Senate Assistant Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said.

The Montana senator said the program "can be cut substantially—at least 25 per cent." Instead of "Madison avenue" high pressure salesmanship, Mansfield said, the administration should be trying to shake down the program to "bedrock" and advancing ideas for eliminating waste, inefficiency and duplication.

K-State Bound for NCAA

K-State edged the Sooners in rebounds, 44-41, as forward Bob Boozer paced the Cats with 12 grabs. The 6-8 junior was also the game's high scorer with 23 points.

The Wildcats, ranked No. 1 nationally by the United Press and Associated Press, met stubborn resistance from the aggressive Sooners throughout the first half but pulled away with little trouble in the second.

Both teams used tight man-to-man defenses as indicated by the 40 fouls called by the officials. Oklahoma got back into their defensive court quickly during the first half and K-State was not able to operate its fast break.

The lead changed hands several times early in the game as K-State shooting was off and the Wildcats were not able to cash in on the scoring opportunities.

A hook by Boozer and a jump shot by Parr midway through the first period gave K-State a 20-15 advantage and the Cats boosted their margin to 30-22 with 3:00 left in the half.

But the Sooners scored three quick baskets on jumpers by Roger Potts, 6-3 guard, Bob Stoermer, 6-8 center, and Price to pull to within 2 points, 30-28 at intermission.

The Wildcats missed three easy shot attempts from under the basket in the last two minutes before halftime.

K-State took immediate control of the game at the start of the second period as the Cats scored eight straight points while holding the Sooners scoreless until 15:30 when Potts hit a field goal.

Oklahoma began having trouble holding the K-State speed and the Wildcats roared to a 46-30 lead. Don Matuszak, 6-0 Cat guard, sparked the K-State attack with seven points on three field goals and a free throw.

Oklahoma never threatened the Wildcats seriously from then on as K-State had a 20 point lead with 4:35 left.

Cat Locker Room Scene Of Much Noise, Prayer

There was a great amount of activity in the Wildcat dressing room after last night's Big Eight title-clinching win over Oklahoma University, 68-51, in Ahearn field house. As the players came in a barrage of congratulations met them—and coach Tex Winter was beaming with pride.

Once the noise was broken when the team and coach paused as a short prayer was offered.

"If anyone had told me before league play started that we'd have won the Big Eight championship this early, I'd have suggested that he have his head examined," said Winter. "It's an amazing thing!"

"Rebounding and defense was the difference in tonight's game. We didn't have a good night shooting."

"Oklahoma was tougher down at Norman than they were here," said Winter. "They're an aggressive ball team."

"The Missouri university game Saturday will be another real good game. Everyone is still shooting to beat the No. 1 team in the nation."

"Parr twisted his ankle tonight, but we don't know yet what the damage is." Parr, however, was not limping in the dressing room, and appeared to be uninjured.

Doyle Parrack, Sooner head coach, congratulated the Wildcats on their victory. "You've got a great ball club. I hope K-State can beat Cincinnati and win the nationals."

"We played a fine first half," said Parrack, "but we made several mechanical mistakes the second half. And when you make mistakes against a team as good as K-State, you're in trouble."

Asked which Wildcat hurt Oklahoma the most, Parrack replied that it was Bob Boozer. "Boozer always hurts us the most. And Parr also played a fine game, but it's the all-around team that beats you."

Wildkotls Still Need Support After Big Bksztball Victories

COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE AND APPLIED SCIENCE
APR 4 1958
MANHATTAN

By GARY SETTLE

Several miles away there is a medium - size, Middle - Canalern Martian State Agricultural college with a bksztball team ranked No. 1 in all of the United States of Mars Canal Weather Zone One. This bksztball team has gone through three-fourths of its season, amassing an excellent record of 19 wins and 1 loss.

This has been the college's best bksztball season to date in the history of the school. It just recently defeated long-time rival, nearby Middle-Canalern Martian Campanile Culture university, knocking the university's team out of first place in the Weather Zone One race.

Both teams are still ranked high on the weekly MAP and MUP polls. But the pressure is on them, especially on MCM-State, which suddenly found itself leader of Weather Zone One.

The actual name of the Middle-Cannalern Martian State bksztball team is the Wildklotls named after the fierce, cat-like klotls frequenting the banks of many Martain cannails. However, the Wildklotls are often called "Aggies" by jealous rival schools.

Anyhow, the MCM-State Wildklotls find every game they play near the end of the season much harder to win. Each rival bksztball team they meet tries its best for an upset, mainly wanting to be able to say that they could defeat the top team in the zone. The Wildklotls are under a definite psychological disadvantage—many of the players become increasingly nervous and overtense as the season nears its end. But that is only natural. They wouldn't be Martian if they didn't.

Certainly the team is still as talented as it has been throughout the season, if not more so. The scenter of the five-man team is tall, agile, 3-9 Jzkkd Ptqr. The fords are 3-8 Bgb Vooxr, and 3-3 Hmdn Bbtt. Gourds are 3-3 Rtlkmzy DwZtz and 3-0 c$ %?. (c$ %? is from out-of-zone.)

These are pretty good heights, considering the average Martian is 2-11. Even so, they are not as tall as the star of nearby rival MCMCCU's team, Wlxt Xhmbln, sometimes called the Big Diaper.

The MCM-State Wildklotls are trying their very best to remain as the leading team in Mars Canal Weather Zone one. If they can do this, they will probably go to the Martianal tournaments. The top teams from all six weather zones compete for championship of the USM. And YOU KNOW WHAT THAT MEANS, oh yes! Classes at the college would be dismissed for TEN MINUTES!

But such tangible rewards as this are not the true goal of the bksztball team of Middle-Canalern Martian State Agricultural college. These players, really no kidding, play with the best of sportsmanship and a strong desire to win in the true spirit of the game. While coming up against their last few, toughest adversaries, they are needing lots of support from their fans and classmates. Nothing makes the team happier than to keep hearing their supports squeaking and hollering, "Yay, Jzkkd!"

A Campus-to-Career Case History

Paul Twigg's Baby

Paul A. Twigg had been with Michigan Bell Telephone Company for about a year when he was assigned to a project that was a "dream" for a young architectural engineer. He was to supervise construction of a 6-story, 175,000-square-foot addition to the telephone building in Grand Rapids.

"For the next two years," Paul says, "I lived with the job as assistant to the Project Engineer. I interpreted the architect's plans and specifications for the contractor, inspected construction, made on-the-spot revisions where necessary, and worked out the many problems which arise on a project of this size.

"I kept the Engineering office in Detroit informed through daily logs and weekly progress reports. My boss provided reassuring supervision and advice on major problems by means of periodic visits to the job."

The building was completed last August. Understandably, Paul thinks of it as his "two-million-dollar baby."

"An assignment like this really gives you a feeling of accomplishment," Paul says. "It provides invaluable experience in your field. In fact, I've already been able to complete the first section of my Professional Registration Examination as an Architectural Engineer."

To engineers in many fields, the Bell Telephone Companies offer big and interesting assignments—assignments that challenge your ability, capitalize on your training and provide real advancement opportunities.

Many young men are finding interesting and rewarding careers in the Bell Telephone Companies. Find out about the career opportunities for you. Talk with the Bell interviewer when he visits your campus. And read the Bell Telephone booklet which is on file in your Placement Office.

Accompanist's Life Is Assembly Fare

Gerald Moore, English accompanist, wit, and author will appear here tomorrow at an all-College assembly at 9:30 a.m.

Moore, in the course of his second American tour, will present a program based on his long experience in accompanying artists both great and not-so-great. The program will be in the form of a lecture-recital entitled "The Accompanist Speaks."

Moore is the author of two books, "The Unashamed Accompanist" and "Singer and Accompanist." He has also done much to make people realize what the art of accompaniment means.

Born in Hertfordshire, England, in 1899, most of Moore's early musical training was in Canada. He later returned to England for further study. In 1925, on tour of the U.S. with tenor John Coates, he laid the foundations of his international fame.

During World War II Moore played nearly a hundred times at the National Gallery concerts in London which were organized in 1939 by Dame Myra Hess. He gave his first lecture-recital, "The Accompanist Speaks" there. In 1951 he was awarded the Cobbett Gold Medal for his services to chamber music, and in 1954 Queen Elizabeth II made him a Commander of the British Empire.

KS To Greet 150 Visitors

Approximately 150 students from foreign lands will meet on campus Friday and Saturday at International Weekend. Representing many nations the students will come from colleges and universities in Kansas to attend the event.

The weekend will be highlighted by discussion groups Saturday. Topics will be "Religion, Customs, and Culture," "Reaction to American Education," "Racial Discrimination," "United Nations," "International Club," and "Displaced Persons."

Registration will be in the Union tomorrow and will last from 3 to 5 p.m. The students will stay at organized houses. A banquet is planned for Saturday evening with Dean Wunderlich as speaker. The Four Delts will sing.

All students are invited to take part in the weekend activities, according to Virginia Baxter, Cosmopolitan Club's International Relations board.

g Research Program tal, Dean Weber Says

...new long-time objective for applied agricultural research is ...tly needed to solve the knotty problems facing agriculture in ...ears ahead," Dr. Arthur D. Weber, dean of agriculture, said in ...ddress at the faculty dinner in his honor last night.

...e spoke of foreign countries in comparison to the high agri...ural standards here in the United States. "Throughout the ...ld," he said, "hunger is the main factor of unrest and revolt."

He further emphasized that "more than one-half, or perhaps two-thirds, of humanity remains in a permanent state of hunger."

Dean Weber noted that by 1975 an additional 150 million acres of agriculturally productive land will be required to meet the demands of population increase. "If there is a race between population and food supply, it is an uneven race to say the least," he said.

To solve the problem of production and consumption, Dean Weber said, "The really important consideration is for agricultural scientists to face the fact that there have been far-reaching changes in American agriculture —changes of such magnitude that to deal with them will require vision and imagination and a willingness to break with tradition, if need be, to find the answer."

Addressing the educators he said, "We are all on the same team to integrate culture and science." He went on to say, "If culture and science are to be integrated in the future, they must be integrated in the students today."

Lee Unable To Attend Activity Ticket Meeting

Today's luncheon meeting of the Student Council and Athletic Director Bebe Lee to consider the possible solutions of the activity ticket problem has been cancelled, according to Student Body President Neil Scott, Soc Sr.

Lee left late yesterday afternoon for Kansas City and a series of meetings with other Big Eight conference athletic directors. He said that he would be gone through Saturday. He will be unable to attend Monday's regular Council meeting because of the Nebraska-Kansas State basketball game at Lincoln.

However, a new meeting date has been set: a noon luncheon a week from today in the Union.

Kansas State To Observe Prayer Day

The "Universal Day of Prayer for Students" will be observed Sunday by K-Staters. Four foreign students will participate in a special service in the Chapel auditorium at 7 p.m.

Guido Barrientos, a student at the University of Kansas from Guatemala City, will be the principal speaker at the service. "Student Christian Movements Around the World" with emphasis on Latin American, will be the topic of his talk.

Docking Says Fund Raising Still Unsolved

Gov. George Docking has announced no decision on a possible special budget session to break a deadlock over raising additional revenue for the fiscal year 1959.

No immediate concern has arisen in the K-State business office. If no special session is called, however, and if a cut in the College's appropriations is brought about, it is expected that steps will be necessary, according to Business Manager Daniel D. Beatty.

"No action could be determined until the State budget director has made a complete analysis of the effect on the total finances of Kansas (if a special session is not called), and what the policies would be as recommended," he said.

In further mention of the present financial picture, the business manager remarked that it was doubtful that April checks would be held up, although such a situation could develop.

Faculty Well Represented In City Theater Production

K-State faculty members are well represented in Manhattan Civic theater's upcoming production of "The Changeling." Seven of them, ranging from graduate assistants to associate professors, are in the cast and stage crew. Two assistant professors' wives are also connected with the production.

Performances of the play will be in the Community House downtown March 30, 31, and April 1. The play will be presented in-the-round.

The leading roles: Beatrice, played by Mrs. Dorothy Rosenberg, wife of James Rosenberg, assistant professor of English, and De Flores, played by Alwyn Berland, assistant professor of English.

Other members of the cast are Winnifred Pederson, instructor in English, as Diaphanta; Thomas Davis, graduate assistant in English, as Tomasco; A. R. Ferguson, graduate assistant in English, as Jasperino; Leon Damsky, graduate assistant in bacteriology, as Alanzo.

"The Changeling" is a tragedy written by Thomas Middletown about 1600. The dialogue has been translated into more modern language.

Athletic Director Requests Special Meeting For Council To Hear Activity Ticket Ideas

BEBE LEE WAS ONCE again unable to attend the Student Council meeting, which had been especially scheduled this noon to hear his proposal on the activity ticket situation. He has asked now that the Council call a second special meeting next Tuesday to review the suggested change.

If Mr. Lee expects campus opinion—and that of Student Council—to fall in his favor, we'd suggest he try to get there. Offhand, we can think of nothing more favorable for him than to disclose his plan during a winning basketball season—and while the team is on the top side of the score.

TENTATIVE PLANS toward getting an atomic reactor for research and instruction at K-State have been inaugurated, and we're happy to see movement in that direction. Any improvement in facilities in any department is beneficial for the campus—not only in attracting new students but in developing a higher level of education given to those already here.

And if engineers are expected to work effectively in our atomic age, Kansas State is responsible for preparing them accordingly. We're glad to note the College isn't shirking responsibilities in that direction.

WE'RE WATCHING the legislature these days quite carefully—and as students at a state college, we hope you'll do the same. If Governor Docking calls a special session immediately, although he recently declared the decision has been postponed, the news coverage will be competing with basketball games. We doubt that anyone at K-State needs to be reminded which is more important—or do you?

Particularly interesting will be the quick adjustment which would be forthcoming for 1959 if the special budget session is not called. Life just wouldn't be so rosy around a state institution if Docking refuses to do so—and we're questioning how such action could be explained when the Governor is dealing with the finances affecting an entire state—as well as our own College.

And, as if these weren't problems enough, if sufficient income tax checks aren't in before April 15, faculty, staff, and student checks for the month may be delayed. Life gets hard at times—and if sufficient funds aren't available, it looks like those times might be nearer than we'd imagined!—Sue Goss.

Chartered British Airliner Crashes into Fog-Shrouded Foothill; Efforts to Reach 40 Dead, Seven Injured Hampered by Big Snow

Compiled from United Press
By CHAS. H. SCHREIBER

Boston, England—A chartered British airliner crashed into a fog-shrouded foothill of the Pennine mountains of northern England early today with a heavy loss of life.

Officials estimated 34 persons killed and seven injured in the accident, which occurred in a snow-isolated region only 15 miles from Manchester, England's fourth largest city. The scene is about 175 miles northwest of London in the heavily-populated Midlands.

The plane was a British-built, two-engine "Bristol freighter," owned by the Silver City Airways, an independent airline specializing in overwater ferry flights within the British Isles.

When it crashed, it was carrying a group of auto dealers from the Isle of Man, an out-of-the-way resort island which lies between England and Ireland, on a visit to an auto supply factory in Manchester.

No one knew about the crash until one of the survivors struggled into a television transmitter station atop the peak, where six engineres had been marooned for three days by snowdrifts left by last Tuesday's blizzard.

But neither ambulances, fire trucks, police nor helicopters could reach the scene at once because the roads were choked with snow for miles around—even though it was such a short distance from the industrial hub of Manchester.

Politics Enters Hearings

Washington—The once strictly bipartisan Senate Rackets committee today bucked a gale of political cross-charges to dig deeper into the long United Auto Workers (UAW) strike against the Kohler company.

Committee Counsel Robert F. Kennedy said the investigators would seek more evidence on an arsenal of shotguns and teargas reported to have been assembled in the company's Kohler, Wis., plant a year before the strike began almost four years ago.

At the same time the Senate Rules committee at the request of Senate Republican leader William F. Knowland was trying to determine how UAW President Walter P. Reuther happened to use the Senate caucus room for a meeting with newsmen.

Reuther charged that his old foe, Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.) was a "political hypocrite and a moral coward." He accused the GOP Senator of blocking his early appearance before the committee and of "stooging" for the Kohler firm.

Killer Clear in Wichita

Lincoln — Lie detector tests cleared confessed mass killer Charles Starkweather of any guilt in the killing of a Wichita man and with three murders in New Mexico, officers said last night.

Lancaster county Sheriff Merle Karnopp said the Wichita killing of 56-year-old Paul Williams last fall was similar to one in which Robert Colvert of Lincoln was killed. Both victims operated service stations.

Starkweather said the Lincoln killing of Colvert last December started his 11-person killing spree.

Phillip's Buddy Divorced

London—A "routine" divorce case will be run through London's historic law courts tomorrow in about five minutes. Its repercussions reach all the way to Buckingham Palace.

The uncontested case was brought against Michael Parker, former equerry, private secretary and constant companion to the Duke of Edinburgh, by his wife Eilene.

For all practical purposes the divorce has cost the 38-year-old Navy lieutenant commander his job at Buckingham Palace and, more important, his role as "best friend" of the queen's husband.

The Duke and Parker, a tall, balding man, had been close friends since they met in 1941 when they were destroyer officers based on Scapa Flow off Scotland. The Duke was then 20-year-old Prince Philip, a little-known naval officer of Greek descent. Parker was one year older, an Australian.

Dictator's Son Parties

Kansas City, Mo.—Lt. Gen. Rafael Trujillo Jr., 28, son of the Dominican dictator, will entertain 600 guests here tonight at a lavish buffet dinner marking the 11th anniversary of his nation's independence.

The guest list for the event, scheduled for the grandballroom of the perenially elegant Hotel Muehlbach, included high military dignitaries of the United States and allied countries, plus local leaders in society, civic affairs, and financial circles.

Military guests were headed by the commandant from nearby Ft. Leavenworth, where Trujillo attends the United States Army's Command and General Staff college. Behind him were listed Trujillo's classmates in the college, who will be graduated in June, and all allied officers enrolled at the school.

FBI Checks Mack

Washington — FCC Commissioner Richard A. Mack faces House investigators today to answer charges that friends and money influenced his official decisions.

Mack is under pressure to quit and under investigation by the FBI following accusations by congressmen that he violated the Federal Communications Act.

The investigating House Subcommittee on Legislative Oversight has heard testimony that he took $2,650 from an attorney friend as a "pay-off" in a Miami television channel award. Mack has denied the money swayed his vote in the case.

He said he was "ready" to testify although his attorney was out of town today on another case.

by Eldon Miller

Iowa State's basketball coach Bill Strannigan has become the prophet of the Big Eight conference as of Tuesday night when K-State became league champions by defeating Oklahoma, 68-51.

Before the basketball season started Strannigan put himself out on a limb by predicting that the Wildcats would be the new conference champions—edging out what was going to be a very powerful Kansas university team.

Everyone else knew the Cats were going to be strong but decided it was best to stick with the defending-champion Jayhawk quintet when it came to picking a winner.

Cat Coach Tex Winter was even leery of Strannigan's predictions and said he hoped the Cyclone Coach's accuracy equalled his optimism.

Apparently not wanting his team to be over-awed by Baylor's play, Lambert posted signs in the Montana State shower room saying: "If you must watch Baylor, pay admission."

Seattle defeated MSC, 78-77, in the last seconds of play but Baylor, who is averaging 33.8 points a game, was held to 23 by Montana State defenders.

Oklahoma university begins spring football practice soon with a "dismal" outlook for the 1958 season—only three men return from the Sooner's 1957 starting eleven, center Bob Harrison, right end Joe Rector, and left half Jakie Sandefer.

However, 10 of 11 members from the alternate unit are back so things are not as good for the rest of the conference as they might seem. Many opposing coaches, after seeing their teams soundly beaten by OU last season, could find little difference between the Sooner first and the second units.

Shades of Cyrano! Fencers Are Back

Shades of Cyrano de Bergerac! A new interest hit the campus in the month of February, with the re-activation of the Wildcat fencing club. According to Herman Zillmer, Sp Gr, a club member, anyone interested in learning the fine art of fencing is welcome to join.

The club, inactive for a number of years, had its first meeting of the year February 6 and a great deal of enthusiasm has been shown so far, Zillmer said.

The club had its beginning when the play "Cyrano de Bergerac" was presented at K-State several years ago, and actors had to bone up fast on fencing skills. Zillmer said he was "sick and tired of getting up on stage and jabbing a sword around without knowing what I was doing."

Merle Shogren, USDA cereal techologist, has been instructing beginners in the use of the foil, the epee, and the sabre—the weapons of fencing. Assisting him is Bruce Given, PsP Jr. Members of the club practice at meetings and plan to have extra practice sessions also. A high degree of co-ordination is required for skill in fencing, Zillmer said. He also reported that girls seem to be quite interested in the sport as boys.

Matches with other schools are being planned for later in the spring, when a higher degree of proficiency has been attained. The old Fencing club participated in matches—and beat KU!

Officers are John Barry, Sp Sr, president, and Jan Lancaster, Sp Fr, secretary. The club meets each Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in Nichols 108.

Many Museums Merit Visits from the Curious

Want something to do on the pleasant spring afternoons in store for us—why not stroll around the campus and visit the museums and showcases found in many College departments.

But, you'd better make sure you've got the whole of an afternoon free, if you want to see everything.

When K-Staters hear the word "museum" mentioned, Fairchild hall usually comes to mind—since it is the largest and best known.

In this museum such objects as eggs, rocks, and skeletons can be found, along with many stuffed animal forms. The museum is located on both the first and second floor of the building.

If this type of thing doesn't interest you, walk across the street to Anderson hall. Here on the second floor you will find a display of ceramic and craft articles. These articles are showcased by students in Ceramics I and Design in Crafts I.

Indian Exhibit

On the walls of the room, information cards explain how the Indians worked. Such things as their polishing and flaking methods are explained in these.

A 95-year-old pipe given to the exhibit by Chief Batiste Martias Kootenai of the Flathead reservation in Montana is displayed here. The pipe belonged to his father.

Many reservations and different Indian tribes are mentioned in the exhibit. These include the Pine Ridge reservation in South Dakota, the Sioux tribe, and the Pottawatomie tribe.

Most of the items in the exhibit were donated by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Darnell of Topeka, William Darnell of Junction City, Mr. and Mrs. William Des Jardines of Manhattan, Cletus Weygandt also of Manhattan, and Dr. Linwood Hodgdon, associate professor of sociology who is also supervisor of the exhibit.

Waters Hall

Included are such trophies as the Ralston Purina Champion Intercollegiate team trophy which was won by K-State in 1950, 1951, and 1952. The trophy is located on the second floor.

On the first floor in Waters is the dairy cattle judging trophy showcase. Included here is the second place trophy in "Hoards Dairyman" cow judging contest won by K-State in 1957. Also found here is the huge National Intercollegiate Dairy Judging award presented by J. M. McDonald of Cortland, N.Y.

SACK DRESSES are the latest style in women's fashions. Models Liz Hamilton, HT Soph; Betsy Burnham, EEd Jr; Elaine Arnote, EEd Jr; and Karen Hampton, Sp Soph; are among the first K-State coeds to appear in the "becoming" new sacks.

Fashion-Minded Coeds Strive for 'Sack' Look

By JOYCE RECTOR

There's a lot of talk going around, both pro and con, about these new "sack" dresses. The ladies seem, for the most part, to be pro, and the men, for the most part, are con.

Quite a battle royal is shaping up, between these pros and cons, and there's plenty to battle about, but one thing disturbs me. Why, most of these people who are arguing are talking second hand. They haven't really had any experience with a "sack" dress. That's why I thought it was about time an expert was called upon to explain her point of view. For example, me.

I've actually been in one of these things, and I can readily say that it's one of the most delightful experiences I have ever had, How did I happen to buy one? Well, it was this way.

Feeling the strain of my years to be a little too great, (this was after semester finals) I trotted down to Kansas City on a shopping spree. I had done fairly well (several skirts, blouses, and sweaters) when I came to a very fashionable clothing store. Wandering around the sports center, my eyes suddenly fell on IT. The dress of my dreams. A beautiful straight, plain, bright red "sack!"

Well, to make a long story short, the dress returned with me to K-State, and was diffidently shown off to my sorority sisters.

They were quite impressed and wanted me to wear it immediately. Of course I refused the first few times, but finally, with the promised support of two other "sack" wearers, I sallied forth in red dress, gold beads, and black pointed-toe shoes.

Ah, what ecstasy. I can truthfully say that this is the cheapest, most comfortable, most easily cared for dress I've ever worn. It's a woman's dream and salvation, the most wonderful invention since the fig leaf. I recommend that every woman get one.

What's that? Why haven't you seen me wearing mine? My boy friend burned it.

College Rodeo Approaches; Chaparajos Sponsor Event

By MARGE PENROD

Rodeo time is approaching—which means this is a busy season for members of Chaparajos club, sponsor of the all-College event.

According to Dale Hodgson, VM Jr and president, the club is geared to anyone who likes horses and riding. The purpose of the Chaparajos club is to promote a greater interest in horseman ship, rodeos, and ranch problems as they concern the light horse.

The club is a member of the National Intercollegiate Rodeo association whose purpose is to promote intercollegiate rodeoing on a national scale, by bringing recognition to this activity as an organized collegiate sport.

Kansas State is located in the Rocky Mountain region with member clubs from Montana, Colorado, Wyoming, North Dakota, South Dakota, Utah, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, and eastern Idaho.

Chaparajos applied for permanent recognition on the campus in 1947. The application was accepted and the club has been increasing in size and scope since that date. The club originally had ten members and an approximate yearly expense of $100. Now the club has 40 members and the expenses amount to well over $2,000 yearly.

The most important activity of Chaparajos is sponsoring the annual all-College rodeo. This year's rodeo will be April 26 and 27. Rodeoing's five standard events—saddle bronc riding, bareback bronc riding, steer wrestling, calf roping and bull riding—plus goat tying and a cloverleaf race for women with some new novelty team events will constitute the rodeo events. A $10 entry fee will be charged for the five main events, and a $5 entry fee will be charged for women's events. The entry fees will go for prize money. Trophy buckles, donated by Kansas leather merchants, will be awarded also.

A rodeo queen will be chosen again this year. The contest, open to any woman student, will be judged on the basis of horsemanship, interest in horses, personality, and beauty. Last year's winner was Judy Horn, EEd Jr, who represented Kappa Kappa Gamma.

Stock for a rodeo has already been contracted from Floyd Rumford of Abbeyville.

A practice arena has been set up south of town for use as soon as weather permits. Club stock—consisting of four broncs, two 'dogging steers, and two roping calves—will be available for use.

Membership in Chaparajos is open to any student or faculty members interested in light horse promotion. New members must be approved by the club. Ownership of a horse is encouraged but not necessary. Dues are $3 for the first semester of membership and $1 for each semester therearter.

Meetings are the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month in the Union. Activities of the club are rodeo organization, speakers, movies, picnics, and riding in the Homecoming parade each year.

g wit and his talents as an accompanist, Gerald Moore before a fair-sized audience this morning in an all-College ting primarily on the work of Franz Schubert, Moore played and explained each number, giving excerpts from several compositions. The famous accompanist climaxed the program by playing two Spanish numbers.

Gerald Moore

Moore became a painter for his audience, portraying musical pictures which seemed to delight them. He played moods and emotions graphically, often with extreme contrasts in a single selection.

Facial expressions and gestures added considerably to Moore's performance, as he illustrated in detail pupils, accompanists, and soloists.

Fear, humor, and tranquility were all topics of Moore's musical treatment. "There are two basic problems in accompanying," Moore explained. First, the balance of tone, and, second, transposition.

"We must not drown the singer . . . and often must look at music on the piano written in one key, meanwhile playing it in another. The notes on a printed page don't change."

McCain Informs Bankers Of Educational Problems

President James A. McCain listed needs and solutions to the nation's educational problems Thursday evening in a prepared address delivered before a group of Kansas bankers attending an agricultural school at K-State.

"To section students within our high school according to our ability and give the ablest a sound grounding in the fundamentals is a solution to the nation's educational problems in keeping with our democratic educational system," emphasized President McCain.

"We shall have enough scientists and engineers if we make certain that all qualified youth receive a college education in these fields," he said.

The launching of the Russian Sputniks have stimulated a Great Debate whose theme is based around education, listing its deficiencies in the schools, and proposing remedies for them, McCain said.

"Unfortunately, most of these statements reflect a distressing misunderstanding of the character and purpose of American education.

"Ours is frankly a mass system of education from the kindergarten through the university. Alone among the nations of the world we hold that every youth is entitled to the type and amount of education from which he is capable of benefitting."

McCain added that the reason for scientific instruction in American high schools falling below desired standards is more deficiencies in organization and financial support than a result of shifts in educational emphasis.

Kansas high schools were cited as an example of this belief. A majority of these high schools have fewer than 100 pupils and schools this size cannot employ specialists in each basis field. Some of the important scientific subjects are even omitted. Inadequate salaries paid to high school teachers discourage students not to train as teachers.

"Federal aid is needed if national security requires strengthening the education of young people in science and technology and federal aid to education currently is the only means of accomplishing this," commented President McCain.

However, McCain attributed much of the abnormal growth of our federal government to the failure of the state governments to provide adequate financial support for necessary programs and services.

The Union Art committee is to have two Teas in the art lounge, one Friday at 4 p.m. and another Sunday at 3 p.m. in connection with an exhibit by Midwest artists.

Tickets to Y-Orpheum March 28 and 29 will be available by mail, according to Jim Angle, Eng Soph, publicity chairman. This is the first year tickets have been sold by mail-order. The exact date when tickets will go on sale has not yet been announced.

The main reason for having mail-order tickets is that wider publicity of the production, through newspaper, radio, and television, is being planned. Angle said, "One of our goals is to make everyone in Kansas aware of the fact that Y-Orpheum is a top-flight show."

All tickets for both performances of the show are for reserved seats, selling at $1 for adults and 50 cents for children. Advance tickets can be ordered from Y-Orpheum Business Manager Dick Brantingham, BA Soph, at 508 Sunset in Manhattan, by sending a check or money order made out to the exact amount.

Assembly Speaker Mixes Wit, Music

Combining wit and his talents as an accompanist, Gerald Moore performed before a fair-sized audience this morning in an all-College assembly.

Concentrating primarily on the work of Franz Schubert, Moore alternately played and explained each number, giving excerpts from several compositions. The famous accompanist climaxed the program by playing two Spanish numbers.

Gerald Moore

Moore became a painter for his audience, portraying musical pictures which seemed to delight them. He played moods and emotions graphically, often with extreme contrasts in a single selection.

Facial expressions and gestures added considerably to Moore's performance, as he illustrated in detail pupils, accompanists, and soloists.

Fear, humor, and tranquility were all topics of Moore's musical treatment. "There are two basic problems in accompanying," Moore explained. First, the balance of tone, and, second, transposition.

"We must not drown the singer . . . and often must look at music on the piano written in one key, meanwhile playing it in another. The notes on a printed page don't change."

McCain Informs Bankers Of Educational Problems

President James A. McCain listed needs and solutions to the nation's educational problems Thursday evening in a prepared address delivered before a group of Kansas bankers attending an agricultural school at K-State.

"To section students within our high school according to our ability and give the ablest a sound grounding in the fundamentals is a solution to the nation's educational problems in keeping with our democratic educational system," emphasized President McCain.

"We shall have enough scientists and engineers if we make certain that all qualified youth receive a college education in these fields," he said.

The launching of the Russian Sputniks have stimulated a Great Debate whose theme is based around education, listing its deficiencies in the schools, and proposing remedies for them, McCain said.

"Unfortunately, most of these statements reflect a distressing misunderstanding of the character and purpose of American education.

"Ours is frankly a mass system of education from the kindergarten through the university. Alone among the nations of the world we hold that every youth is entitled to the type and amount of education from which he is capable of benefitting."

McCain added that the reason for scientific instruction in American high schools falling below desired standards is more deficiencies in organization and financial support than a result of shifts in educational emphasis.

Kansas high schools were cited as an example of this belief. A majority of these high schools have fewer than 100 pupils and schools this size cannot employ specialists in each basis field. Some of the important scientific subjects are even omitted. Inadequate salaries paid to high school teachers discourage students not to train as teachers.

"Federal aid is needed if national security requires strengthening the education of young people in science and technology and federal aid to education currently is the only means of accomplishing this," commented President McCain.

However, McCain attributed much of the abnormal growth of our federal government to the failure of the state governments to provide adequate financial support for necessary programs and services.

Regional Art Exhibit Opens Here Sunday

The Fifth Biennial Exhibition of Regional Art will open Sunday in the Student Union art lounge and adjoining lounge.

The Resident String quartet with Margaret Walker, pianist, and Sandra Haines, cellist, will present the initial program at 3:00 p.m. in Danforth chapel. Immediately following at 4:15 p.m. will be a tea in the Union art lounge. Prof. John F. Helm, Jr., head of Architecture and Allied Arts, will discuss the exhibit at 4:30 p.m.

Last Saturday members of a jury met to discuss recommendations for purchase from the exhibit in room 207 of the Union. Jury members are Dr. Henry R. Hope, head of the Department of Fine Arts at Indiana university, chairman; Ward Lockwood and Rose Morgan, professors in the Department of Painting at Kansas university; and Professor Helm, director.

Paintings by 10 midwestern artists were recommended for purchase. The jury selected 25 of the 60 submitted paintings to display at the exhibition.

The exhibition will also include 20 invited paintings and four works of sculpture from the Midwest and seven paintings and one sculpture by Kansas State staff members. A special group of three paintings will be exhibited by Ward Lockwood, a member of the jury.

Movie, Art, Bridge Scheduled in SU

A movie, an art exhibit, and a bridge tourney are on schedule at the Union this weekend, according to plans discussed by committees at Union Program council in last night's meeting.

"Thirty-nine Steps," a movie starring Madeline Carroll and Robert Donat, will headlight the activities at the Union. A short feature, "The Helen Keller Story," is also scheduled.

The Union Art committee is to have two Teas in the art lounge, one Friday at 4 p.m. and another Sunday at 3 p.m. in connection with an exhibit by Midwest artists.

The National Bridge tournament will be the center of interest in the games area Saturday beginning at 1 p.m.

The Union Program Council also discussed plans concerning a revision of Publicity committee structure. The Council also mentioned plans for the SU Days March 7, 8, and 9.

All Student Union committee members will wear badges during SU Days to indicate which committee they are working with.

Seniors Note End of Week With Cheers

Half past alligator;
Ram bam bulliator
Chick-a-wa-saw;
Seniors of '58
Rah! Rah! Rah!"

Led by Don Zadnik, BA Sr, and George Hooper, BA Sr, the seniors of '58 will finish Senior Week rousingly at the Missouri university basketball game Saturday night.

Cheers such as "Hot Potato" have been worked out, and Zadnik and Hooper, acting as cheer leaders, will help the seniors show their enthusiasm and class spirit throughout the game.

Seniors wishing to sit in the senior section at the game must wear their senior badges, Warren Keegan, Ec Sr, chairman of the Games committee, announced. He also added, "Any person sitting in the senior section who is not a senior will be evicted." Several football players are being engaged for this purpose, he said.

Copies of the seven "senior cheers" will be available in the Student Union lobby at the senior badge booth today.

Orpheum Tickets To Be Sold by Mail

Tickets to Y-Orpheum March 28 and 29 will be available by mail, according to Jim Angle, Eng Soph, publicity chairman. This is the first year tickets have been sold by mail-order. The exact date when tickets will go on sale has not yet been announced.

The main reason for having mail-order tickets is that wider publicity of the production, through newspaper, radio, and television, is being planned. Angle said, "One of our goals is to make everyone in Kansas aware of the fact that Y-Orpheum is a top-flight show."

All tickets for both performances of the show are for reserved seats, selling at $1 for adults and 50 cents for children. Advance tickets can be ordered from Y-Orpheum Business Manager Dick Brantingham, BA Soph, at 508 Sunset in Manhattan, by sending a check or money order made out to the exact amount.

The director of the show is Bob Hofmann, EE Soph. Bob Snyder, speech instructor and radio disc-jockey, has been giving extensive technical advice to the 13 fraternity and sorority houses that have been rehearsing for the show.

Rehearsals of most of the participating houses began over three weeks ago, immediately after the participants were announced.

Education Once More in Speech Spotlight; McCain Discusses U.S. Needs, Problems

EDUCATION WAS AGAIN in the speech spotlight last night, as President McCain discussed the needs and problems of the present program in the United States.

We can give full endorsement to his suggestion that students be classed according to ability, and we particularly enjoy noting the tentative progress which has been made at K-State in this direction.

The Honors program has done a great deal in separating students who are capable of more advanced study from those who still need remedial and average classwork.

WE COULD POINT OUT, however, that the job has just begun—that many students, yes, even our "honor" students, often graduate with a minimum of effort and an equally small number of grade points.

When it takes students over two hours to write a theme for English proficiency tests, when even juniors and seniors aren't capable of writing the most elementary sentences, and when students must take the exam again and again, it's obvious something is wrong with the system.

WE'RE WATCHING the action of the Faculty Senate closely—because we think in this re-instatement situation they've got a real chance to enforce a theory of education —to encourage students rather than "drags," to help thinkers rather than the professional ten-year "student."

We recently questioned the President on optional class attendance for all students, and he pointed out something which we had overlooked. "There's a basic fallacy in that kind of thinking. What is good for one student is not necessarily good for another," he explained.

IT'S A VALID POINT—at least as things are now. As McCain said, since we are a state institution and required to admit all students who have graduated from high school, optional attendance for all students might not be wise.

Students who are at College because of parental pressure, because they're avoiding the big job-hunt, or because they're looking for a hubsand naturally can't be expected to be vitally interested in classes.

AND WE'RE NOT BLAMING those students; we just hate to see all made responsible for the few.

Although our American philosophy of education may reflect a higher amount of learning for the average person, the top percentage of entering students is sadly neglected—and yet it will be these same individuals who will someday be asked to guide the nation and in whose hands lies the future of the average.

It's easy to pass off review of our educational set-up by saying you can't do anything—but students can demand and the Faculty Senate can act on the problem at hand: that of asking and getting a more mature, more stringent program of Honor students and more intensive help for those individuals who were so badly cheated by grade and high schools.—Sue Goss

Rate Raise Bill To Senate Vote

Compiled from United Press
By CHAS. H. SCHREIBER

Washington—Senate leaders today attempted to bring the postal bill to a final vote with the House threatening to cancel out the five-cent stamp provision.

Still to be acted upon before passage by the Senate was an amendment to tack on a 7½ per cent pay raise for about 500,000 postal employees and several other minor amendments.

General Recalled

Manila—The recall of the top U.S. Air Force commander in the Philippines for living too luxuriously at government expense shocked official American and Philippine quarters today.

Some said the Pentagon may have been guilty of "poor judgment" itself in relieving Maj. Gen. John B. Ackerman of his post as commander of the 13th Air Force.

Student Activities Board Is Co-ordinating Body For Organizations, Extra-Curricular Activities

By PAT ROBERTS

"The basic function of the Student Activities board is to originate, maintain, and dispense with organizations on the K-State campus," according to Pat Loyd, president of the Student Activities board. Loyd went on to say that the Activities board dispenses with student organizations only when they are a detriment to campus life and the K-State extra-curricular program.

At the present time there are over 160 "central interest" clubs at K-State, Greek organizations excluded. With so many student organizations and activities at K-State, it is logical that some group or body is needed to prevent utter confusion in extra-curricular activities. The Student Activities board does its best to keep K-State organizations coordinated and financially able.

Dean of Students Herbert J. Wunderlich summed up the administration's viewpoint on the Activities board by saying: "The Student Activities board is a body that serves as the meeting ground of students and faculty in planning and developing our extra-curricular activities on campus."

In the SGA's constitution the first thing that is mentioned about student organizations is that the Student Activities board acting under the Student Council has the authority to approve or disapprove requests for recognition from any organization.

Under the section of student organizations the constitution says, "All student organizations other than fraternities or sororities are supervised by the Student Activities board, which is composed of four faculty members appointed by the Council of Student Affairs (subject to approval by the Student Council) and seven student members appointed by the Student Council.

The constitution gives the Activities board power to:

1. Recognize organizations as K-State organizations.

2. Require reports from each campus organization regarding officers and finances at the start of each fall semester. The reports are turned over to the College administration later.

3. Regulate initiation stunts.

A very good example of how the Activities board works was the recent action taken by the board on Scabbard and Blade's request for the Military ball.

"We found that Scabbard and Blade did not have one-third the financial backing needed to sponsor such an event. We did not want to see them, or anyone for that matter, become financially embarrassed. Consequently we turned them down on the military ball with the eventual result that they worked until they had the financial backing," said Pat Loyd.

"All the Activities board tries to do is further the interests of the K-State students. We don't try to keep any projects or activities out just because we want to; we want to see the students' time put to good use," concluded Loyd.

Docking Will Be Guest At Order of Artus Meet

Governor George Docking will be the principal guest at the first meeting of the K-State chapter of Order of Artus, honorary economics society, at a dinner at the Hotel Gillette Tuesday at 6:30 p.m.

The Governor, along with President James McCain, Dean A. L. Pugsley, dean of academic administration; Dean A. D. Weber, dean of agriculture; and Paul W. Griffith, associate director of the division of extension; will take part in a two-hour informal discussion period following the dinner.

K-State is one of the few land-grant colleges having an Artus. It was installed only a month ago, after nearly a year's application to the national society. Instrumental in getting a chapter on campus was faculty adviser W. B. Nelson, according to Warren Keegan, Ec Sr, Grand Master of the Round Table.

Purpose of Artus is to "bring honor and recognition to outstanding economics majors, and to promote a fraternity of people dedicated to an understanding of and a solution to the fundamental economic conflicts which are a part of our society."

The K-State chapter of the Order of Artus has nine members. Nearly half of these are faculty members in the Department of Economics. The others are outstanding economics majors.

History Teachers of State To Discuss TV Education

"College Teaching by Television" will be discussed at the 32nd annual meeting of the Kansas Teachers of History and Related Fields at K-State on March 7 and 8. Joseph Hajda, professor in the History department, will present a paper to the group titled "Communist Seizure of Czechoslovakia."

This is the first time since 1938 that the association has met on the K-State campus, according to Homer Socolofsky, assistant professor at K-State who is president of the group this year.

Election of officers will take place at a business meeting after the Saturday luncheon.

Sixteen KS Pairs Enter National Bridge Tourney

Thirty-two K-Staters will participate in the National Intercollegiate Bridge tournament Saturday at 1:15 p.m. in Ballroom B of the Student Union, according to Thomas Parker, professor of mathematics and K-State tournament director.

Kansas State, one of the more than 100 colleges and universities throughout the nation entered in the tourney, will have eight tables with a north, south, east and west player at each table.

Sixteen hands have been prepared nationally by Geoffrey Mott-Smith, author and contract bridge authority, who will also score the hands. Every college will play the same hands. All north-south pairs will play all 16 hands.

The results are forwarded by the tournament director to Mott-Smith who will check and score the individual teams. He also will choose the campus, regional, and national winners.

"It is, as far as possible, a game of skill. You cannot gain stature by doing well because of poor play by the opponents. On the other hand, brilliant play by the opponents will not detract from your score," Professor Parker said.

Prizes will include trophy cups for the colleges winning the national titles, one cup for the college with the pair scoring highest on the east-west hands and one cup for the college of the north-south hand winners. Each of the four individual national winners will receive a smaller cup for his permanent possession, according to Parker.

K-State's campus winners will have their names inscribed on a placque in the Union, which was presented last year by the Association of College Unions.

Directors Chosen For Faculty Show

Departmental directors for "Strike Me Purple," a musical review featuring Kansas State faculty members, have been announced, according to John Robson, associate professor of speech.

Approximately 50 staff members will participate in the show, doing dance numbers, singing, and playing instruments. Matt Betton will provide music for the various performers in the Union little theater.

Robson is directing the show and Dr. Charles F. Haughey, Student Health, is his assistant.

Departmental directors are Prof. Norma Bunton, assistant professor in Speech, and Prof. Marjorie Adams, assistant professor in English, production assistants; Jack O'Shea, art instructor, set designs;

Prof. Orville D. Hunt, professor in Electrical Engineering, lighting; Prof. Oscar Larmer, assistant professor in Architecture and Allied Arts, and Herman Zillmer, graduate assistant in Speech, technical assistants;

Jordan Miller, English instructor, ticket sales; and Prof. John Keltner, head of Speech, Prof. Earl Hoover, professor in Speech, and Mrs. Ann Soelter, graduate assistant in Speech, sketch directors.

Immigration Jobs Offered For Students

Positions in the United States Immigration and Naturalization service are available to qualified K-State students, according to a letter to President McCain. Interested students may get full information from the Placement center in Anderson hall.

Applicants must be male United States citizens over 20, and must be experienced auto drivers. They have to take a written test and meet stringent physical standards.

A part of the Department of Justice, the Service offers a development program starting with training and service with the Immigration Border patrol.

K-STATE STUDENTS INVITED

Wildcats To Meet Mizzou; Out for 11th Straight Win

K-State's Wildcats, with the Big Eight crown and the accompanying NCAA berth cinched, will meet Missouri university tomorrow in Ahearn field house in an attempt to add another game to their unbeaten streak of 10. Game time is 7:35 p.m.

The Wildcats, with a conference record of 9-0 and an overall mark of 19-1, have a good chance of going through league competition undefeated. No team has finished conference play with an unbeaten record since 1946, when Kansas university registered 10-0 in the old Big Six conference.

K-State looked very impressive last Saturday at Columbia as they eased by MU, 82-61, hitting 50 per cent of their field goal attempts. The Wildcats also stopped Mizzou in the first round of the pre-season tournament at Kansas City 59-50.

The Tigers are in sixth place in the conference with a 3-6 record and are 9-10 for the season.

MU coach Sparky Stalcup advocates the same type of aggressive play used by Oklahoma Tuesday, which will make it rough on the Cats' running game.

"Any one of the three remaining teams on our schedule are capable of handing us a licking," appraises Cat Coach Tex Winter, who has guided the Wildcats to their second league title in three seasons. "A win over us would pretty well make the season for anyone, so they will all be dug in."

The Wildcats, who have been remarkably lucky this year as far as injuries are concerned, have two players nursing minor injuries.

Forward Hayden Abbott, 6-4 senior, is still nursing a thigh bruise received in the last MU game. Abbott went scoreless for the first time this season against Oklahoma. Jack Parr, 6-9 center, received an ankle sprain in the OU game.

Both men are expected to play against Missouri Saturday, however.

The bulk of the Missouri scoring attack will rest with guard Sonny Siebert. The 6-3 junior is the third leading scorer in the Big Eight, with a 17.5 average on 336 points. Siebert hit 20 against the Wildcats last Saturday.

Siebert will be backed by forwards Cliff Talley and Roger Egelhoff. Talley, a 6-6 sophomore, scored 16 against the Cats last week while Egelhoff, 6-3 senior, came through with 13.

Glenn Forristall, 6-0 junior, will be at the other guard position and John Stephens, 6-6 senior from Coffeyville, will start at center.

The Tigers will have another big man, 6-5 sophomore Bud Harbin, on the bench for extensive substitution duty.

K-State holds a five-game win string over Missouri, since losing to the Tigers here in 1956. Overall, Mizzou owns the edge, 56-47.

Probable starters:

| K-State | Pos. | Missouri |
|---|---|---|
| Boozer (6-8) | F | (6-6) Talley |
| Abbott (6-4) | F | (6-3) Egelhoff |
| Parr (6-9) | C | (6-6) Stephens |
| DeWitz (6-3) | G | (6-1) Forris'll |
| Matuszak (6-0) | G | (6-3) Siebert |

Gymnasts in Triangular

K-State will host Nebraska university and Fort Hays State college in a triangular gymnastics meet in Ahearn gymnasium, Saturday at 2 p.m. There will be no admission charge.

Wildcat coach Frank Thompson terms Nebraska the best team in the Midwest, and expects it to be stiff competitron for K-State. Nebraska previously beat K-State this season, 58-36. Performing for the Cornhuskers will be Ken Ellis, captain, who is an all-around star, and Wayne Strickler who copped the all-around trophy in six events at the All-College championship held here last year.

Fort Hays also poses a definite threat to the Wildcats, as it defeated a team which last week beat K-State, Oklahoma State college.

Partially responsible for the Wildcat strength are Robert Gramzow, team captain, and Allen Olsen, alternate captain.

Gramzow possesses an all-time record total of 76 points. Olsen placed first on the side horse at the Oklahoma State meet, and is a good performer on the parallel bars and in free exercise.

Harold Loomis is the fastest improving man on the team, declares Coach Thompson. He took first place on the high bar, and placed high on tne flying rings and trampoline at Oklahoma State.

Two Wildcat gymnasts, Bob Campbell and Mike Dziura, have been out with the flu. Dziura will be unable to compete in Saturday's events.

K-State's events and entries:

Free exercise—Allen Olsen, George Ouye, and Robert Gramzow.
Trampoline—Ted Bare, Harold Loomis, and Gramzow.
Side horse—Ron Leslie, Ouye, and Olsen.
High-bar—Bob Gampbell, Bare, and Loomis.
Parallel bars—Leslie, Bare, Gramzow, and Olsen.

Cats and C-Mines In Wrestling Meet

K-State's wrestlers meet the Colorado School of Mines in Ahearn gymnasium tonight at 7:30 p.m.

This will be the last dual competition for the Cat wrestlers this year. K-State, which has a 4-8 record for the season, will begin preparation for the Big Eight meet at Ames, Iowa, March 14 and 15, after this match.

K-State wins this year have come against Fort Hays State college (twice), Cornell college, and Nebraska university. The Wildcats have dropped matches to Oklahoma State, Oklahoma, Minnesota, Mankato State, Colorado State, Colorado, Iowa State, and Iowa State Teachers college.

K-State lineup:
Bill Youngers—123 pounds
Russell Grant—130 pounds
Riley Miller—137 pounds
Marvin Everist—147 pounds
Pat Doyle—157 pounds
Ray Glaze (captain)—167 pounds
Gary Haller—177 pounds

NCAA Grants Rights For Grid Telecasts

Kansas City, Mo., (U.P.)—The National Collegiate Athletic association announced today its 1958 football television plan had been approved overwhelmingly by member schools.

The NCAA said the National Broadcasting company had been granted rights to carry the nine national televised games.

NCAA Executive Director Walter Byers said the Association's membership voted 194-14 to approve the plan, which is identical in most of its basic features to the plan which has controlled telecasting of college football the past two seasons.

The plan will leave open for national telecasts, September 20, October 4, November 27, (Thanksgiving Day), November 29 and December 6. The four additional national game of the week dates are to be selected by sponsors within two weeks.

The plan will leave open four four Saturdays for regional telecasts with schools making their own arrangements for telecasting, subject to appearance restrictions.

MY CLOSEST SHAVE by Barnaby Conrad
Bullfighter and Author

"My closest shave was in Mexico when I was 18," says Barnaby Conrad, author of the best selling books Matador and Gates of Fear. "I went to a bullfight, thought it looked easy, and jumped into the ring with a fighting bull. It charged . . . and if it hadn't been for the quick work of the professionals, I'd have been a goner. Later I went to Spain and really studied the dangerous art, but I never had a closer call than when I thought 'la fiesta brava' was easy!"

For YOUR Close Shaves, try new Colgate Instant Shave. It's the quickest, easiest way ever. Your razor glides as smoothly as a matador's cape. Shaves your whiskers, saves your skin. A great shave buy for the tough-beard guy!

"Jockey brand T-Shirts helped me make varsity!"

"There were at least twenty of us unknown freshmen at basketball practice that day. Suddenly, the coach was pointing at me. 'Hey you!' he called. 'You in the good looking T-shirt, get in there and show me what you can do!' That's how Jockey T-shirts opened my door to stardom.

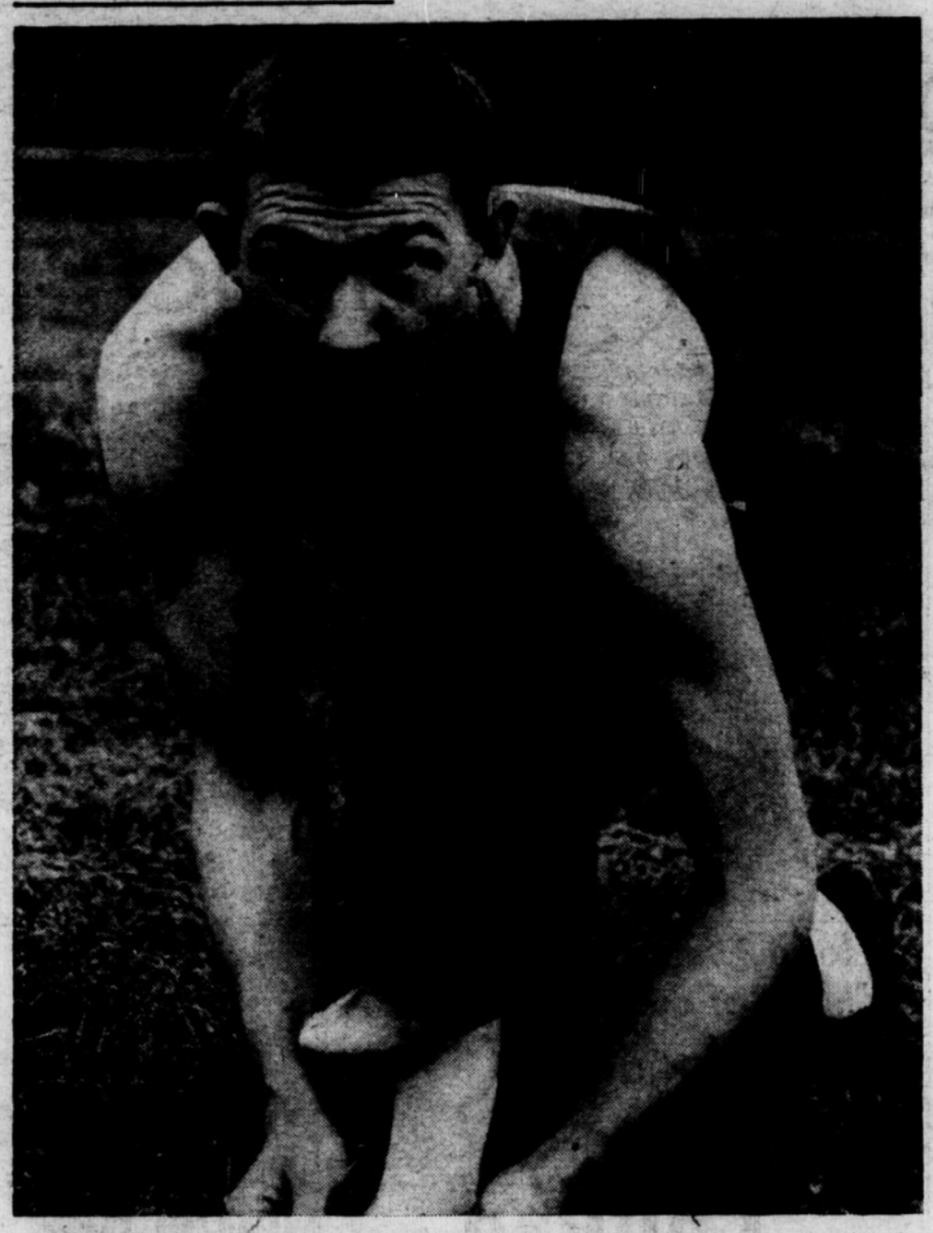

"I'm sure that Jockey T-shirts are the big reason I'm such a big star today. The twin-stitch collar that lies flat and smooth, the body of the shirt that fits just right—not too tight or loose—these are the reasons I'm such a comfortable star."

Jockey T-shirts are tailored extra long to stay tucked in. Free, comfortable arm movement guaranteed.

Track Records Threatened In Conference Indoor Meet

K-STATE'S DeLOSS DODDS will be competing in the mile relay and 440-yard dash at the Big Eight Indoor Track meet. Dodds is the leading scorer with 26 points for the season.

The Big Eight record book is expected to be rewritten at the conference indoor track meet Friday and Saturday at Municipal auditorium in Kansas City when some of the nation's top performers will be in action.

K-State's hope of breaking a Big Eight meet record lies in the mile relay team. The meet record is presently set at 3:20.0 which was set by Oklahoma in 1956. The Wildcat foursome, composed of Dave Burton, Larry French, Jim Vader, and DeLoss Dodds, has a top time of 3:19.1.

The Big Eight dash field will be loaded with exceptionally fine talent this year with Nebraska's Keith Gardner, Kansas' Charlie Tidwell, Oklahoma's Dee Givens, and Oklahoma State's Orlando Hazley heading the list.

Tidwell's best in the dash is a blazing 6.0 while Gardner was clocked at 6.1. Givens and Hazley have been clocked at 6.2.

Gardner, a member of the Jamaican Olympic team in 1956, will also be eyeing the high and low hurdle marks. He has run the two races in 7.3 and 6.7 respectively which breaks the high hurdle mark and equals the other. Gardner defeated K-State's ace hurdler, Gene O'Connor, during an early-season dual.

O'Connor, Gardner, Keith Young, Nebraska; Boyd Dowler and Eddie Dove, Colorado; and Ernie Shelby, Kansas; will make the hurdle field one of the fastest ever.

Cat Coach Ward Haylett will be counting on Dodds to place high in the 440-yard dash along with anchoring the mile relay team. Dodds' top mark is 48.9 which falls short of the league record of 48.6 held by K-State's Thane Baker, 1953.

Ernie Shelby will be the meet favorite in the broad jump. The Kansas sophomore has leaps of 25-4 and 25-3¾, which rate him as one of the top collegiate jumpers.

K-State's Jim Cain, who has tossed the shot put farther than any other Wildcat indoor trackster, will be in a strong field of shot putters. Al Oerter, Kansas, is the leading national collegiate weight man with a toss of 56-11. Phil Delavan of Iowa has a top throw of 55-3.

A mere inch seperates the top high jumpers in the Big Eight high jump event. Missouri's Jim Green tops the field with a leap of 6-6, while Kansas' Bob Cannon owns a 6-5½ and K-State's Steve French a 6-5.

There is also a possibility that the Jayhawk's basketball ace, Wilt Chamberlain, will compete in the event. Chamberlain is the conference outdoor champion with a mark of 6-5.

Lafene Gives Warning Signs Of Appendicitis

"Students must not disregard possible signs or appendicitis," warned Dr. B. W. Lafene, director of Student Health. "Any abdominal pain could be acute appendicitis until proven otherwise," he said.

"I want to stress that the Student Health emergency room is open 24 hours a day, seven days a week. There is no excuse for not coming for such an emergency," said Dr. Lafene.

Dr. Lafene mentioned three points to be observed:

1. If pain occurs and is followed by nausea, vomiting or diarrhea, it indicates acute appendicitis.

2. If you have abdominal pain, don't take laxatives.

3. Please report to Student Health early.

State Methodist Confab Scheduled This Weekend

Students from 11 Kansas colleges will be in Manhattan this weekend attending the Kansas Methodist Student movement. Approximately 270 students will participate in the conference. Wesley Foundation and Older Youth Fellowship members will be hosts to the conferees.

Among the colleges represented are Kansas State college, Kansas Wesleyan university, Ft. Hays State Teachers' college, Baker university, Emporia State Teachers' college, Kansas university, Southwestern college, and Pittsburg State Teachers' college.

The principal speaker for the conference will be Dr. Carl Mihalson, professor at Drew university, Madison, N.J. Dr. Michalson is the author of "Christianity and Existentialists," a book familiar to many college students.

He has traveled extensively addressing college students throughout the nation and is considered to be one of the outstanding authorities on contemporary theology. Dr. Michalson will review his latest book, "Faith for Personal Crises," during the conference.

Darrell Lowe, ME Sr, president of the Kansas Methodist Student movement, said that conference program will begin this evening at Wesley Foundation and will continue through Sunday noon.

Highlight of the conference will be a banquet tomorrow evening for conferees at the First Methodist church. About 75 K-State students will participate in the conference.

Mormons Plan Youth Meeting Next Weekend

A Mission-Wide Youth conference for members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints will be in Oklahoma City March 7, 8, and 9 for members of the church from Kansas, Oklahoma, Missouri, and Arkansas.

All groups attending the conference will travel by bus. A basketball tourney, musical contest, and a banquet and dance are among the events scheduled.

The Central Kansas District conference of the Latter-day Saints, which planned the coming event, met last week in Wichita for an inspirational and instructional meeting with the purpose of promoting youth work. The meeting is a quarterly affair. Alvin R. Dyer, president of the Central States Mission, was the principle speaker.

The agenda consisted of meetings of the men's group and of the officers and teachers, a social gathering for the women, general session, and a dance.

Artist Series' Fate Up to SC Tonight

Luther Leavengood, head of the Department of Music and manager of the Artist Series, will report to Student Council this evening on the success of the Artist Series program.

The Council, meeting at Dean Herbert Wunderlich's home this evening at 7, will decide whether to underwrite Artist Series again next year. This year SC underwrote the series of programs $1,800, and sold tickets—both season and for the single performance—to students for half price.

Student Council will also consider the activity ticket question again. Athletic Director Bebe Lee and the Council have agreed on a noon luncheon this Thursday for a meeting, however, and no definite action on the matter is likely until then.

Lee will be available for a question and answer period Tuesday at 4 p.m. in the Union main lounge, according to Dick Payne, BA Sr, chairman of the SGA campus relation subcommitte.

Student body President Neil Scott, Soc Sr, vetoed the Council's action of last week setting March 17—the Monday following the weekend NCAA basketball regional tournament at Lawrence—for this semester's athletic holiday.

Scott said yesterday that he had voted the measure because of the Stewart Alsop assembly that day. The Council will try to come up with another date tonight.

Campus Skyline Gets Six-Story 'Skyscraper'

A dramatic addition to the campus skyline will be the College's first Men's Residence hall, scheduled to be completed in September, 1960. Construction will begin the first of this summer on the six-floor, 600-man dormitory, reported Housing Director A. Thornton Edwards.

Immediate plans call for two separate buildings, the dormitory and an adjacent dining hall, with an approximate construction cost total of $2,400,000. They will be built on the site now being cleared west of the ROTC drill field. Future plans, Edwards said, include the later construction of an identical men's dormitory just west of the first one, so eventually 1,200 men can be accommodated in that block.

This will be a major step in effecting the housing policy of Kansas State college which contemplates providing on-campus housing and feeding for all undergraduate single women and all first year single men. At the present, K-State ranks eighth in the Big Eight schools in providing housing for single men.

The Men's Residence hall will have three main wings with the front of the building facing northeast. Most of the exterior will be of light-colored brick, because of its relative inexpensiveness, with areas of stone around the entrance to maintain relationship to other campus buildings.

Inside the three central front doors will be a large lounge with individual mail boxes and an information desk. At the rear of the lounge will be a women's powder room, so dates can be entertained in the lounge.

Each of the six floors will have a lounge equipped with television. They will be connected by three elevators. For emergencies, four stairways will be placed in the building.

Floor plans of the top five floors are identical, providing for 51 two-man rooms, three large bathrooms, a proctor's room, and the centrally-located lounge on each floor.

The two-man rooms average about 13 by 15 feet in size. Every room will have a big picture window. Each man will have his study desk, chair, bed, and clothes closet together on one side of the room. At one end of each room will be storage space and a six-drawer built-in dresser.

The 102 men on each floor will have the opportunity to organize, hold meetings, and elect officers if they want to. Edwards pointed out that the residence hall could be the equivalent of six organized houses, each eligible to compete in the intra-

KS Debaters Make Meet Quarterfinal

K-State's women debate team of Martha Atkins, Sp Soph, and Virginia Baxter, Gvt Fr, reached the quarter final round before losing a split decision in the 27th annual Northwest Debate tournament at St. Thomas college, St. Paul, Minn., Saturday.

Atkins and Baxter won five of seven debates before dropping their eighth to the University of South Dakota after the women's field had been reduced to eight.

Nebraska university was the winner in the women's division, and Kansas university won the men's section.

Scholarship Houses, Dormitories To Change Campus Scene Soon

WE'RE EXPECTING quite a change in the campus scene in the next two years—brought about by a vitally important development: the increase in housing facilities at K-State.

With a badly needed scholarship house tentatively scheduled to open next fall, K-State can look ahead toward the best in housing for men and possibly more scholarship houses. Freshman women have dormitories which are more than sufficient, offering campus living at its best, and upperclass women's dorms are less crowded this semester than they have been in past years.

ALL THIS POINTS toward a new outlook on many phases of college life. With better housing offered, men may choose among 22 frats, nine independent houses, and the newest of the College dorms.

Not only will K-State have more to offer its students, but the dorms themselves will undoubtedly unify those who are now scattered throughout town, living in what may not be the best of housing.

GREEK HOUSING is on the upgrade, too, as more and more plan new housing. Competition between houses will be stiff, as each offers better living in modern structures.

And independent housing will at last be put on equal footing with the Greek organizations. Men will not only have off-campus housing, but also will be able to live in top-notch dorms.

STRESS PERHAPS will go where it belongs, and exchange dinners which apartment-dwellers now read about may become a reality within the College dorm planning. Men won't be pledging for the convenience of living, and we think all will benefit. Certainly, dorm social life should increase with the male counterpart of coed living due in September, 1960!

What we're wondering now is whether Edwards will see to it that the new dorms will come with a built-in set of "files"—on tests, profs, etc.—which seems to enhance Greek living quarters.—Sue Goss.

Plane Hostages Doublecrossed By North Korean Communists

Compiled from United Press
By CHAS. H. SCHREIBER

Panmunjom, Korea — The Communists pulled a diplomatic doublecross today by refusing to release 27 persons—including two Americans and two Germans—kidnapped by red gunmen who hijacked an airliner last month.

U.S. Navy Capt. George W. Kehl called in vain for the release of the travelers, who he said are being held by the reds as "hostages for political purposes."

The Communists in a radio broadcast Saturday had promised to set all or most of the prisoners free.

American and German diplomats and some Korean Red Cross officials accompanied Kehl to today's futile meeting of the United Nations Truce secretariat here in the hope that the Communists would keep their word.

Red Col. Kim Joom Kyung, however, merely repeated the Communist demand that South Korea dicker with the Communists for the release of the captives.

"If your side has any plans of South Korean authorities or other governments concerned for repatriation of those desiring to go home, I am ready to transmit them to the higher authorities of my government," he said.

'Witness for the Prosecution' Proves Top-Notch; Walt Disney's 'Old Yeller' Brings Laughs, Tears

Strike up the band for the successes of the directors and producers of "Witness for the Prosecution," a wonderful adaptation of Agatha Christie's most famous international success.

Yes, we were skeptical too. We haven't lived for 50 years but this is undoubtedly the best suspense story in our 20. Suspense according to Webster's New World Dictionary is the state of being undecided or undetermined, and may we say that this movie accomplishes the utmost in suspense up to the last fitful moment.

Starring Charles Laughton as the undefeatable barrister, Marlene Dietrich as the sacrificing wife (?), and Tyrone Power as the lovable chap of downtrodden England, the courtroom drama scores a big fat 100.

Spiced with traditional English humor and a heart ailment, Laughton gives a more than convincing performance as the English lawyer faced with a hard to figure murder case. More often than not he clears the air and emerges triumphant whether the battle is with his nurse, his client, or the opposition.

Marlene Dietrich has undoubtedly given better performances. She is limited by her role because of what we define as a change of pace, and she steps out of character far too often.

As circumstantial evidence piled up against our hero, Power, we became more and more convinced that he was the butt of the plot as the situations began to fly thick and fast around our unbelieving heads in the last few blasting moments of action. He never broke character as, low and behold, the cards became restacked against him. He turned in a convincing characterization of the downtrodden heel, and became the object of the last gasp from the audience.

Backed up by Elsa Lancaster and Ian Wolfe, this movie is inded a milestone. A phenomena in black and white photography and an exemplification of human nature blinded slightly by love, "Witness for the Prosecution" will undoubtedly stand tall in the memories of all who see it.—Madsen

Calling all dog lovers! Walt Disney's "Old Yeller" is currently capturing young and old hearts alike at the Wareham theater. There are many heart-warming chuckles, and in some cases, tears derived from the movie.

Good old Fess Parker mitt mustache plays the daddy and Dorothy McGuire is mummy. Their two sons, Jeff York and Tommy Kirk, steal the show not to mention Old Yeller, himself, who by the way is cast perfectly and does a very convincing job as a dog.

The story briefly—Daddy leaves the homestead for four months to sell his cows, leaving his older son in charge of the farm. Old Yeller, a stray dog, makes a grand entrance chasing a rabbit. Older brother doesn't go for Old Yeller because the happy-go-lucky dog is responsible for the destruction of 50 yards of fencing and this means that bad word—work.

Little brother stamps his feet and says "I WANT A DOG," and there you are. Old Yeller has to tangle with a bear to prove his worth before the big brother has any use for him.

After round one with the bear, Old Yeller takes on a herd of racoons, wild hogs, and finally a mad wolf.

The movie is actually quite simple and easy to follow. Most college students should be able to understand the trials and errors of Old Yeller, who definitely leads a dog's life.—Jackson.

Wildcats Invade NU Tonight After Battling Past Mizzou

WHOOPS! K-STATE GUARD Don Matuszak (20) slips to the floor as he drives around Missouri forward Cliff Talley in Saturday's game. MU guard Glenn Forristall (45) follows the play.

K-State's basketball team is having little time to heal its bruises after Saturday's pre-NCAA "contact scrimmage" victory over Missouri, 86-75, as the Wildcats invode Nebraska university at Lincoln tonight at 8:05 p.m.

Nebraska will be fresh with more than a week's rest after its 43-41 upset over Kansas and the Cats, who are finding their No. 1 national ranking more burdening with every game, will probably be in for another hard time.

Center Jack Parr, who missed the MU game because of illness, may also be out of action tonight. Parr did not go to Lincoln with the team yesterday but was supposed to join the Cats sometime today if he was feeling well enough to play.

K-State may have the conference championship sacked away but it is by no means finishing its Big Eight schedule in a "just for fun" atmosphere.

Saturday night's game is indicative of the resistance being offered by other league teams as the Cats had to batter their way to a 10-0 conference mark and a 20-1 overall record.

The Missouri "clubbing contest" developed into an early free-for-all and before halftime the 11,500 Ahearn field house fans were treated with more than basketball entertainment.

Shortly before intermission K-State's Glenn Long and the Tigers' Glenn Forristall were banished from the game for fighting. There was also an extensive verbal battle between the two coaches—Tex Winter of K-State and Sparky Stalcup of Missouri—throughout the first period.

K-State, led by 6-8 Bob Boozer who scored 35 points, maintained control of the game all the way as the Wildcat's hit a torrid 52.6 per cent of their shots from the field. Missouri, paced by 6-6 sophomore Cliff Talley's 16 point output, hit for 33.9 per cent.

Wally Frank, who started in place of Parr, scored 14 points and was the games leading rebounder with 12.

K-State Defeated By NU Gymnasts

Nebraska's gymnastics team defeated K-State 78-34 Saturday in a dual meet in Ahearn gymnasium.

The Cornhuskers, with six firsts in the seven event meet, were led by Phillip Hall, who notched 23 points for individual honors. Robert Gramzow scored 15 for the Wildcats.

The meet was originally scheduled as a triangular, but Ft. Hays, the third team, was unable to make the trip because of snow and poor road conditions.

'Skyscraper' Comes To K-State Campus

mural program for sports and scholarship.

The entire building will be piped for air conditioning but air conditioning will not be installed during construction of the dorm to cut initial costs. Edwards said it can easily be added later, when finances will better permit it.

A married man will be hired as director of the residence hall. His office and a private apartment for him and his family will be on the first floor.

In addition to the heating and plumbing facilities, the basement will contain a laundry room equipped with several washing machines and driers available to the men at no extra charge.

The tentative cost to the men for room and board, according to Edwards, will be $315 a semester. He said it may change by 1960, but it will be about the same as the amount the women pay.

Food service will be provided for the men in a separate two-story building just southwest of the residence hall. Edwards explained that having kitchen facilities away from the living quarters will eliminate the food smells that are often noticed as high as the top floors in the women's residence halls. It will also remove the fire hazard of kitchen appliances and stoves.

The lower floor of the food service building will house the service facilities and utilities, offices for personnel in charge of food preparation, a lounge, a snack bar, and extensive storage area.

Upstairs will be the kitchen, designed to prepare food for 1,200 men, surrounded on three sides by dining rooms. There will be a large 200-man dining room and two 100-man dining rooms which can be partitioned into smaller areas, similar to the present Union cafeteria and state room.

SCIENCE MADE SIMPLE: NO. 2

Though this column is intended solely as a vehicle for well-tempered drollery, the makers of Marlboro have agreed to let me use this space from time to time for a short lesson in science. They are the most decent and obliging of men, the makers of Marlboro, as anyone can tell from sampling their product. Only from bounteous hearts could come such a lot to like—such filter, such flavor, such flip-top box. The filter works; the flavor pleases; the box protects. Who can resist such a winning combination? Surely not I.

Today let us take up the science of medicine, which was invented in 1066 by a Greek named Hippocrates. He soon gathered around him a group of devoted disciples whom he called "doctors." The reason he called them "doctors" was that they spent all their time sitting around the dock and shooting the breeze. In truth, there was little else for them to do because disease was not invented until 1477.

After that, doctors became very busy, but it must be admitted that their knowledge of medicine was lamentably meagre. They knew only one treatment—a change of climate. For example, a French doctor would send all his patients to Switzerland. A Swiss doctor, on the other hand, would send all his patients to France. By 1789 the entire population of France was living in Switzerland, and vice versa. This later became known as the Black Tom Explosion.

Not until 1924 did medicine, as we know it, come into being. In that year in the little Bavarian village of Pago-Pago an elderly physician named Winko Sigafoos discovered the hot water bottle. He was, of course, burned as a witch, but his son Lydia, disguised as a linotype, made his way to America where he invented the Mayo Brothers.

Medicine, as it is taught at your very own college, can be divided roughly into two classifications. There is internal medicine, which is the treatment of interns, and external medicine, which is the treatment of externs.

Diseases also fall into two broad categories—chronic and acute. Chronic disease is, of course, inflammation of the chron, which can be mighty painful, believe you me! Last summer my cousin Haskell was stricken with a chron attack while he was out picking up tinfoil, and it was months before the wretched boy could straighten up. In fact, even after he was cured, Haskell continued to walk around bent over double. This went on for several years before Dr. Caligari, the lovable old country practitioner who treats Haskell, discovered that Haskell had his trousers buttoned to his vest.

Two years ago Haskell had Addison's disease. (Addison, curiously enough, had Haskell's.) Poor Haskell catches everything that comes along. Lovable old Dr. Caligari once said to him, "Son, I guess you are what they call a natural born catcher."

"The joke is on you, Doc," replied Haskell. "I am a third basemen." He thereupon fell into such a fit of giggling that the doctor had to put him under sedation, where he is to this day.

But I digress. We were discussing medicine. I have now told you all I can; the rest is up to you. Go over to your med school and poke around. Bring popcorn and watch an operation. X-ray each other. Contribute to the bone bank . . . And remember, medicine can be fun!

Five-Weeks Tests Upon Us Despite Senate's New Rule

TERRY WITTEK, Sp Jr, prepares for a long siege of studying for five-weeks tests—or maybe she's just getting a head start on seven-weeks tests. At any rate, the situation seems to be confusing to students and professors alike—with students coming out on the short end of the bargain.

"To be or not to be, that is the question." And that question concerns the status of five-weeks tests in view of the change in K-State testing policy announced by the Faculty Senate.

Instead of the five- and nine-weeks tests which were given in the past, tests are supposed to be given during the seventh week. This seems to have led to mass confusion, as many profs are giving tests this week anyway.

Through calls to the various departments, it was learned professors giving five-weeks tests are many. One secretary reported that every professor in the department was giving at least one five-weeks test.

Eight instructors in the Agricultural Engineering department are giving five-weeks tests. Four tests are scheduled in Architecture and Allied Arts. The General Studies department will give Man's Physical World and Biology tests during the fifth week, but the Social World test will be during the seventh week.

A secretary reported that "about half" of the 29 instructors in the Department of Economics and Sociology are giving tests this week. "There really dosen't seem to be any difference in the number of tests from any other year," she said. The History, Government and Philosophy department also expects about one-half of the professors to give tests.

The Psychology department has been giving tests for the past week, while Mathematics is extending its tests over a two-week period.

Athletic Holiday Added To Easter

Student Council members voted to have an athletic holiday added to Easter vacation April 8, at the meeting last night at the home of Herbert J. Wunderlich, dean of students.

Council members also passed unanimously a recommendation for next year's Council on the insurance program: that the Mutual of Omaha company plan be accepted as the hospitalization, health, and accident insurance program providing the company will make their proposed plan more precise and propose a practical plan of administration which meets the approval of the Student Health Insurance committee.

It was decided to allot the cheerleaders $210 ($30 each) to go to Louisville, Ky., if the basketball team qualifies for the finals.

Four recommendations were passed concerning Student Activities board, including one which was amended at the meeting.

The four rulings:

1. That the five main responsibilities of the Student Activities board as outlined by the Faculty Council on Student Affairs be divided into five subcommittees.
2. That a Board member head each of these subcommittees.
3. That the Student Activities board be allowed to select the subcommittee members from applications which were considered for the Board at the beginning of this year in addition to applications which are received from the committee co-ordinating staff, subject to the approval of Student Council.
4. That these committees review policy and carry on investigations and functions as set down in each outlined responsibility.

The Council voted to pay the registration fee for the financially-deficit Political Science club to send seven delegates to the Mock United Nations assembly session at Kansas university March 13 and 14.

The Council passed a motion to appoint four students to serve as an SGA secretarial staff in the SGA office. The coeds: Kay Insley, BA Fr; Judy Harbaugh, BA Fr; Evelyn Ramey, SEd Fr; and Alyce Lambert, ML Fr.

Union's Party Carried Live On Television

A three-hour live television program will originate from the Union Saturday afternoon to highlight its second birthday party.

WIBW television will also have equipment on campus for the K-State-KU basketball game that night for the first live TV show to originate in Manhattan. The Union broadcast will include a talent show and interviews from 3:30 to 6:30 p.m.

It was announced in the Union Governing board meeting last night that applications for positions on the Board can be picked up from now until March 17 in the office of Loren Kottner, Student Union director.

There are seven openings for students on the board. Following interviews by the board two names for each position will be submitted to the Student council for final approval March 31.

Jim Smith, VM Sr, was elected temporary chairman of the UGB to fill a vacancy left by the resignation of Keith Swenson, Ar 05.

Mike Dole, ChE Jr, reporting on the Union dance committee, suggested that a few middle sized bands be scheduled instead of so many small ones to go along with the two big name bands each year.

Controversy Raised By Danforth Picture

When the late Dr. William Danforth set up his memorial foundation for the advancement of religion on college campuses, he included several requirements which must be fulfilled to obtain funds for building Danforth chapels.

One of the conditions which must be fulfilled concerns the painting of Christ in Gethsemane of which Dr. Danforth was very fond. This painting, he stipulated, must hang in every Danforth chapel. One of the paintings hangs in K-State's chapel.

Now the foundation is trying to do something about this requirement. The paintings, which are done by an artist in St. Louis, are considered a waste of money, anything but good art work, and should be removed from the chapels, according to art critics.

A member of K-State's Department of Architecture and Allied Arts, who preferred to remain anonymous, said that in his opinion the painting was "perfectly atrocious," and his only reaction to it is "to try to ignore it."

On the other hand, Kenney Ford, executive alumni secretary, said that he thinks that the painting "serves a very effective purpose in the chapel."

According to Dr. W. C. Tremmel, director of religious activities, the administrators of the fund no longer are enforcing the rule that the painting must be hung in Danforth chapels. He said there is a possibility that K-State's painting may be removed from the chapel if redecoration is done.

Clutter of Posters May Be Reduced By Activity Board

The Student Activities board passed a recommendation last night that all forms of outside advertising described in the constitution's by-laws be deleted.

Signs and posters would be placed instead on 50 sign boards furnished by Alpha Phi Omega, honorary scouting fraternity, if passed by Student Council. Further discussion on the sign and poster problem is scheduled for next week's meeting.

The board also heard the request of Lt. Willard Frantz, assistant PMST; Larry North, ME Jr; and Gerald Manchester, CE Jr, that a chapter of the Society of American Military Engineers be recognized as a new campus organization. The organization was accepted and placed on a year's probation. Its purpose will be to encourage military engineering and membership is open to all engineering students as well as those in ROTC, according to Frantz.

Pershing Rifles Designates Kay Fitzgerald 'Captain'

HONORARY CAPTAIN of Pershing Rifles, Kay Fitzgerald, EEd Soph, finds the M-1 rifle a trifle heavy. She was selected from five finalists at a meeting last night.

She will reign over the company's spring initiation dance and will take an expense-paid trip to Oklahoma State university for the Pershing Rifle Regimental assembly March 14 and 15 where she will compete with candidates from 13 other schools for the title of Honorary Colonel.

Representing Van Zile hall, Miss Fitzgerald was elected from five finalists by Pershing Rifle members. The other four finalists are Judy Hafford, EEd Soph, Waltheim; Judy Horn, EEd Jr, Kappa Kappa Gamma; Charlene Strah, TJ Jr, Pi Beta Phi; and Judy Hoy, RT Fr, Southeast.

The five finalists were introduced to the Pershing Rifle members at the beginning of the meeting. Refreshments were served, and the men talked with the candidates before voting.

The woman selected Honorary Colonel at the Oklahoma State Regional assembly will go to Boulder, Colo., next fall to the national assembly of Pershing Rifles to compete for the title of "Brigadier General."

Faculty Gives Exams, Ignores Senate Ruling

K-STATE HAS ATTRACTED what may become a fatal disease. It's technical name is ignoritis—defined by our profession as ignoring the ruling passed and approved by legislative, judicial, and executive branches.

And the most flagrant example of this creeping germ is in evidence during the fifth week of the semester—coinciding, naturally, with the week in which we used to have five week exams. It seems that the Faculty Senate announced the elimination of five and nine week deficiency reports, replacing them with a seven week report. Obviously, the Senate intended for this to go into effect this semester.

"IT MEANS MOST INSTRUCTORS will give tests at seven weeks, rather than at five and nine," A. L. Pugsley, dean of academic administration, explained. But it seems that "most" instructors don't care what ruling is passed by the Senate.

Apparently "most" of our erstwhile faculty members not only disagree with the Senate and the administration, but are also in opposition to the dean of their respective schools. We're not against freedom of choice, but we do wish they'd review the pros and cons to the whole idea.

And, of course, the Faculty Senate should have some information which it gathered in determining the policy in the first place. Perhaps this information could throw some light on the subject and help to get the whole matter straightened out.

Since we heartily endorse the policy, we called the dean's office of the various schools on campus. Out of five contacted, we found one who preferred the old arrangement —and all five said their schools would act in accordance with the ruling.

Somewhere, somebody has gotten confused.

THE ASSISTANT DEAN of Arts and Sciences explained the new program was "an improvement over the old situation." Dean of Engineering and Architecture agreed it was beneficial to students and faculty. Vet Medicine and Home Ec also went along with the arrangement, apparently applauding the Senate's action.

So now, as students study for five week exams, they wonder about the faculty members who are stricken with ignoritis. And as they contemplate the effect—who could blame them if they soon ignored other rulings.

AFTER ALL, if the faculty won't abide by the Senate's rulings (which were endorsed, of course, by the President) —why should students? To what purpose is the Senate's action, and why have a Senate if ignoritis controls the College?

We're certainly not blaming the judicial body—we agree with its program entirely. Apparently, however, certain faculty members decided to take the matter into their own hands.

We suppose students will be forced to abide by individual preference—but this we ask of you, K-Staters. The first prof who gives you a "satisfactory" for a grade—make him eat the card, hm? He had the chance to wait until he knew you better—and you have the Faculty Senate backing you. Too bad it's not a representative body.—Sue Goss

Program Council's Role on Campus Is To Provide Wide Activity Range

By PAT ROBERTS

"The Union Program council provides for all students a balanced group of activities—cultural, social, recreational, and educational," said Loren Kottner, Union director.

According to Program Director Ollie White, "The UPC satisfies the needs of college students for social and cultural expression on a co-curricular basis with their academic endeavors."

"Activities should not be considered extra-curricular but co-curricular," said the program director.

Since the Union is the hub of many important student activities at K-State, the job that the Union Program council performs is one of the most important on campus. The UPC is responsible to the Union Governing board which in turn is reponsible to the Student Governing association. Its funds stem from a budget supported by the general student activity fee.

The 14 committees:

Art, Campus Talent, Coffee Hours, Dance, Flash Card, Games, Harmonizers, Hospitality, Jazz club, Movies, Music-Library, Personnel, Publicity, and Y-Orpheum.

"We have approximately 200 students working for us at the present time. Many of the students working for the UPC now have been with us for over two years. This type of thing gives our organization much experience," said Union Program council Chairman Lowell Novy.

In giving his definition of the UPC, Novy said, "I would say it is a group of students who are interested in putting on worthwhile programs for Kanas State college."

Novy continued, explaining that the UPC chairmen are chosen on an interview basis and then okayed by the Union Governing board.

"That way we get men who know what they are doing to head student activities," Novy said.

Typical of the work done by the UPC is the Louis Armstrong appearance scheduled by the Union Dance committee for next Friday night. If you happened to be in the Union when Kansas university was upset by Nebraska university chances are you were the guests of the Union Hospitality committee of the UPC. The Union Listening parties are typical of the work done by the UPC.

Educational work is also a highlight of the UPC. At the present time a master of ceremonies school is being conducted by the Campus Talent committee of the UPC.

With student activities very important for a well rounded college education, the K-State Union Program council has a big job on it hands. As to what kind of a job it does Union Director Loren Kottner said, "The quality and quantity of work done by our Kansas State Union Program council far exceeds anything in the Big Eight."

Soldier-Driver Loses License; Trial Reveals H-Bomb Towing

Compiled from United Press
By CHAS. H. SHREIBER

London — High Royal Air Force officials refused today to comment on disclosure of a training program for soldiers assigned to tow hydrogen bombs around the country.

Air Force Squadron Leader Jack Miles made the revelation yesterday at the trial of a soldier charged with drunken driving. London tabloid newspapers described Miles' statement in magistrates court at Rotherham, Yorkshire, as a "sensational revelation."

Miles appealed to the court not to suspend the driving license of Air Force Cpl. Ernest Minshaw on grounds the soldier "has had training for towing the hydrogen bomb around the country" and therefore holds a key military job.

"There are only six people trained to do this work," Miles told the court. "Very shortly he will be actively employed in towing these weapons around the country."

Miles' appeal fell on deaf ears. The magistrates refused to make an exception and fined the 35-year-old airman $84 and banned him from driving for a year. Minshaw had pleaded guilty to charges of driving a private automobile under the influence of liquor.

Red Game Continues

Seoul—The Communists, reversing themselves for the third time in a week, offered today to release on Thursday some or all of 27 kidnaped air travelers.

The United Nations command accepted a Communist invitation to a meeting at 11:30 a.m. Thursday (9 p.m. Wednesday, CST) at which the Reds said they would release those "who wish to return" — presumably including two Americans and two Germans.

The meeting would be a session of the Truce secretariat, whose chief Communist member said only yesterday that he had "no authority" to release the travelers, seized by gunmen who forced a Korean airliner to land in North Korea last month.

Duke Gives Up Titles

London—The Duke of Windsor today gave up two honorary military titles in a move some sources believed might herald the appointment of young Prince Charles as Prince of Wales.

The title of Prince of Wales has been traditionally conferred on the male heir to the British throne. Charles is now nine years old. His mother, Queen Elizabeth II, thus far has failed to give him the title, naming him Duke of Cornwall instead.

Windsor was the last to hold the title of Prince of Wales. He automatically give it up when he ascended to the throne from which he abdicated in 1936 to marry American divorcee Wallis Warfield Simpson.

Rough Tactics Cited

Washington—Senators investigating the four-year-old Kohler company strike today called some alleged victims of union management "rough stuff" in the dispute.

They also were expected to hear further testimony from a United Auto Workers (UAW) official, who claimed he had seen "more violence on the New York subway" than occurred on the Kohler picket line.

Chief Counsel Robert F. Kennedy said the Senate Rackets committee had on call some 15 to 18 witnesses. He said nearly all were on the receiving end of strong-arm tactics directed against the homes and persons of both strikers and non-strikers.

Carrie Rides Again

Berlin—The Communists are going on the wagon.

With Nikita S. Khrushchev playing the part of Carrie Nation, the Soviet bloc has opened an anti-drinking drive.

Russians and other east Europeans have been ordered to sober up, with the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia only this week blasting vodka as Russia's "public enemy No. 1."

Excessive drinking has become a major problem under Communist rule. Drinking probably has increased in all nations since the war. But in eastern Europe drunkenness almost has become part of the Communist way of life.

The Hungarian, Polish, East German, Czech and other satellite governments all have taken measures to support a temperance movement.

Campus After Dark Scene of Unsung Activities

The campus after dark may appear to be deserted. Certainly, after the Library closes at 10 p.m. and the Union at 10:30 p.m., Monday through Thursday, there is little sign of life.

But still, there is activity. Life on the campus continues after dark. Who is on the campus after dark, and what do they do?

The light in that building may be an instructor staying late or it may be a custodian.

Thirty-three janitors have the task of cleaning the College's buildings. They work six nights a week from 4 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Guarding the campus buildings are three night watchmen. These men cover the campus throughout the night.

One College telephone operator handles off-campus to campus calls from 5 p.m. until midnight from the main switchboard on the second floor of the Physical plant. Off campus to campus calls after midnight are handled on an emergency basis only by a small switchboard in the power plant.

The power plant is located in the Physical plant, and supplies electric power for the campus. There are three eight-hour shifts a day, with each shift consisting of two men. The upstairs man is the turbine room operator and also handles the emergency switchboard. The man on the first level is the fireman.

Headquarters of the campus police is the Traffic office in Anderson hall. Police are hired by the College, and hold a commission as campus policemen and as deputy sheriffs of Riley county. One man patrols from 4 p.m. until midnight, and another from 10 p.m. to 6 a.m. They double up from 10 p.m. until midnight because that is their busiest time. The campus police have one patrol car.

Acting as College firemen at night are three students who live on the third floor of the Physical plant. They are on duty each night from 5 p.m. to 7 a.m. Two fire trucks are kept in a small frame addition to the Physical plant.

One College fireman also goes to each campus building every morning during cold weather to turn on the heat. He normally starts at 5:30 a.m., but if the weather is exceptionally cold, he may start as early as 3:30 a.m.

Student Health is, of course, open 24 hours a day. One nurse is on duty at the hospital from 10 p.m. to 6 a.m., and one of the doctors is on call each night. It's the exception rather than the rule when the doctor is not called in.

Collegian reporters and staff members can often be found in Kedzie hall until well after midnight, working on articles and layouts for next day's Collegian. Photographers may also work late, developing film.

About 15 chemists are doing research at Willard hall. Often six or seven stay until 9:30 or 10 p.m.

At least a dozen people are usually found in Seaton hall after dark. These are mechanical, chemical and electrical engineers doing research, and architectural design students.

Then, of course, there is on-campus housing. More than 800 students live on the campus. The girls' dorms house most of them. The two home management houses have nine women. East Stadium is the home of 23 men, and West Stadium houses 150.

In addition, there are between 40 and 50 students who live on campus in places such as Greenhouse, Power plant, and Dairy barn.

Finally, there is always activity at Dykstra Veterinary hospital. Ten of the 70 veterinary school seniors live at the hospital for a two-week period. These ten interns answer house calls, accept emergency cases, and take care of the hospital's patients 24 hours a day, 365 days a year.

Norman Held, VM Sr, and Gerald Rousseau, VM Sr, discuss a magazine article over a cup of coffee while waiting out the long night. Veterinary seniors living at the hospital are on call 24 hours a day.

Muddy Union Parking Lot 'Un-Settles' Coffee Drinker

By GARY SETTLE

"Darn those chuck holes in the Union lot anyway!"

It was cold and rainy and murky out. After making several passes through the student faculty sections in the Union parking lot, I spotted a guy getting into his car, ready to leave.

As he backed out of his parking stall, I pulled up behind him. Considerately hurrying out of my way, he spun his tires and flipped mud, water, rocks, and about half a pound of the crumbled surface of the parking lot onto my car. As soon as my windshield wipers shoved the debris out of the way, I peered through a clear spot and steered the waterlogged machine through about 14 puddles into the vacant parking stall. Dipping into a final chuck hole, the car lunged against a concrete parking divider shuddered, and stopped.

I was lucky. I found a place to park.

Opening the door, I stepped out into the rain and ankle-deep into a puddle of water. "Darn those chuck holes in the Union lot anyway!" I says to myself. Tripping on a rock, I stumbled away from the car toward the Union.

The lights of the Union were glittering merrily against a muddy sky. I says to myself, "In about a minute I'll be in there, out of this mud and slop."

Just then a red and white car churned past me, heaving a wave of diluted mud over my ivy-leagues. I turned and hollered at the departing car as it jostled its way toward the street.

Making my way through the last row of parked cars, I slipped momentarily on a submerged beer can, climbed out of the last chuck hole, and hopped up on the solid, level, smooth sidewalk.

Inside and upstairs I approached the state room. There I laid down a smudged nickle, picked up a cup of coffee, and squished my way toward a table by the window where I could look out into the blackness.

This is ridiculous," I says to myself again. "The things a guy will go through for a cup of coffee."

NCAA Cage Tickets Available Tomorrow

Tickets for the Western Regional NCAA basketball tournament at Lawrence, will go on sale at 9 a.m. tomorrow at the K-State Athletic ticket office.

Frank Mosier, athletic ticket office manager, said tickets will sell for $2.50 and $2. Students wanting to see the K-State Wildcats play in the tournament must buy tickets for both Friday and Saturday nights, March 14 and 15.

Mosier said K-State students will have a seating section at the south end of the court in Allen field house. This is the same section K-State was allotted for the Kansas university-K-State game earlier this season.

Students purchasing tickets for the tournament will be required to present their activity cards at the Athletic office.

K-State, the No. 1 basketball team in the nation and winner of the Big Eight conference will face Cincinnati, champion of the Missouri Valley conference, and currently the third ranked team in the nation, in the first-round game of the tournament.

CU, Cyclones Grab Wins

Iowa State, aiming for second place, and Colorado university, hoping to escape the conference cellar, both registered wins in Big Eight play last night.

The Cyclones downed stubborn Oklahoma 66-55 at Ames to climb to a second place tie with Kansas university at 7-4.

The halftime score was 30-30 and it was free throws that kept Iowa State in the game as it scored only eight field goals in the second half.

Colorado got top performances out of its starting guards Gary Schroeder, 24 points, and Larry Pitts, 18 points, to down Missouri at Columbia 59-45 in a battle for sixth place. CU is 2-9 and the Tigers 3-8 in league play.

Baseballers To Meet

Nebraska Halts Cat Picnic With 55-48 Upset Victory

By JIM BELL

Lincoln—Nebraska university's basketball team assumed the role of a giant killer for the second straight game last night as it stunned K-State with a convincing 55-48 upset victory here last night.

NU's Willie Fitzpatrick was the sparkplug for the Huskers as he hit 19 points— when they counted —and grabbed 10 rebounds. Of course, there were some other Huskers who rated some praise. Herschel Turner counted nine points and grabbed 10 off the boards; Gary Reimers hit for 14, too.

It was just not the Wildcats' night. Jack Parr did not make the trip because of the flu bug, and K-State had its troubles from the field. The Cats poked only seven of 25 in the first half and ended with 16 of 51 for 31.4 per cent. Meanwhile the Huskers, playing their slow, deliberate brand of the game, hit 16 of only 28 shots for 57.1 per cent.

At the free throw line, the Huskers hit 23 of 42, to offset K-State's 16 of 21 and provide the victory margin. The win marked the second in a row for the Huskers over a basketball giant—Kansas and Wilt Chamberlain were first, 43-41 —and nationally first-rated K-State becomes the second.

The loss was the first in the conference for the Wildcats, and it left them with a 10-1 league mark and 20-2 overall. However, K-State sewed up the conference crown against Oklahoma last week, and rates a berth in the NCAA playoffs at Lawrence March 14-15. That is what Nebraska couldn't take away from the Wildcats—but they got almost everything else.

Bob Boozer led Wildcat scoring with 20 points. He scored 17 of his team's 21 in the first half, but fouled out with 8:31 left in the game after only a three-point second half performance.

The Wildcats led early 9-3 but Nebraska tied it, 9-9, and 8,800 Husker fans knew it was going to be a ball game the rest of the way.

With Boozer pacing the way, K-State led again 19-17 with 4:46 left on the clock. And that was the last time the Wildcats saw daylight. Turner tied it on a one-and-one free throw situation with 4:28 left, and Reimers broke the tie with another free throw a moment later. From there on in, it was the Huskers' game.

They led 24-21 at the half, and widened the margin to as much as 15 points before the contest was over. But it was not State's night, and Nebraska earned the win.

Statistically, the Wildcats outrebounded the Huskers, 32-30. Larry Fischer backed up Boozer's game-leading total of 20 points with 10 and Wally Frank contributed eight points and eight rebounds. For the Huskers, Reimers was the big gun in the first half, with nine points.

Bush greeted his players with open arms when they left the floor as the game was nearing its close. Forward Don Smidt left with five fouls, and Turner left with a turned ankle. And the crowd was just as happy as Bush. When it was all over, all 8,800 voices screamed as best they could, Bush and Fitzpatrick were carred off the floor, and everyone in Nebraska was mighty happy. Everyone, that is, except the Wildcats.

Fans on Hand To Greet Cats

Approximately 100 students were on hand to welcome the basketball team upon its return from Lincoln at 2 a.m. this morning.

The fans, who built a bonfire in the West stadium parking lot, were apparently not too disturbed over the Cats loss to Nebraska as cheers of "Beat KU" and "We're No. 1" greeted Coach Tex Winter and his players.

Winter said he was sorry the Wildcats couldn't bring a victory home. "Things were pretty rough up there. But we'll get this team organized for the game with KU Saturday and then the NCAA next week."

Bush Jubilant over Win; Tex Says It Could Help

By ROGER MYERS

Lincoln — Veni, vidi, vici — I came, I saw, I conquered. This was Nebraska Coach Jerry Bush's gleeful reply to well-wishers in the Cornhusker dressing room after NU stunned the Cats, 55-48.

The win was Nebraska's second giant-killing effort in 10 days. The Huskers upset KU, 43-41, February 22, and the two victories left the Nebraska coach almost incoherent.

Bush had trouble expressing himself, partly because of his joy, and partly because of the many congratulations and handshakes with which he was flooded.

"I didn't think we could win it," he said, "but I knew we could give them a good game."

It's doubtful Bush could have foreseen just how good a game his Cornhuskers would play. Nebraska hit 16 of 28 field goal attempts for a 57.1 shooting percentage. The Huskers took the lead with 2:54 left in the first half and systematically pulled away for the victory.

However, the loss did sound one hopeful note for K-State fans. Both Bush and Cat Coach Tex Winter agreed the loss might help K-State in the NCAA regionals.

"This is possibly what K-State needed to go all the way in the regionals," Bush said.

"I think the loss will help us," Winter agreed. "They're (the Wildcats) the kind of boys who profit by it."

But how did Nebraska, tied for last in the conference most of the season, beat the No. 1 team in the nation?

"Their slow-down game won it for them," Winter said. "However, those easy interceptions for easy buckets in the second half finally turned the trick.

"I think in the final analysis our offense is what beat us. Not to take anything away from Nebraska, but we couldn't buy a basket."

Bush raised another point. "K-State was looking ahead to the NCAA playoffs. That's what they were thinking about tonight."

As soon as the final buzzer sounded, fans rushed the floor and hoisted Bush and Wilson Fitzpatrick to their shoulders. Fitzpatrick scored 19 points to spark the upset. Once in the dressing room the Huskers waited for Bush to change into sweat clothes and then threw him into a swimming pool in the Colliseum sub-basement.

Then the still-uniformed team jumped in after him and newsmen and photographers spent five minutes dodging inner tubes and rubber balls thrown from the pool. Antics like this are saved for special occasions we're told.

Despite the almost impossible feat, the Cornhusker dressing room was rather subdued. "Kansas was the big win," Bush explained. "There seemed to be an attitude of "don't look so surprised, we knew we could do it all the time." Apparently that was the case because the Husker locker room blackboard carried this epitaph—"We settled the 102 score, but we've got one more."

Grid Drills Will Begin On April 9

K-State's football squad will open spring drills April 9, according to Head Coach Bus Mertes, with the annual varsity-alumni game climaxing 20 workouts on Saturday, May 10.

The Wildcats return 17 lettermen from last season's squad which finished with a 3-6-1 record. The monogram winners are stacked at least two deep at all interior line spots, but are only one deep at ends and in the backfield.

K-State is expected to get considerable backfield and end strength from the freshman squad, however.

Cats First by AP; KU Down To 10th

K-State maintained a slim edge over West Virginia and Cincinnati in the Associated Press national basketball rankings.

The Wildcats had 574 points to the Mountaineers' 570 and Cincinnati's 563.

The 75 sportswriters and sportscasters who voted in the poll gave West Virginia the most first place votes, 22. The Cats had 17 and the Bearcats 14.

Kansas university slipped to the 10th spot after its double loss to Nebraska and Iowa State.

Billikens Take Win From OS Cowboys

St. Louis, (U.P.)—St. Louis university cut loose with a fast break to score in the final two seconds and defeat Oklahoma State 54-53 last night.

Joe Crutchfield missed a free throw which would have boosted the Cowboys 53-52 lead with eight seconds remaining. St. Louis Sophomore George Burkel grabbed the rebound and passed the ball down court to Rich Rogers, who sank the winning basket from 18 feet out.

It was St. Louis' 14th victory against 10 defeats and avenged an earlier setback at the hands of Oklahoma State, which now has an 18-7 record.

Bob Ferry led St. Louis with 17 points. But Arlen Clark, the Cowboys' 6-8 center, coralled scoring honors with 18 points.

Sportcerpts

by Eldon Miller

Missouri coach Sparky Stalcup's recent condemnation of the Wildcat fans is something to which every person interested in K-State athletics should give some thought.

Stalcup said the spectator response to last Saturday's game was the worst he had ever seen. This is quite a criticism when you realize that Stalcup, who is one of the more aggressive and colorful coaches in the conference, has received more than his share of catcalls during his 12 years as the Tigers' head coach.

Such a criticism is not the best kind of publicity for K-State.

"I believe K-State has the No. 1 basketball team in the nation but the crowd is nothing but second-rate," said Stalcup after the game.

Stalcup, whose suit was still damp from a Coke which was thrown on him by an irate fan at halftime, added that it was understandable that a following such as K-State's would be enthusiastic after the succees which its team had attained, but not to the extent that was shown Saturday.

"The problem is that a crowd watching a basketball game, or any sport for that matter, reacts on emotion instead of intelligence.

"The majority of the spectators, normal, sane individuals, are led by a lunatic fringe, the nuts, and fanatics, which compose the small percentage of any group."

• • •

Wilt Chamberlain, now known nationally for his basketball playing talent, may someday become famous in a field other than athletics.

The 7-0 Kansas university junior, a radio-TV major, has begun a disc jockey show entitled "Flip'er with Dipper," on the KU student radio station.

He is taping the 30-minute program for area stations. The show cannot be sold commercially, however, so it looks like Wilt has another talent from which he will reap no profit until graduation from college.

Another former Big Eight athlete, Bill Weaver, is believed to be the first conference athlete to gain fame in television or radio. The former Oklahoma decathlon competitor is now Matt Dillon's game-legged deputy, "Chester," in "Gunsmoke."

Boyfriends Sport Argyles As Coeds Tend to Knitting

By MAGGI SULLIVAN

If you think knitting is a project relegated to grandma's rocking chair, then you're sadly mistaken, according to many K-State coeds. Ranging from socks to sweaters, knitted items make wonderful gifts for boy friends, parents, and that person who seems to have everything.

Argyles are often given to the boy friend for Christmas. Some knitting enthusiasts give a foot-size pair, plus a tiny, stuffed pair to hang over the rear-view mirror of a car.

Knitting a pair of pink house slippers helped keep Helen Foltz, SEd Soph, calm during the telecast of the K-State-KU basketball game. Her next project may be an afghan for her father, if she can find time to work on it. She started knitting semester vacation just to fill up a few idle hours.

Sharon Stewart, Chm Jr, says she finds knitting fascinating, and this must be true; for she has made sweaters for her mother, sister, and herself, as well as making mittens for children's gifts at Christmas. She is planning to knit another sweater in the near future. Bulky-knits are the easiest and the most fun, she said.

A Scandinavian ski sweater with a yoke in four colors is being made at the present time by Barbara Walker, Mth Sr. This is more difficult than a sweater of a single color, but Barbara has had plenty of practice, having knitted shrug sweaters and argyles since she began, about three and a half years ago.

Ann McMillin, Mth Soph, began knitting a pair of argyles a year ago last November, and reports that she has now finished the pattern on one and is turning the heel on the other. She said that it had turned out to be a pretty expensive hobby, though; she's used three dollars worth of yarn and needles just for one pair of socks!

New Personalities, Places Appeal to Mrs. Tex Winter

"To me the most interesting thing about being a coach's wife," claims Mrs. Tex Winter, "is all the different personalities one meets."

Through Tex, Mrs. Winter says, she has met so many interesting people and visited so many interesting places that she otherwise would not have had the chance to do.

Mrs. Winter is a very ardent fan of basketball. In the eighth grade she fainted at a game because of an overabundance of excitement on her part. Still, she hopes that Tex will not coach forever and continually tries to keep him interested in other things, also.

For example, Tex drew the plans and, with the help of Jack Parr, built the living room, den, family room, and the kitchen of their home during the summer of 1955.

"My pet peeve at basketball games is sitting next to someone who is cheering for the other team," states Mrs. Winter. She attends all the home games with Mrs. Howard Shannon, the assistant coach's wife, and as many out of town games as possible.

On game days Mrs. Winter is especially careful to see that everything is just right. Tex comes home at 3 p.m. and leaves at 5 p.m. to eat with the team. "When we win, it is the most wonderful day no matter what has happened, but when we lose, it is the most terrible."

She tries, however, to keep things on an even keel at all times, not allowing herself or her husband to become too excited over the wins or too letdown over the losses.

Mrs. Winter met Tex at Oregon State. The first time she saw him he was playing basketball. Then Tex went into the Navy, and she joined the Waves a year and a half later.

He was stationed in Sanford, Florida, and once out of the navy he went to see his future wife who was still stationed in Seattle. In July 1946 they were married and lived in Los Angeles the first year while attending the University of Southern California.

The Winters have lived in Manhattan since 1953, and Tex has been coaching the K-State basketball team since the fall of that year.

Agriculture Symbolized In Main Chapel Window

Agriculture is symbolized by the main window of the All-Faith chapel, a lovely pastoral scene designed for Kansas. The state emblem, the sunflower, is high in the crown. A border of wheat accentuates the central figure of the Good Shepherd beneath whose feet are five smaller sunflowers betwen two lambs.

The window was donated by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Peine in memory of their nephew, James Perry Jr. of Topeka, who was killed in France in World War II.

Such a pastoral scene was chosen because the interdenominational committee which approved the religious symbolism in the Chapel would not only exemplify agriculture as an art and science, but would also hold strong religious symbolism for all faiths.

The shepherd tending his flocks along with the scene of the sower scattering seed personifies the basic nature of agriculture from which all cultures evolve. Such a shepherd has religious significance derived from the ancient Hebrew beliefs of the Old Testament.

Beneath the Good Shepherd, the Parable of the Sower is illustrated by the modern Kansas farmer. He broadcasts his seed by hand, illustrating early methods. The modern tractor and grain elevators beyond him illustrate development of farming from crude hand methods into the modern science it is today in Kansas.

Other figures surrounding the central panel are Melchizedek, the "righteous king," The Wise and Foolish Virgins, the Prodigal Son, the Good Samaritan, the House Built upon a Rock, and the Prophet Isaiah.

Agriculture is given emphasis in the central panel with all else evolving around it. Smaller windows are symbolic of other cultures in the nation and at the same time of the comprehensive courses at Kansas State college. They represent physical, social, biological, and cultural worlds that are so much a part of everyday life.

The windows are made of glass imported from Czechoslovakia, England, France, Germany, and Italy. They are set in lead and reinforced with steel at a cost of around $3,000.

Lee Outlines Plan To Solve Dispute

Lee said he was in favor of lowering the student activity fee for athletics $1 a semester, and allowing students entrance on this ticket to all sports except football and basketball. Those students who wish to can buy season tickets costing about $5 for each ticket.

"We would be willing to make these season tickets good for reserved seats," said the athletic director, Lee pointed out that the department is barely breaking even at the present time, and looking ahead to the future when we have 12,000 students at K-State, this plan seems to be a practical solution.

Lee said also that if this plan were in effect, he would see no reason why the tickets could not be transferable among registered K-State students.

Of the other Big Eight schools that have the compulsory activity ticket plan, K-State is the only college that is not guaranteed a flat rate for its Athletic department. "We never know how much we are allotted until the Apportionment board decides how the funds will be broken down," he said.

Methods Listed To Help Vets Get Entitlement

Some suggestions to aid veterans in conserving their entitlement (or days training due them from the government) have been issued by Wendell R. Kerr, veterans' service officer. This is because the term at K-State is a week longer, due to the between-semesters break.

Korean veterans under Public Law 550 may have their enrollment certified to the Veterans administration each semester, rather than for the complete school year. This would save five to six days between semesters.

Veterans having questions concerning benefits are urged to see the Veterans' service officer in Anderson 121.

An aria from "The Barber of Seville" by Rossini will be on part three of the program.

KS Prof Aids State Constitution Study

DR. LOUIS DOUGLAS, professor in the History, Government and Philosophy department, is on a commission to study possible Kansas constitution revisions. The commission, formed a year ago, will make recommendations for revisions to the Governor.

By JOYCE RECTOR

A K-State government professor, Louis H. Douglas, is serving on a state commission set up to study the possibility of revising the Kansas Constitution.

Formed only one year ago, the unique Kansas Constitutional Revision commission "will study the State Constitution and make recommendations to Gov. George Docking with respect to the need for revision," Douglas said.

The bi-partisan commission is composed of 20 members. All of the men have been active in public life and the group includes three ex-governors, two Kansas supreme court justices, six members with legislative experience, three journalists, and six professors.

The Commission is divided into six sub-committees. Dr. Douglas is a member of the Committee on Taxation and Revenue, and the Committee on Public Information.

Supreme Court interpretation of the Constitution is one of the things studied by the Commission. "An ideal Constitution should be short and simple," Douglas said. "It should be merely an outline rather than a complex composite of laws."

Two of the problems facing the commission, said Dr. Douglas, are the poor gubernatorial power and the uneven distribution of legislators. As the system now stands, one is apportioned to a county, with a few left over for the more populous counties, Dr. Douglas explained. This means that a western county where the population might be 4,000 will have one representative, while Sedgwick county with a population of 400,000 has only three representatives. The same uneven distribution can be found in other sections of the state.

Athletic Holiday Should Celebrate Athletics Or Be Replaced by Properly-Titled Holiday

WE WONDER when Student Council members are going to wake up to the fact that college students are thinking—even if it's only occasionally. And when this fact does occur to them, we hope they'll take special note that, most of all, students think about holidays.

It has long been the practice to have one athletic holiday a semester. Supposedly, the idea of a holiday is to celebrate, so we can assume said holiday should follow a winning game.

The Council has faced the problem of determining when the holiday will be—since predictions can't always be absolute, as we found at Nebraska—every semester. And every semester they seem to miss the boat.

Did you know we're having an athletic holiday to celebrate the resurrection of Christ this spring?

We've heard faculty—and our representative (?) Council members, too—argue that you can't disrupt a school week with a holiday. It's too bad the Athletic department doesn't revamp the scheduling—and all tourneys—to suit these disgruntled ones.

We'd propose a simpler solution: either have a four-day (Friday, Saturday, Monday, and Tuesday—the Sundays are for free!) Easter holiday and a one-day longer Thanksgiving vacation, eliminating athletic holidays, or, ironic thought, have athletic holidays after we win a ball game.

THE ONLY VALID ARGUMENT we see here is that some semesters we might be celebrating a win by the varsity tennis team, rather than one of the "major" sports, what with team recruitment fluctuating like it does. Of course, even during the worst football and basketball seasons, we'd surely win one game—wouldn't we, Coach?

However, this argument doesn't stand this semester. We happen to have—with only two exceptions—a straight winning streak. What say we celebrate it?

Can you imagine what the rest of the U.S. thinks: Kansas State, with the top-ranked team in the nation and a 20-2 win record, is having its athletic holiday at Easter. We've said it before—let's call a spade a spade.

We've talked to faculty members—quite a few in favor of a mid-week holiday—who remember when no specific day was set. It seems students took matters into their own hands, and simply blocked all street entrances to the College, refusing to allow faculty, staff, and students on campus if a celebration was in order.

Now we're not in favor of mob rule, but we'd like to see an athletic holiday that is one. And if Easter vacation should be longer (we can sympathize with those from out-of-state who'd like to have time to get home), why not let the administration take care of it? We understand that's their department.

APOLOGIES TO READERS on the confusion which resulted in yesterday's report on the campus testing program. The Faculty Senate ruled only on a change in the deadline of definiency reports—which was changed from five and nine to seven weeks.

However, interpretation of this ruling (which we got from Pugsley, the President's office, and all of the deans' offices) was obvious: no more tests at five and nine weeks. In each of the interviews with those administrative officials, there was no evidence of confusion as to the consequences of the ruling.

Apparently from the number of phone calls and comments we received from irate and questioning faculty members, there is either a considerable amount of misinterpretation, or else a number of faculty members disagree with the governing body and the ruling in question.

Student Political Party Plans To Ban Coeds

By Judie Ross

There may be a little excitement in the student elections of the University of Minnesota. From the Minnesota Daily comes the announcement that there is now a third student party on campus known as the League for the Removal of Girls.

So far the organization's only overt action is the issuance of its official "Help Stamp Out Girls" poster. It is illustrated with a stringbean of a coed wearing sneakers and an "M" beany. She is smoking through a long cigarette holder as she reclines against a lamp post. A label identifies her specie as Girl.

The League's formation is a result of an article in This Week magazine by a Syracuse university professor who urged educators to "Keep Women Out of College" and an answer to that article in the Ivory Tower (a students magazine of the University of Minnesota) entitled "It Won't Work." Included with the poster was the announcement of a scheduled meeting. The Daily refrains from printing the date, time, and room because the "gigantic rally to organize a crusade" is not SAB-approved. The League gives reasons for its "Down with Girls" demand:

1. Girls belong in the home, not at college.

2. Girls are looking for husbands, not education.

3. Girls take up room male students could use.

4. Girls add to the housing problem.

5. Feminine chatter disturbs study and classes.

6. College girls are self-centered and neurotic.

Does anyone else get that not-wanted feeling?

•

In a column of the Oklahoma University Daily, a sportswriter made an interesting analogy concerning two K-State basketball players. Roy DeWitz and Don Matuszak are being compared with Sputnik.

•

Things are getting tough all over. Money is an almost "priceless" commodity as three Colorado university freshman coeds found out the hard way. The three girls were caught stealing gas from cars on a campus parking lot. Not only were they caught at the scene of the crime but included in their possession was a siphoning hose, can, and pitcher which seems to be pretty damaging evidence. As a result the girls admitted their guilt and explained that they needed gas for one of the girls' cars. The girls were fined $50 each. Wonder if they made money on the deal?

•

But, girls, at last someone has considered the plight of the female-type person. From the North Dakota State Spectrum comes this perfect squelch . . .

"Why don't you make the kind of pies mother used to make?" demanded the irate husband.

"Why don't you make the kind of dough father used to make?" replied his wife sweetly.

Senate Demos Want PWA

Compiled from United Press
By CHAS. H. SCHREIBER

Washington — Senate Democratic leaders today sought creation of a depression-style Public Works administration (PWA).

Under their plan, the PWA would be set up by law but would not be used unless the current recession deepened into a depression. Then it would be put into operation to initiate such projects as public buildings, hospitals and roads to provide jobs for the unemployed.

Senate Democratic leader Lyndon B. Johnson has passed word he favors passage of a PWA bill to supplement already-rolling Democratic plans to beef up housing, waterways, roads and other federal job-making activities.

Seattle Ace Aiming For Scoring Lead

By UNITED PRESS

Elgin Baylor gets a chance to regain the college basketball scoring leadership tonight when he leads Seattle against Idaho State in a possible NCAA tournament preview.

Oscar Robertson hung on to first place by a narrow margin last night when he helped Cincinnati down Dayton 70-66. However, Robertson's season average slipped from 35.08 to 34.76 as he netted "only" 27 points.

It's Baylor's turn tonight, and if the Seattle ace, who has a 34.55 average, totals 40 points against Idaho State, he'll be back on top. This is a return between the Chieftains and the Bengals, who could collide in the NCAA far west regional playoffs next week at San Francisco.

Baylor scored 32 points against Idaho State February 22 but it wasn't enough as the Rocky Mountain conference champions upset Seattle 71-68 in overtime.

Cincinnati, involved in a close fight with K-State for the regular-season national championship, almost blew last night's game against Dayton before a record-breaking crowd of 15,011 fans at Cincinnati.

The Flyers, after trailing by 17 points midway through the last half, tied the score at 66-all on a basket by Arlen Bockhorn with 42 seconds remaining. However, Wayne Stevens tipped in a missed free throw by Robertson to give the Bearcats their 22nd victory in 25 games.

It was the final regular-season game for Dayton, which will carry a 26-3 record into next week's National Invitation tournament at New York.

Southern Methodist and Arkansas wound up in a tie for first place in the Southwest conference race when the Mustangs whipped Baylor 77-52 and the Razorbacks knocked off Texas, 74-60.

Officials of the two schools will confer by telephone today to choose a neutral court for a one-game playoff. The winner will represent the conference in the NCAA Regional playoffs at Lawrence next week.

Rick Herrscher scored 24 points in leading SMU to its clutch victory over Baylor. The Mustangs opened a 38-21 halftime lead and coasted the rest of the way.

Arkansas also got off to a flying start against Texas, reaching the intermission with a 39-29 bulge. The Longhorns, led by John Shaffer and Kermit Decker, put up a gallant fight in the second half but never caught up.

Former OU Athlete Is In Golden Gloves

Dan Hodge, an unbeaten amateur heavyweight boxer and former wrestling star for Oklahoma university, will tangle with Louis Coleman of Chicago for the heavyweight championship of the Western Golden Gloves tonight.

Hodge, who is a favorite in the bout, won the Big Seven 177-pound wrestling championship three times and in both 1952 and 1956 he was a member of the American Olympic wrestling team. Hodge has also won three AAU wrestling championships.

The 1957 OU graduate has won all 15 of his boxing matches, 11 of them by knockout.

Coleman advanced to the title match when I. C. Coleman of the Kansas City team defaulted in the semi-finals because he didn't want to fight against his brother.

Lost: Department Skeleton; PEs Ain't Got No Bones

By JAY WORKMAN

Skeletons rattle no more in the Physical Education department's closets.

The departmental skeleton hasn't been in its usual rack for about a week now and is missed dearly by kinesiology instructors and students. A theft is suspected.

Anyone spotting this particular skeleton (not to be confused with undernourished students) should report its activities to the campus patrolman nearest him.

But this skeleton is not an every-day, run-of-the-mill bunch of 200 bones; it's headless. Besides that, it's wired together and every bone is marked where a muscle was formerly attached. The Physical Education department was attached to it also because of its aid in classroom work.

The head, or should we say skull, was allegedly stolen last year. But don't fret, organized houses can't be searched without a warrant.

The skeleton is worth over $200—and no bones about it, that's grand larceny. This, in turn, is worth one to five years in a cage (not rib, penal).

Covers Designed By Ellen Dickens

The cover design selected for use on this year's Y-Orpheum programs was submitted by Ellen Dickens, Art Soph.

Miss Dickens will receive $5 and will have her picture and a short article about her in the program.

Her design was picked from 10 entries by the Y-Orpheum program subcommittee, assisted "unofficially" by five art and architecture instructors, according to Caroline Harkins, SEd Jr, program subcommittee chairman.

A Campus-to-Career Case History

"I like (and get) 'start-to-finish' engineering assignments"

"When it comes to making a job interesting, I think the assignments a man gets are more important than the size of the project he's working on," says Roy Vaughn of Illinois Bell Telephone Company. "I found that out soon after I graduated. My first job was with an organization where the projects were big, but the individual engineering assignments lacked variety and scope.

"After this experience I looked over power engineering opportunities in a number of companies. I joined Illinois Bell because it promised the most interesting and challenging work. That was three years ago. My work with IBT has everything that I was looking for.

"My job is to engineer the power requirements for telephone central offices. The work never gets routine. One job may be for a new building, the next for expanding existing plant. And power needs vary tremendously from little rural dial offices serving a few hundred telephones, to big metropolitan telephone plants serving hundreds of thousands.

"But what I like best is that I generally handle the job from start to finish. I determine the operational and emergency power requirements of the facilities to be served, and order the equipment needed. And I'm usually on hand during installation to see the job through.

"Not only does this kind of engineering assignment keep work interesting, but I find it is helping me become a better manager. And that improves my chances for advancement."

VOLUME LXIV | Kansas State College, Manhattan, Kansas, Thursday, March 6, 1958 | NUMBER 99

Bebe Lee Offers New Ticket Plan

Athletic Director Bebe Lee outlined a substitute plan for the present activity ticket arrangement at a noon luncheon with Student Council in the Union today.

Lee's proposal would slice the Athletic department's cut of Apportionment Board money to $3 a student for each semester, or $6 a student over a two-semester school year. However, those students who want to attend basketball and football contests would be required to purchase a $5 season ticket to football and a $5 season ticket to basketball contests. The proposed arrangement might also make available more seats for sale to the public.

The season ticket would be transferable among K-State students, and would guarantee students a place to sit in a reserve seat—eliminating the possibility of a repeat of the overflow crowd at the Kansas-California, Kansas State-Washington doubleheader in December.

Under the present arrangement, the Athletic department gets $8.80 a year from each student ($4.40 a semester). That amount totals about $61,000, and entitles each member of the student body to be admitted to every athletic contest in all sports.

Under the proposed arrangement, Lee estimated that the Athletic department would net about $75,000 next year—provided the plan is put into effect. That figure is based on an estimated enrollment of 7,000, and an estimate of 50 per cent of the student body buying the optional season football and basketball tickets.

The season tickets would admit students to five football games ($1 a contest), and 10 basketball games (50 cents a contest). Students would be admitted to all other athletic contests (wrestling, track, baseball, etc.) on their activity tickets.

Lee pointed out that K-State's Athletic department receives the smallest amount of any school in the Big Eight.

The Council took no action on the proposal. It will be given consideration in future meetings. Today's meeting gave Council members a chance to hear Lee's proposal, and to ask questions concerning it.

Open House Royalty Vote Ends Today

Voting for St. Pat and St. Patricia, Engineering Open House royalty, will continue until 5 p.m. today. Engineering and architecture students may vote either in the Union or in the main entrance of Seaton hall. St. Pat and St. Patricia will be announced in the Collegian tomorrow.

Candidates for St. Patricia are Pat West, ArG Soph, architecture; de Ann Johnston, EEd Fr, civil engineering; and Jan White, HT Jr, industrial engineering. St. Pat candidates are John Quinn, CE Sr, civil engineering; Gary Karst, Ar 04, architecture; and Bob Main, IT Jr, industrial engineering.

According to Don Beck, IE Sr, publicity chairman, yesterday's voting was light. "We are urging all engineering and architecture students to vote. St. Pat and St. Patricia should represent all students in the department instead of a minority," he said.

College Operators Have Two-fold Job

COLLEGE OPERATOR Lorain Schurr plugs in a College extension number on the switchboard located in the Physical Plant. College operators put through approximately 1,100 calls to 700 campus phones daily.

Recently a man called the K-State telephone operator to ask an urgent question: What should be the temperature of her sick parakeet? Questions ranging from this to the color of a formal for a dance are among the many peculiar and amusing requests received by K-State's "voice with a smile."

While many questions are hard to answer, Alice Venburg, supervisor, who has served with the office since it opened October 26, 1947, says, "We are always glad to help out as much as we can."

Mrs. Venburg's work force includes Geneva Ward, full-time operator; Lorena Hunter and Fern Chapman, half-time operators; and Lorain Schurr, relief operator, who substitutes when a regular operator is ill.

College telephone operators are required to pass a state civil service examination before being employed.

Gary Haller, LDs Sr, and Jack Bell, EE Soph, man the switchboard Saturdays from 6 p.m. till midnight and Sundays from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Regular operators are on duty weekends from 7 a.m. to midnight. Calls between midnight and 7 a.m. should be emergencies only, according to Mrs. Venburg.

She and Mrs. Ward have had previous telephone experience at the Fort Riley exchange, and Mrs. Venburg was an operator while she was in high school.

College operators not only perform the task of putting through approximately 1,100 incoming calls to 700 campus telephones (stations and extensions), but also serve in other ways. They have answered questions on class schedules and registration in addition to their regular duties.

There have been times when the operators have been asked to do the "impossible."

An extreme example is this type of request: "I don't know his number or his name, but he wears a brown suit most of the time, and has black hair . . . can you ring him for me?"

The K-State switchboard has two positions and 16 trunks to the Manhattan exchange. There are seven long distance trunks, plus one direct-leased trunk to Topeka and Kansas university. Numbers can be dialed directly on the leased trunk, but it is used for official state business only. The special line has been in operation two years and averages between 50 and 60 calls a day.

Free Dance On Schedule After Game

A "Wildcat Send-off" dance will follow the K-State-KU basketball game Saturday in the Union main ballroom.

The dance is free of charge, and casual clothing is appropriate, according to Ollie White, Union program director.

Matt Betton's band will play from 9:30 p.m. until midnight. The team and Tex Winter, head basketball coach, will be at the dance for a send-off pep rally scheduled at 10:30 p.m.

Different Interpretations of Senate Ruling Cause Confusion Among Staters, Faculty

WE'VE HAD a semantics fight on our hands lately. At least that's what we'll call it. By moving one sentence on the second semester calendar, the Faculty Senate is responsible for the problem.

The sentence: Deficiency reports due in deans' offices. And in parenthesis, to emphasize the point, we should imagine, it is written (7th week).

About three seconds after our newspaper appeared Tuesday, we were notified that we had an absolute misstatement of fact on the front page. It read:

> "To be or not to be, that is the question." And that question concerns the status of five-weeks tests in view of the change in K-State testing policy announced by the Faculty Senate.

> Instead of the five and nine-weeks tests which were given in the past, tests are supposed to be given during the seventh week. This seems to have led to mass confusion, as many profs are giving tests this week anyway.

WE WISH TO ANNOUNCE that corrections have been brought to our attention:

1. The Senate did not change the testing policy.

2. "The day the faculty members are told when to give tests will be the day I quit." (by a faculty member)

3. The only day a faculty member is required to give tests is during final week (the last week in the semester, we add, for the sake of clarity.)

4. "Students are up in arms enough without the Collegian adding fuel to the flames—we can give tests when we please." (from a department)

All right, friends, your corrections are printed.

AND WITH THEM is this note —Figure out for yourselves, students. The Senate made the ruling, with Senate members, members of the Academic Affairs committee (Senate committee which worked on the matter), administration, and deans' offices interpreting it individually: it means there will be seven week tests instead of five and nine. We can give you their names if you like.

However, rather than admit that they are doing as they please (See points 2 and 3), some faculty members are playing the semantics game: "the ruling doesn't say tests—only deficiency reports during seven weeks."

DON'T YOU DARE reschedule anything, you see. Because the fact that out of six classes you have five tests during the five week period simply doesn't change another fact: reviewing tests, more concentrated exams, may come whenever your prof decides. And just because they "happen" to fall during five weeks and nine weeks doesn't mean they're in contradiction with a most logical interpretation of the Senate ruling. It simply means at Kansas State we've proved for the 10,000th time that a ruling is nothing, that it's worth exactly the amount of paper it's written on, and no amount of begging, pleading, or writing will change anything.

And all this has gotten us nowhere, except we hope to clear up the confusion among students who interpreted, as we did, the Senate ruling just like the five sources we mentioned earlier. And we must appease the many, many faculty members who are busy giving tests this week and find the dispute hindering their endeavors.—Sue Goss.

UGB Makes Union Policy

By PAT ROBERTS

"Our function is actually hard to describe because it is so broad. I guess you could say that we are the policy making group of the Union," said Keith Swenson, former Union Governing board chairman.

Swenson said the Union Governing board had jurisdiction over all Union activities other than the hiring and firing of employes.

"We approve and have the final 'say so' on many of the Union Program council's actions," said Swenson.

Typical of the work done by the Union Governing board is the decision pending on acquiring automatic pin setters for the Union bowling alleys. Another example would be the approval of any new committee coming under the Union Program council—Y-Orpheum for instance.

Facts Regarding Senate Deficiency Report Decision Told By Academic Affairs Committee Chairman Hodgdon

Letter to the Editor:

On March 4 an article titled "Five Weeks Tests Upon Us Despite Senate's New Rule," appeared in the Collegian. It was backed up by a lengthy editorial. This article and an article which appeared February 13 titled "Some Doubt Rules of Reinstatement" were misleading in content and interpretation, negative in attitude, and certainly contributed nothing to the enlightenment of the students, or the morale of the faculty. As chairman of the Academic Affairs committee of the Senate, which studied these situations carefully before recommending them to the Senate, I feel it is my duty to present some facts regarding them.

First of all, the committee which recommended the abandonment of the five and nine weeks report was a committee appointed by President McCain. The committee consisted of Deans Potter, Leasure, Mullen, Ebberts, and Miss Raffington, representing the dean of the School of Home Economics. The report of this committee was referred to the Academic Affairs committee, where it was approved unanimously and later passed by the Senate.

The new rule is intended to reduce the work load of the faculty at a time when unprecedented demands are being made upon it, and at the same time provide a means of determining those in academic difficulty early enough in the semester to do something about it—namely at the seventh week.

No attempt was ever made to legislate when exams should be given, but merely when a deficiency report should reasonably be expected in the dean's office. You cannot legislate the date on which an exam should be given, any more than you can legislate the grade that should be given the student. This would be a gross violation of academic freedom which the faculty would not tolerate. Obviously, then, the exams can be given at any time, so long as a report is made by the seventh week. There is also provision for the student to drop the course without penalty up to the ninth week, a distinct improvement over the entire system.

Why not devote a series of constructive articles to the operation of the Senate, or the major committees of the Senate, or to the major problems facing higher education today and what can be done about them.

Dr. Linwood L. Hodgdon, Chairman,
Academic Affairs Committee of the Senate.

(Editor's Note: We're happy to print Dr. Hodgdon's letter clearing up the matter, and agree that the fault was ours in misinterpreting the ruling. However, we see no change in the fact that scheduling, planning, and programming of campus events and activities is made almost impossible if tests will come at five, nine, and seven weeks. As to the constructive articles on the Senate, Dr. Hodgdon—why should the Collegian be held responsible for good journalism here? We're not even allowed in Senate meetings, for any kind of coverage, or even for our own background information in such cases as these. If you have been reading the paper, you may have noticed a series which we're now running on administrative bodies, explaining the purposes, functions, and accomplishments. The Senate will be included in this, and regardless of the recent disagreement (in which, oddly enough, we were supporting the Senate in its ruling!), we shall continue to do our best to keep students and faculty informed on facts. We're sorry if we have erred.)

Dear Editor,

It seems to us that the original idea of having an athletic holiday is to celebrate athletic victories or achievements. If the Student Council's present plan is accepted, the real meaning of an athletic holiday will be lost. In the past, we have been allotted one day each semester for the celebration of an athletic achievement. If no such achievement of victory was attained, the day allotted was then added to a scheduled College vacation such as Thanksgiving, Christmas, Easter, etc.

The idea of an athletic holiday is to celebrate a victory at the time of the victory. The Student Council's present plan suggests that we discard the real meaning of an athletic holiday. If the day were to be added to a regularly scheduled vacation, the significance of celebrating a victory at this time would be lost.

Other major schools of this region celebrate their athletic victories at the time of the victory. A good example of this is Nebraska university. When they defeated KU, they celebrated an athletic holiday. Why then, should the students of Kansas State college, with a basketball team that ranks highest in the nation and in K-State history, be deprived of an athletic holiday following the winning of the Big 8 conference and a berth in the NCAA.

Dear Editor,

I would like to add this bit of poetry to our fine paper. It was written at three in the morning after an unsuccessful attempt to write a thousand-word theme on a poem.

Strained English Student's Lament

It is a wondrous thing to see
That which professors demand of me.
Doctors of English must have (by rights)
Thousand-word themes that waste the nights;
While one simple paragraph (or at the most two)
Would satisfy even the poets. But few
Of my teachers (English of course)
Are content to let me ride the horse
Of straight-forward speech.
I must be bled by the insatiable leech
Of long, drawn-out sentences and flowery pen;
Then, my labor returned, I must write it again,
Simply because the drafting is rough
And the language not gaudy enough
Since we are living in an abbreviated age,
It seems professors could be more sage
And allow the overworked student to write

Architecture Club Offers Scholarship

The Omicron chapter of Tau Sigma Delta, national scholastic architecture honorary has established a scholarship in architecture and architectural engineering, according to John F. Helm, professor in architecture and allied arts, club faculty sponsor.

The scholarship was established to encourage high school graduates with an interest in architecture and architectural engineering to apply for admission at Kansas State college. Any incoming freshmen who have been granted admission to K-State in these curriculums is eligible to receive the scholarship.

Funds for the scholarship will be raised by fees, dues, and projects.

New Ag Engineering Wing To Be Completed by July 1

WORK CONTINUES, RAIN OR SHINE, on the new wing being constructed on the north end of Seaton hall. The three story addition will house the department of agricultural engineering when completed.

Prof. F. C. Fenton, who retired as head of the Agricultural Engineering department in 1956, will have his promise of a new wing added to the present Seaton hall fulfilled this coming fall, according to Prof. George Larson, present head of the department.

The new agricultural engineering wing will probably be finished by July 1. Classes are being scheduled in the new wing for fall, 1958.

The exterior of the 3-story wing will be of native limestone to match the adjoining engineering wing of Seaton hall. The main entrance will be where the new and old wings join.

Bids for the construction of the wing were let on January 22, 1957, and construction was started about March 1.

The ground floor will contain two laboratories for farm mechanics courses, an analytical lab, a hydraulics lab, a classroom, and a storeroom. The hydraulics lab is to be used by the entire engineering school. The farm mechanics and machine labs will include a combination locker room and wash room. Tractors and machines will be brought in at one end of these labs for study and maintenance.

The first floor will contain the tractor lab, farm machinery lab, research lab, reference library, several classrooms, and the general offices for the department. The machinery lab will be equipped with an overhead door for entrance to the lab.

More offices, classrooms, a drafting room, the soil and water conservation lab, the farm processes lab, the rural electrification lab, and a student reading room will be located on the second floor.

National Ag Education Award To Be Given Prof. A. P. Davidson

Prof. A. P. Davidson, of the Department of Agricultural Education, will receive the distinguished service award of the national office of education's Division of Vocational Education at the Central Regional conference in Chicago today.

Professor Davidson will be cited for contributions to the cause of agricultural education. He will also address the conference the day of the award, reviewing the development of vocational agricultural work in the central region since he entered the field.

Davidson nas been teaching for 43 years, 38 at K-State. He has been state executive adviser of the Kansas association of Future Farmers of America for 28 years, and spent 24 years as book review editor of the Agricultural Education magazine.

Professor Davidson is working on a 41-year history of vocational agriculture in Kansas, which he plans to complete before his retirement June 30.

Numerous Classes Develop Student Creativity . .

By BILL BIDWELL

Throughout the campus, many K-State students are enrolled in classes involving creative work. If you wished to visit some of these "creative classes," perhaps your first logical step would be the Industrial Arts department.

Stepping into the woodworking section of the department, one hears the whirr of power saws and hammering. A Woodworking I student is working on his required class project—making a three-drawer typing table. Several Woodworking II students are laboring on a variety of projects which may include beds, chests, or hi-fi cabinets, as they are allowed the choice of making anything they wish.

"Because a lot of the students are married, they make furniture for use in their homes," says Earl G. Darby, professor of Industrial Engineering and Industrial Arts.

Salad bowls and table lamps are among the many useful and ornamental items made by students enrolled in a wood turning class.

Wood Technology

Have you heard of wood technology? Professor Darby, who teaches industrial arts for prospective high school teachers, says the technology course is open to both graduate and undergraduate students. They learn to identify the properties and species of 65 commercially imported woods, and learn which are the best for given applications.

H. D. Smethers, assistant professor of Industrial Engineering and Industrial Arts, teaches a class in wood finishing. Here, students learn to apply many types of finishes to various woods by varnishing, and other woods by varnishing, shellacing, oil finishing, and other methods.

A visit to the K-State foundry will find Shop A and Foundry I students making useful and ornamental objects from metal.

H. F. Dietrich, assistant professor of Industrial Engineering and Industrial Arts, says Shop A begins with 10 to 12 periods of introductory matter, including foundry terminology. Shop A students later learn to make molds for castings.

Foundry

Foundry I students learn all the operations of a foundry. They make molds for aluminum and brass products, and learn to pour many types of metals. Among the non-commercial items produced by Foundry I students are sewer rings and angle brackets for the College. Spare-time projects include the making of nameplates and plaques, tools, cooking kettles, ash trays, bookends, and other ornamental works.

Browsing through the upper corridors of Seaton hall, one finds a different type of creative work. Oil and watercolor paintings and drawings done by art students line the walls, and there are sketches of new and modern structures designed by by students in architecture and architectural engineering.

Students in Elements of Architecture I and II study shapes, arrangement, lines, and texture of simple objects such as squares and circles. Later, they take Design I through VI, and as their ability develops, they design ultra modern buildings and other structures. From these, they contruct small scale models.

Anderson Hall Classes

Continuing your itinerary of creative classes, you could visit the second floor of Anderson hall. Ceramic forms, including dishes, bowls, and vases, plus symmetrical designs, are made by students in Ceramics I and Design in Crafts I. The work is on display there.

Creative writing is the interest of students who meet weekly at the home of Alwyn Berland, assistant professor of English. Fictional manuscripts are written outside the class, and a critique occupies class time each Monday from 7 until 10 p.m.

Various phases of technical and ag journalism contain the creative aspect. Students in Professor Helen Hostetter's magazine article writing class analyze the market and magazines for which they plan to write articles. Each year, many students sell their articles to magazines as a result of this research.

KSDM-FM

K-State is the first college in the nation to offer a major in radio, the second to start a course in radio, and the first in the Midwest to have a television workshop.

KSDB-FM, student training station, is operated entirely by students, under the supervision of George Carroll, instructor in speech.

One-half of the 100 students working on KSDB-FM are not majoring in radio, according to F. L. Whan, professor of speech. The radio and television department offers an extracurricular activity in which any interested student may participate in the station's work and in the television workshop.

John Barry, Sp Sr, is student manager of the 10-watt station that has a listening audience encompassing the cities of Wamego and Junction City as well as Manhattan. Virgil Walter, Sp Jr, is in charge of sports, and Sid Hutchins, Sp Sr, is in charge of programing.

Television Workshop

The television workshop consists of two cameras and a closed circuit television system which transmits television images to several studios. The cameras are student-operated. In both radio and television, students write, produce, and direct their own shows.

Barbara Cragie, instructor in art, commented, "Everything we do is creative." She teaches classes in fashion and advanced costume, where the emphasis is on originality, the fresh approach, and attractive designs with pleasing color schemes.

"Without a doubt, the most creative aspect of fashion is designing," she said. "What is being created not only is a picture, but sometimes a new concept of the woman." The purpose in fashion illustration is to communicate the information to the potential consumer, she explained.

One building on the campus, Calvin hall, is occupied entirely by feminine students who do similar creative work. Clothing and textiles classes are on the second floor.

Open House Badge Sales Start Today

Dean M. A. Durland, of the Engineering and Architecture department, received the first 1958 Engineering Open House badge from LeRoy Stayton, ME Sr, chairman of Open House. The badges went on sale today for 15 cents.

The design is by Duane Engle, Ar 04, and was selected from 12 designs by the Open House executive committee. The badge has a modern jet as the center of interest.

Engineering badges will be sold in the main entrance of Seaton hall during Open House March 14 and 15.

Research Physicist Robert W. Pike, like many other physicists, engineers and mathematicians, came to IBM directly from college. His degree is a B.S. in Engineering Physics. Here he tells you why the electronic computer field is fascinating to the graduate with a physics background

What's it like to be with IBM ?

"I became interested in computers and transistors at college," Robert Pike recalls. "In fact, my senior project was building a small computer. So, when I graduated from the University of Maine in June, 1955, I naturally turned to the computer field. IBM, recognized as a leader in this expanding electronics area, looked like a good place for me."

Bob Pike began his IBM career as a Technical Engineer, starting with a training program that lasted several months. Then, asked to select the work area of his choice, he picked the Semi-Conductor Device Development Group in Research. "My first assignment," he says, "was to plot various electrical and physical device parameters for a large number of transistors in the form of graphs or histograms in order to obtain correlation coefficients of the device characteristics."

Many fascinating assignments

A problem in saturation resistance

Other projects followed in rapid succession: Work on a germanium drift, diffused base transistor (he was the second of his group to enter this field) . . . work on silicon as a transistor material doing evaporations of impurities on the silicon (he is known as the "pioneer silicon device man" of his group). "Silicon is better than germanium because of better temperature and voltage breakdown points," he mentions. "But it is difficult to find a material to wet silicon to form alloyed junctions. I recall making the small contacts with an ultrasonic soldering iron."

Bob Pike was promoted to Associate Physicist in December, 1956. His present assignment is leading a group of technicians in fabricating high-frequency, high-power PNP drift transistors. "We use a process I developed," he says. "These transistors will be used as core drivers in a high-speed memory array."

Ask him about this "most interesting" project and he'll tell you, "Working with the evaporation of alloying impurities and designing 'new' semi-conductor devices."

Sold on IBM

Bob Pike is enthusiastic about IBM as a place to work. "The glowing descriptions of my work," he reminisces, "the extensive research facilities and the friendly employee-management relations brought two E.E. friends of mine to IBM from Maine, my Alma Mater."

Plotting resistor characteristics

His future? At the rate IBM and the electronic computer field are expanding, he sees great opportunities. Of course, his own progress will be in accordance with IBM's promotion policy—"strictly on merit." He has set a tentative goal of Project Engineer within the next five years and expects to continue to specialize in semi-conductor work.

Reviewing technical publications

Bob Pike lives in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., near the Research Laboratory, with his wife and young son. He finds time to garden around his new home and to participate in the IBM Camera Club and a local Audio (Hi-Fi) Society. "It's a busy life," he says, ". . . and one with a stimulating future."

FITTING A SLEEVE for Pearl Arnold is classmate Margaret Herr, while Beverly Bass, also in the tailoring class, watches the procedure. All are sophomores in home economics and teaching.

Many of the K-State curriculums allow students a chance to express and develop their creativity. Whether the interest is painting, sculpture, clothing, woodworking, writing, or landscaping, to name a few, classes are offered which not only prepare students for jobs, but in many instances provide valuable experience in fields which might well become hobbies after graduation. Some students, on being exposed to creative work and instruction, have found their field in such courses.

Boozer Makes All-America

AN ALL-AMERICAN AT WORK. Big Bob Boozer shows the type of hustle which has earned him all-American recognition in the AP and INS selections.

"Quite a surprise and a tremendous thrill to be chosen," is the way Bob Boozer, K-State's top-scoring junior forward explained his feelings about being named all-American on the Associated Press and International News Service second teams.

Selected by the AP by a vote of 316 sportswriters and broadcasters, Boozer was number six in the total votes, heading the second AP five. Out of 446 points, he received 62 firsts. He will receive a certificate from the AP.

"It is one of my life-long dreams come true," says the 6-8 ace who owns a 20.5-point average, and who has scored 450 points to date this season. He was quick to praise the performance and support of his teammates.

Jack Parr, 6-9 Wildcat center, received honorable mention in both press service listings, and Boozer was seventh in the INS poll.

Boozer was unanimously named All-Big Seven last season when he broke several Wildcat records. He won the free-throw award with 77 percent, set the tourney scoring record with 90 in three games, and hit 36 points against Colorado for one of the top Wildcat marks. His current free-throw percentage is 74.

The first AP five:

Wilt (the Dipper) Chamberlain, Kansas university; Oscar Robertson, Cincinnati; Elgin Baylor, Seattle; Guy Rodgers, Temple; Don Hennon, Pittsburgh.

Mississippi State's Bailey Howell rated a first team spot in the INS poll, but was named to AP's second team. Pittsburgh's Don Hennon is on the AP first five and on the INS second team.

Teammates Praise Big Bob

By LAWRENCE ODGERS

They were hot, sweaty, and worn-out after a long hard practice in preparation for the big game Saturday night against Kansas university. Everyone was tired, but not too tired to stop and give Bob a few words of praise, a slap on the back and a word of congratulations.

The scene, the K-State basketball dressing room Wednesday evening. The occasion, Bob Boozer's being selected as an all-American on the second team of the AP and INS wire services.

Coach Tex Winter said he was proud to be the coach of an all-American. "Boozer has worked and worked hard all season long. This is quite an honor for anyone, especially a junior. I hope Bob will give us his best and be a first string All-American next year. We are looking forward to seeing him play even better basketball next season."

Hayden Abbott, Boozer's playmaking forward teammate, said he was glad to see Bob get the nomination. When asked which game Boozer had made his best performance in, Abbott said, "He didn't have any one great game, he played all of them with top performance."

Assistant basketball coach Howie Shannon had not been informed that Boozer had been selected for the honor, but said he had felt all the time that Boozer was a potential all-American. "Boozer has made more improvement than any other one man I have ever worked with. He is well deserving of the award and I am looking for him to be even better next season."

Little Don Matuszak, first string guard for the Wildcats, said, "Without a doubt, Boozer is an all-American all the way. He really gave us a great lift during our eastern tour. Bob played some mighty fine ball against Indiana and Purdue, but he was equally as good against Minnesota and then turned in a great performance last week against Missouri. Let's face it, he has been great all year long."

Bill Laude, Wildcat reserve forward commented, "He's got the heart; the harder it gets, the tougher he is—he's always best when it counts.

"He's even like that in practice. If he's having trouble getting going, he'll walk off to the side and talk to himself. When he comes back, look out, because he's going to be real hard to handle; he's really going to roll."

"I was not too surprised to hear of Bob's being selected to an All-American list. I felt at the start of the season Boozer was potentially an all-American," said Roy DeWitz, the other Wildcat guard.

Sportcerpts

by Eldon Miller

As a result of the violent actions shown by the crowd at last Saturday's game, the K-State fans have been censured by a conference coach—Sparky Stalcup of Missouri.

As it was pointed out before, this is not the best kind of advertisement for our school. It is not good to get a reputation for being rude and unsportsmanlike.

The cause for most of the verbal outbursts is the officiating. Almost anyone in attendance at the last several home games for the Cats will agree that the officiating has not be the greatest.

However, a sport as fast and as physically demanding as basketball is very hard to referee. The Big Eight coaches know this and believe the conference officiating is at least as good if not better than that of other leagues.

We have written letters to the Big Eight coaches about our referees and several have replied.

Doyle Parrack, Oklahoma—"I feel that officials in our league are as good as those in any area in which we have played. Of course, they make many mistakes but it is difficult to secure all top knotch officials."

Sparky Stalcup, Missouri—"Basketball is real difficult to work. Football officiating, in comparison, is just a stroll down the avenue. It takes great intestional fortitude just to step on the court."

Jerry Bush, Nebraska—"There are many difficulties involved in officiating a fast sport such as basketball. It is probably the only sport in the world where the rules constantly change. The coaches have created a game that is almost impossible to officiate, then they criticize the efforts of the men who referee.

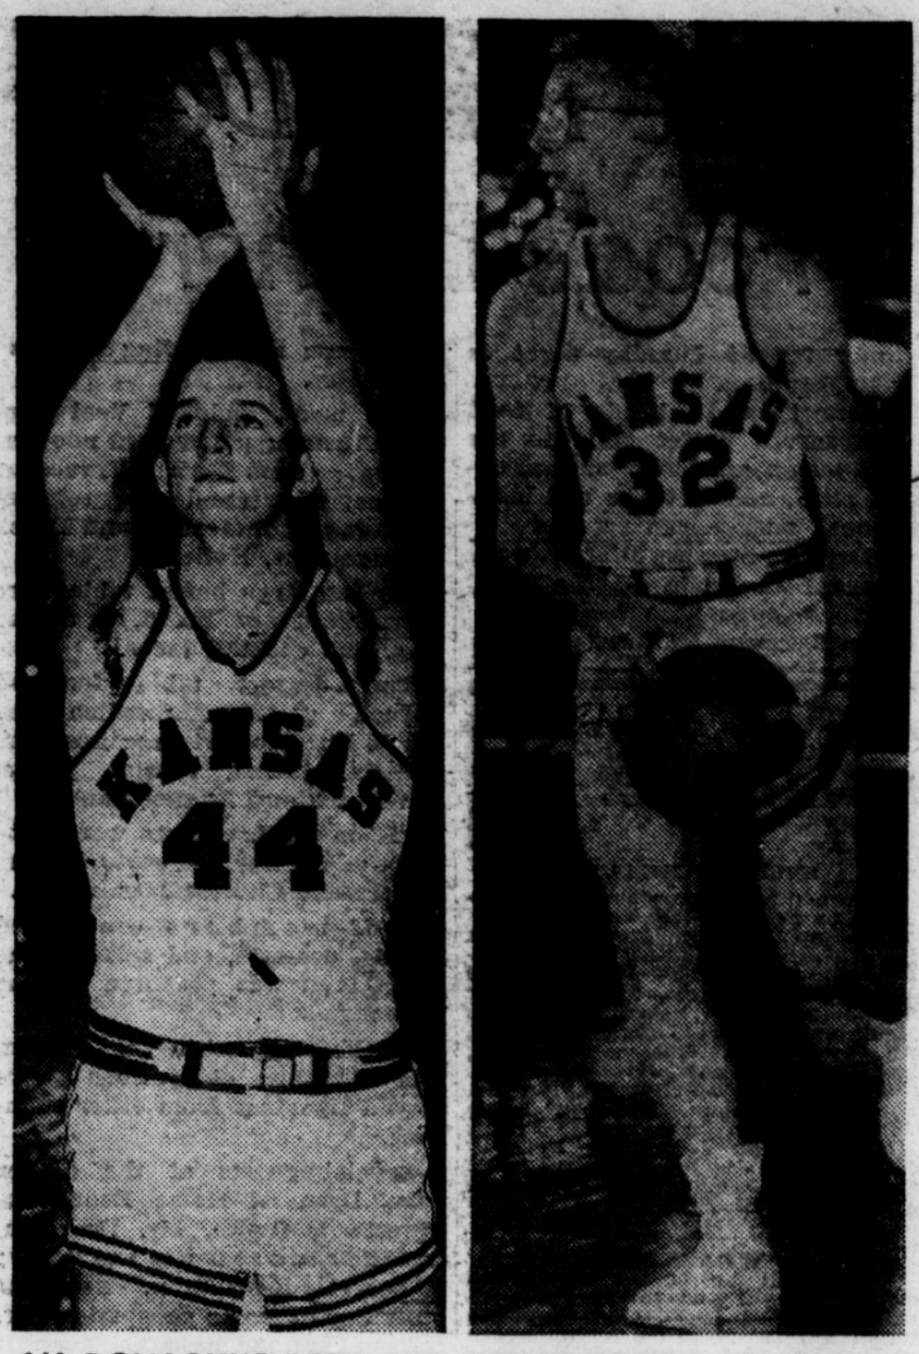

"In all sincerity, I feel that each and every man who officiates in the Big Eight is honest and does the best job he possibly can. If we coaches and our players made as few mistakes as the referees, we would all have a great season."

Dick Harp, Kansas—"It is my opinion that the offociating in our conference is above average. The referees have a tremendously difficult task and they are performing before an uneducated spectator who is entirely motivated by his prejudices."

Tex Winter—"Our officials have their shortcomings but they call fouls a lot closer than those of other conferences and don't let a lot of contact occur. The basketball rules are very complex and place quite a burden on the referees.

"Much of the responsibility for good officiating lies with the coaches. A coach can easily play a style of ball which makes it hard for the official to call a good game."

The officials are human beings and should be treated as such. We know we have the nation's No. 1 basketball team; why don't we close the home season Saturday by showing we also have the nation's No. 1 crowd?

ALL DONAGHUE (LEFT) AND BOB BILLINGS could play important roles in KU's invasion of K-State Saturday. Donaghue earned a starting spot for his play against the Cats at Lawrence. Billings, who has missed the last four games because of a back injury, may be back in the lineup this weekend. His play-making and outside shooting ability have been sorely missed by the Kansas team.

Baseballers In Training

Practice is now under way for the K-State varsity baseball team and Coach Ray Wauthier reports 45 candidates are participating in indoor practice at the present time.

"We are working primarily on conditioning right now, but as soon as the weather breaks we will move outside and begin a full schedule of workouts," said Wauthier.

Twelve lettermen return to form the nucleus of this year's squad. Wauthier feels that the infield and outfield should be strong defensively, with the major worry being in the pitching department.

As of yet the schedule isn't complete, but the first Big Eight contest for K-State will be against Oklahoma State here April 11 and 12.

All league games this season will be played on Friday and Saturday, with one nine inning game Friday, and two seven inning contests on Saturday.

K-State's Big Eight schedule:
April 11-12, Oklahoma State, here
April 18-19, Colorado U., there
April 25-26, Missouri U., here
May 2-3, Iowa State, there

Gourmets Have Field Day At Foreign Foods Dinner

Are you a little tired of the same old meat and potato diet? Do you yearn for something different in the way of food? One group of students did something about this situation. The Dietetics and Commercial Demonstration club members planned, prepared, and served a foreign foods dinner for 80 Monday night in Thompson hall.

More than 20 kinds of food were served buffet style to the club members, foods and nutrition staff, and dietetics and institutional management staff.

Barbara Starnes, DIM Sr, was general chairman of the dinner. A committee headed by Jean Koerner, DIM Jr, planned the menu representing various countries.

The menu included Veal Paprika, Austria; poppy seed noodles, Russia; Peas ala Francaise, France; Guacamole, a tomato-avacada salad, Mexico; and Dutch cabbage slaw, Holland.

On the large buffet table were seven kinds of bread, a cheese tray, and cocktail tacos.

Staff members contributed breads, desserts, and salads. The other food was prepared by the club members.

In keeping with the foreign theme, table decorations were carved figurines from other countries.

Have a Jazzy Birthday, Union!

Party Cake Scale Model Of KS Union

Sixty pounds of white cake, 60 pounds of frosting, some wooden dowels, cardboard, paint, dye, and 40 hours of labor are the ingredients of the Student Union's cake celebrating its second birthday.

Marvin Hunt, Union Food service, Union bookkeeper Mary Ellen Posze, and her husband, Alex, designed the cake as a scale model of the Union from the Union's blueprints.

The cake is four feet long, 28 inches wide at its widest point, and is from six to nine inches high. The pillars are one-half inch wooden dowels and the balconies are cardboard. Turquoise and red watercolors produced realistic Union colors. Frosting dyed green was used as grass. Total cost of materials was approximately $25.

The birthday cake will be displayed in the Union from Friday to Sunday, and at the Louis Armstrong dance in the Union grand ballroom Friday night.

PUTTING THE FINAL DECORATIONS on the Student Union birthday cake is Mary Ellen Posze, who works in the Union business office. To her left is Marvin Hunt, who is employed in the Union Food service, and Union director Loren Kottner is to her right.

Armstrong's Jazz To Highlight Party

Highlight of the K-State Union second birthday celebration this weekend will be the Louis Armstrong concert and dance tonight, the fourth big-name musical performance on campus this year.

The Armstrong concert will be at 7:30 p.m. in the Animal Industries building, and the dance is from 9 until midnight in the Union ballroom.

Inaugurating the birthday celebration will be the cutting of the birthday cake at the party at 3:30 p.m. today in the main lounge.

Lowell Novy, VM Soph, Union Program council chairman, and Ollie White, Union program director, will cut the cake after a short program. Caricature sketches of students will be drawn in the art lounge. On display in the main lounge will be the congratulatory messages which have been received. Various other committees on Program council will sponsor displays in the lounge today.

Jackpot bowling, sponsored by the Union Games committee, will be another featured event this afternoon. A triangle will be set up with 10 cardboard disks in place of bowling pins. People selected at random from the games area will be allowed to lift one of the disks.

Each one has a prepared combination of pins to be bowled, according to the Games committee. The contestant will bowl one ball, and if the prescribed shot is made, he will be given one free line of bowling, which can be taken anytime.

Union committee chairmen, subchairmen, and committee members will wear badges today and tomorrow in recognition of their work with Union activities. Approximately 200 students will be sporting badges for SU days, according to Novy.

K-State's first live telecast is scheduled at 3:30 p.m. Saturday. The show, originating in the Union main ballroom, is being televised by WIBW-TV, Topeka television station. Talent, science interviews, and regularly scheduled programs will be on the TV agenda, which will be offered to students on the set in the main lounge.

Following the basketball game Saturday night, a rally dance is planned in the main ballroom. Matt Betton's band will play for the NCAA tournament send-off dance, and Coach Tex Winter and the team will be special guests.

Final day of the festivities on Sunday will include a special movie matinee of "Showboat" at 3 p.m. in the little theater. The movie will be shown at 7:30 p.m. on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday.

Hawks Wire Good Luck: 'You Need It'

Kansas university sent two cards to the K-State Union in giving best wishes to the Union on their second birthday. One had the words "Good luck on your second birthday. You'll need it on Saturday night."

Other congratulations from across the United States have poured into Union director Loren Kottner's office. The wire that traveled the greatest distance came from the University of Toronto.

The largest card received is from the University of Illinois. Twenty-one air mail stamps were used on the envelope that carried the card. The card was an original design, signed from "Illini."

George L. Donovan, president of the Association of College Unions sent a congratulatory note, as did many other officials of the association. Donovan commented on Kottner's capable direction of the Union.

Schools that sent wires included the Universities of Arkansas, Idaho, Syracuse, Oklahoma, Cornell, California, Ohio State, Missouri, Iowa, Nevada, Michigan, Minnesota, Purdue, and West Virginia.

Many of the cards received were prepared by hand. West Virginia university sent a card that is completely original. The writing on the inside of the card is expertly done in color.

Most of the cards were signed by Unions in other states, including the oldest in the United States, Houston hall at the University of Pennsylvania.

Ticket Showdown Is Here; It'll Cost, But It's Worth It

THE SHOWDOWN has come. We're speaking, of course, of the showdown on the activity ticket situation at Kansas State. A number of things have brought it to a turning point. Most of these are pointed out in the Student Council story on page one.

Probably the most important of these factors is the financial situation of the activity fee in general, and the Athletic department in particular. Ask any of those groups who applied to the Apportionment board for funds whose budget was cut. Several programs on campus have been limited this year simply because they didn't have the money for their original program (for instance, RCC asked for approximately $1,000, got instead less than $500, according to Neil Scott, Soc Sr, student body president) —and Scott, agreeing with the general attitude of the board, sees no alternative but to raise tuition—or cut again next year.

THE DROP in athletics to $6 yearly instead of their present $8.80 will probably solve this problem. The $2.80 should allow some of the groups to expect a slight rise in their apportionment next year—and still not result in a rise in tuition. Obviously, this far the proposal solves many of the present problems, and will do so at the least expense to the student.

But what about me? I have to pay $5 for season tickets—which means an additional $10 a year, you scream.

THERE IS a basic fallacy in this kind of thinking—you don't have to pay that $10. If you want to see five football games and ten basketball games at one-fourth the general admission price, then you'll have to pay for it. But there's nothing which requires you to do so. This lets all the students who don't like sports (and we're quite sure there's quite a few of these people—) out from under the burden of supporting a program for which they don't give two cents —and shifts the charges to where they belong: on the shoulders of the guy who's enjoying the games.

FURTHERMORE, by making these tickets transferable among students, Lee himself has legalized the sale of them. So you don't like paying $10—but if you sell your ticket for a KU game (to another student at Kansas State!) for $10, you still haven't lost anything. So by missing one game, perhaps you can make back the money you've paid out—although we think the real sports fan, who wants to see games bad enough to pay $10 for them, won't mind paying extra to make sure of a reserved seat.

THIS IS PROBABLY the benefit to the entire program. You see Bebe Lee and cohorts have gone on record as promising an exact number of reserved seats—equal to the number of season tickets sold—so that students never need sweat getting a seat at the game. And the seats reserved will be the choice of the downstairs section which are now reserved—in varying numbers—for students.

You'll be paying more—but you'll actually be getting more. And somebody has to pay more sooner or later—either the entire campus or those who are really enjoying every game. If you're one of those who do like sports, we're sure you'll find the new system worth it.

ACTUALLY, YOU SEE, it's not a new system. It's athletics, with a steady trend towards needing more of that old evil money, and whether you like it or not, it looks like it's here to stay. So since we've got it on campus, we might as well plan on supporting it—even if the rent comes high. Besides—wouldn't it look kinda funny about now if the school with the No. 1 basketball team in the nation went on record as saying, "We want you to be top, but we don't want to pay for you?" Rather unrealistic, we'd say.—Sue Goss.

Two-Year-Old Union Grows In Activity, in What It Costs

By JOHN MITCHELL

Like any normal two-year-old youngster, the Student Union is growing—in what it does and in what it costs.

For instance, the original Union budget for the present fiscal year added up to $460,000 in round numbers. But it now stands at $475,000.

The increase of approximately $15,000 in income is the result of running 5 per cent ahead of last year's business, according to Union Director Loren V. Kottner and Union Accountant Walter D. Smith.

At the same time, though, the Union expenses have increased by just about the same figure.

The virtually identical increase on both sides of the ledger is because of the way the Union operates—as a self-sustaining but not profit-making organization. This, of course, is a factor over and above the fact that (1) it costs more to do business and (2) some costs increase without a direct relationship to the amount of Union activity.

Why does it cost more to do more business? For the Union the answer frequently is food; food service—the cafeteria, the state room, and the banquet catering service—accounts for about three-quarters of the Union's main source of income, sales and services.

More business means, for instance, more food must be purchased, prepared, and served. At the same time there has been a general increase of about 5 per cent in labor costs, mainly the result of a pay increase for those 75 Union employes under classified civil service status.

The same relationship exists for the other parts of the Union which are involved in selling things or services. In addition to the food service, those are primarily the games area and the information desk.

As an example of costs which rise independently of increases in the pace of Union business, consider the over-all maintenance costs. When the Union was spanking, brand new these were at a minimum. But now that it is two years old, these costs go up steadily—it costs more to keep up an older building, and that cost goes up especially rapidly during the first few years.

With sales, including the food service, accounting for approximately 80 per cent of Union operating income, the other major sources are these:

1—The Student activity fee Union operating payment of $4.50 a semester, down 50 cents from last year—approximately 15 per cent, and

2—Rental of Union facilities, such as the ball rooms and the little theater—approximately 5 per cent.

If there is any surplus of this total income after total current operating expenses are taken out, it goes for needed equipment or improvements, such as furniture or the acoustical ceiling in the bowling alleys.

The reserve repair fund, incidentally, was what disappeared when the Apportionment board last spring decided to shave 50 cents from the Union's share of each student's semester activity fee and add it to the Athletic department's share. Kottner and Smith hope the increase in business will enable them to restore a portion of the reserve fund, intended to provide a cushion in case of unexpected repair needs.

On the expense side, as on the income side, food service is the major factor. It, plus other items purchased for resale account for a shade more than half of the total expenses. The other major factor is salaries and wages, about 45 per cent of the total. Salaries and wages cover pay to 75 full-time employes and about 120 students who work part-time at such jobs as cafeteria help, bus boys, waitress, games area help, and clerk at the information desk.

Students direct the spending of about $16,000 of the total through the 14 Union committees. Kottner points out that several of the committees—notably such as the Movie committee, Dance committee, and Jazz Club committee—produce income through sponsorship of events to which admission is charged. An example is tonight's Louis Armstrong concert and dance.

Also on the expense side are some free services. These include the free local telephone service, the expense involved in setting up meeting rooms for campus organizations, the weekly calendar service, and the operation of the campus lost and found service, operated through the information desk.

Union Director Reviews Second Year, Looks for Extended Program, Services

Reviewing a second successful year in the K-State Union, Director Loren V. Kottner expects continued increase in extension of services and new programming.

"We started out with eight committees in the Union," he remembers. "It's been a terrific expansion of the old Social and Recreational committee, including an addition of three committees to the 14 now comprising Union Program council.

"In comparison to 50 students who used to work in these committees, we now have about 200 studnets, chosen out of approximately 500 who are interviewed for positions on Union committees.

"The value to me is not that we have a lot of kids, but the fact that we have broadened the scope of operations. After all, if activities are a part of a college education, they must allow the maximum number to participate.

"Activities, if they are wholesome, are worthwhile and they have become an integral part of a college education," he continued.

Kottner named two objectives he hoped to accomplish this year. "Our principal objective in programming will be to extend, not expand, program events to special groups like married students. Almost a third of our students are married and we have no real program for them now," he said.

"The second will be a forum-type program, with discussions on campus, state, and national problems. Lack of interest in what is going on around the state and nation is apparent, and we hope to work on this type of thing," the director explained.

Future planning points toward building expansion, Kottner said. "Money is tied up now in other projects. In looking ahead four or five years, however, we are already beginning to think about an addition to the building. This is in the very sketchiest planning stage, but it is obvious from the uses of the building now that with the enrollment increase, the building will not be adequate to handle the students."

Play Cast Revives Irish Strife of '20s

A sparse crowd of about 150 witnessed the first-night production of "Juno and the Paycock" last night in the College auditorium. The second and last performance will begin tonight at 8 p.m.

Although a combination of Irish brogue and bad acoustics sometimes made speech unintelligible, the characters, vividly portrayed, held the audience's attention.

The tragi-comedy by Sean O'Casey, Ireland's foremost playright, shows the effect on an Irish family of Ireland's chactic state of affairs during the Revolution. It is set in a Dublin tenement of the 1920's.

Juno Boyle is trying to hold together a family consisting of a strutting, bragging husband (the "paycock"), an invalid son, and a daughter trying to better herself.

Comic relief is found in the characters of Joxer Daly and Maisie Madigan. Joxer, a sly, elfin sort of man, is Cap'n Boyle's "butty," especially when it comes to joking and drinking. Mrs. Madigan is a loud, obstreperous woman, cantinually trying to help her neighbors and nearly killing them in the process.

Private Pilot License To Five in AFROTC

Five K-State air force ROTC students will receive certificates for private pilot licenses Monday morning.

Students who have qualified for the certificate but are no longer in AFROTC are George G. Ismert, Geo Sr, and Robert Doremus, ME Sr. Two men who qualified, Larry Lowe and Galen Murphy, graduated in January.

A private pilot's license is issued to students who have successfully completed the ground school requirements and have passed a written examination as required by the CAA. The men spend about 35 hours in the ground school instructions and 36 hours of actual flight time.

BOB BOOZER, ARG JR, recently named to the All-American second team basketball squad by Associated Press and International News Service, is beseiged in class by youngsters wanting autographs. The group, visiting from Clay Center schools, crowds around Boozer as he attempts to paint in Seaton hall.

English Clan Meets Here On Saturday

The Kansas association of English teachers will meet in the new Manhattan high school tomorrow for the annual spring convention. The main topic for the session will be the background of the English language.

Harold Whitehall, chairman of the linguistics department at Indiana university, will give the main address tomorrow afternoon on "Linguistic Applications to Composition Teaching." Whitehall is an expert on English language development.

Blue Key Men Decorate Local Store Windows

Manhattan store windows are being decorated again this year by Blue Key, senior men's honorary, to provide funds for a scholarship sponsored by the organization, according to Warren Keegan, Ec Sr, member.

"We think it is a good way to promote pep for the K-State-KU game, and help a needy student through school at the same time," Keegan said.

A regular job costs $3, and is letters in various colors. The special, complete with contemporary cartoon figures or the traditional Jayhawk and Wildcat, is $5.

"We have had tremendous response from the Aggieville and Manhattan merchants. Approximately 50 stores have been decorated," he said, "and most store owners just say 'shoot the works and give me the $5 dollar special'."

Cats To Battle Hawks--For Fun"?"

WILT CHAMBERLAIN, the nation's top cager according to the Associated Press all-America picks, is the Big Eight's leading scorer with 610 points in 20 games for a 30.5 average. The 7-0 junior center collected 38 against the Wildcats in the pre-season tournament and "only" 25 in the tilt at Lawrence.

KS Wants Victory As Extra Measure

Big Eight champion K-State will attempt to add another jewel to its basketball crown tomorrow night when it meets last year's kingpin and this year's pre-season "cinch" for the title, Kansas university, in Ahearn field house. Game time is 7:35 p.m.

An over-flowing crowd is expected to be on hand in the 12,500 capacity Field House for this 136th renewal of the intra-state rivalry which will close out the home season for the Wildcats and end the 1957-58 campaign for Kansas.

This is also the last home competition for five Cat seniors: Hayden Abbott, 6-4 forward; Roy DeWitz, 6-3 guard; Larry Fischer, 6-4 forward; Jack Parr, 6-9 senior; and Don Richards, 6-1 guard.

The Cats, who were supposed to play in the shadow of the Wilt Chamberlain-led Jayhawks this year, have compiled the best cage record in K-State sports history, 20-2, while waltzing through conference opposition for 10 straight before bowing to Nebraska 55-48 at Lincoln Monday.

Kansas fortunes have hit a rocky road lately as the Jayhawks are tied for second place with Iowa State at 7-4. The Hawks have lost two of their last three tilts and have a season record of 17-5.

Despite the "just for fun" tag placed on this contest, both teams will be out for the win.

A mythical state championship is involved as this is the rubber game between the two teams. K-State playing without a first stringer, Hayden Abbott, and with all-American Bob Boozer, leading Cat pointmaker, forced out after little more than a token appearance, dropped a 79-65 decision to KU in the finals of the pre-season conference tournament. Both of the Wildcats were victims of the flu.

In the more recent game, however, the Wildcats grabbed a 79-75 victory in double overtime at Lawrence. That was part of an 11-game win string that locked away the loop title—K-State's second in three years.

When the Wildcats took the win at Lawrence it marked KU's second conference defeat. The Hawks had dropped an earlier one to Oklahoma with Wilt Chamberlain sidelined by infection.

Since the series began in 1907, KU has won an even 90 games to K-State's 45.

The outcome of tomorrow night's game rests heavily on the phsyical condition of both teams. Kansas, with 5-11 Bob Billings hampered with a back injury, has been hurting in outside scoring punch and team leadership.

With the junior guard out of the lineup, the Jayhawks have no one to use as an outside threat and relieve some of the defensive pressure placed on the 7-0 Chamberlain.

K-State, which was lucky in the injury department until a few weeks ago, has had 6-9 Jack Parr and guard Don Matuszak on the ailing list of late. Parr is recovering from a bad cold and Matuszak has an injured knee.

Probable starters:

| K-State | Pos. | Kansas |
|---|---|---|
| Boozer (6-8) | F | (6-4½) Don'hue |
| Abbott (6-3) | F | (6-4½) Loneski |
| Parr (6-9) | C | (7-0) Cham'lain |
| DeWitz (6-3) | G | (6-1½) Hick'm |
| Matsuzak (6-0) | G | (5-11) Billings |

IN ASSORTED SIZES—Two of Tex Winter's hustlers who are set to tangle with KU tomorrow night are Don Matuszak, 6-0 guard, and BIG Bob Boozer, forward, whose 6-8 is somewhat exaggerated by the photographer's angle.

Starters May Be Ready For Tomorrow's Game

K-State and Kansas, both riddled with injuries during the past two weeks, are expected to have all their players ready for tomorrow night's game.

Jack Parr, Cat center, has been absent from the lineup for the past two games because of illness and Bob Billings, Jayhawk guard has missed the last three games because of a back ailment. Both Parr and Billings are expected to be ready by tipoff time Saturday. Parr worked out lightly for the first time Thursday and Billings has been practicing during the past week.

Don Matuszak, K-State guard, who has played the last two games with an injured knee, is not fully recovered but will hold down one one of the guard positions Saturday.

Tex Chosen As a Coach In 'Star Tilt

K-State basketball coach Tex Winter has been chosen to coach the West team in the Ararat Shrine's seventh annual all-star East-West game.

Announcement was made in Kansas City yesterday by William J. Tobler, potentate of the Ararat Shrine. The East-West game will be played March 23 in Kansas City's Municipal auditorium for the Shrine hospital for crippled children.

Ready for the Big Clash

Cats To Swim Meet

K-State chances will be hurt by lack of depth, but coach Bill Thrall has high hopes for good performances from Dave Dicken in the 100-yard butterfly, and Jim Mariner in the 100 and 200-yard backstroke. The 400-yard medley relay team is given a good chance of placing high by Thrall.

Probable K-State entrants:

1500-meter freestyle—1, Tom Coblentz

200-yard butterfly—1, Dave Dicken; 2, Jim Nolen

60-yard freestyle—1, Jerry Fitzgerald; 2, Tom Onuma; 3, Gordon Harper; 4, John Nickel

K-State Coeds Take Pride In Wearing Unusual Glasses

ONE OF THE MOST unusual pair of glasses on campus belongs to Dee Oberg, Eng Jr. The black curved frames, with the ears hinged to the bottom, were imported from Italy.

By JOYCE RECTOR

"Guys don't make passes at girls who wear glasses." Some girls still seem to believe in the old axiom, although with the varied shapes, sizes, and colors available, one would think they had nothing to worry about. Nevertheless, in a recent very-off-the-cuff survey of forty women in an organized house, 23 had glasses and were supposed to wear them, but only five were wearing them at the time.

Some coeds, however, take great pride in their glasses. Probably the most famous pair at K-State belongs to Dee Oberg, Eng Jr. Dee's frames are black, very common, but their shape sets them off.

These frames are a little hard to explain. It would probably be sufficient to say if you've ever seen them, you'll never forget them. The Italian-imported frames are curved up into two magnified cat's eyes. This is queer enough, but on top of that, someone hinged the "ears" to the bottom of the frame, instead of the top.

Black seems to be a favorite color for frames. It is found in either metal or plastic, with or without decoration. The decoration, when it does appear, is often silver.

Members Sought For Art Promotion

Annual membership in the Friends of Arts at K-State is now open to all present members and interested students. The former need only renew their membership for another year. Students may take out a membership at a special rate.

All members will receive a free print and publication of the society. This year's print will be "Winter Landscape," done in black and brown by Oscar V. Larmer, assistant professor in architecture and allied arts. The print will be already matted and ready for framing.

The Friends of Art was organized in 1934 to stimulate a widespread appreciation of art among K-State students and Kansas residents. All contributions and proceeds from membership fees are turned over to the Endowment association for the purchase of works of art to be placed in the College's permanent collection.

The group, under the chairmanship of President McCain, also sponsors art exhibitions and lectures.

Loren Kottner Says Installation To Begin For Air Conditioning

Air conditioning has arrived and will be installed in the K-State Union this spring, according to Loren Kottner, Union director.

"They're checking it now, to get it in top shape, but I went down yesterday and actually saw it, so we know it's here. Arrangements are being made for automatic pinsetters, too, and we hope to complete them soon," he said.

Methodist Group Sponsors Wesley, OYF for Staters

By MARGE PENROD

Wesley Foundation and the Older Youth Fellowship are two groups for college students sponsored by the First Methodist church.

The Wesley Foundation is a national Methodist student group founded in 1917 at the University of Illinois. It was officially incorporated by the Methodist church in 1924. The local group was started in 1918. It was located at 1630 Osage until the present building was completed in 1950.

Kappa Phi and Sigma Theta Epsilon are groups within the Wesley Foundation. Kappa Phi is a Methodist women's service club whHe STE is the Methodist men's service group.

Other activities of Wesley Foundation include informal discussion groups, prayer and meditation meetings, choir, fellowship programs, and parties.

The Older Youth Fellowship, a separate organization from Wesley Foundation, meets at 7:15 p.m. on Sundays at the First Methodist church. This group is composed of college students, other young people, and Ft. Riley personnel.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bennett are the sponsors of OYF. The Rev. Robert B. Simpson is staff sponsor of the group.

Activities of OYF are scheduled for fun and fellowship. The group has redecorated its meeting room, sponsored a pony ride as a money-making project, had several parties, and participated in the recent Methodist Student Movement conference. Future meetings will include dinners, guest speakers, a skating party, a bike hike, and a talk on the "Theology of Jazz" by a member of the OYF.

K-State's Telecast Attracts Full House

The Union ballroom was the scene of the first live telecast from Manhattan Saturday, televised by WIBW-TV, Topeka. Nearly all the 150 seats in the ballroom were taken for the performance.

A talent show featuring K-State talent, a science program, two interviews, the Topeka "Stop Let's Rock" show, and a program by the Manhattan Ministerial association were shown.

The talent show was televised from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. with Gordon Jump, WIBW announcer, acting as master of ceremonies.

Dale Norris, MI Sr, and his instrumental combo, opened the show with "Count Me Out" and closed with "Jeepers Creepers." Others in the combo were Steve Cox, Soc Jr, and Art Hobson, Pth Sr, trombone; Keith Peters, Ch Fr, tenor saxophone; Glen Axelton, MEI Soph, bass; and Owen Sherman, Sp Fr, drums. Norris played the piano.

The K-State Singers, under direction of Dr. William Fischer, associate professor of music, followed with the "Fight Song." Other numbers they sang were "Rise and Shine," "'Mary Has a Little Lamb," "Tenderly," and "Lullaby of Broadway."

Two vocal quartets, the Four Delts and the Nightcaps, appeared. The Four Delts sang "Marianne" and their version of "The Sawmill Proprietor," and the Nightcaps sang "The Lady Is a Tramp" and "My Funny Valentine."

Jim Parker, ML Jr, and Joe Fairchild, ME Soph, played "Guess What" on the piano and alto saxophone in an instrumental duet.

Soloists on the program were Georgiana Rundle, EEd Sr, with her accompanist, Marilyn Kratzer, BPM Soph, singing "Autumn Leaves," and "Getting To Know You;" Jan White, HT Jr, playing "Stardust" on her marimba; John McComb, PrL Jr, singing folk songs, "Old Paint" and "Streets of Laredo;" and Roger Brannan, SEd Fr, doing an impression of Andy Griffith in "What It Was Was Football."

The Grin-A-Dears, vocal novelty and instrumental group, closed the program with "Sweet Georgia Brown," "Dark Eyes," "Yes, Sir, That's My Baby," and "Sweet Sue." The Grin-A-Dears are George Roggendorff, VM Sr; Max Leach, leader of the Union Harmonizers; Norval Ralstin, AH Jr; and Everett Newman, Ch Gr.

The show was directed by Bob Snyder, speech instructor, with Louann Oberhelman, Sp Sr, and Linda Stout, Sp Soph, as assistant directors. Pete Charlton, Sp Sr, was in charge of the scenery and lighting. The production work and setting was done by radio and television students.

Council To Decide Fate Of KS Artist Series Plans

Student Council will consider six recommendations for the Manhattan Artist Series program for 1958-59 tonight at its regular meeting. Luther Leavengood, head of the Music department and manager of Artist Series, suggested:

1) That Student Council guarantee $3,100 to Artist Series next year;

2) That college students be admitted to the four Artist Series attractions for a 50 per cent discount on season tickets, and 75 cents for the single performance;

3) That high school and grade school students be admitted for the same prices college students pay;

4) That single admission prices for non-students be: $3.60, $2.75, and $1.50;

5) That SC appoint a student sales chairman to organize a sales committee which would sell tickets to students; and

This year, Student Council underwrote the Artist Series program $1,800. Leavengood made his recommendations to the Council last week.

SC will hear a final report on the Book Exchange. Final financial figures show a $5 deficit, according to Manager Bill Harrision, NE Sr. He points out several shortcomings of the between-semesters Exchange: it was located on the third floor of the Union where there is no heat, and where display is difficult; the 5 per cent commission taken was inadequate—a 10 per cent commission should be possible; money should have been refunded to students whose books were sold as soon as possible; the position of manager should go to someone who has full time to devote to the job, and should pay $1 or $1.50 an hour.

The Council will also review applicants for Campus Industries, Parents' Day, and Homecoming committees. Council members interviewed about 90 applicants for positions on the committees yesterday afternoon in the activities center.

Where Does Armstrong Like To Play?

'Anywhere the People Live Their Jazz'

A sweating, dynamic Louis Armstrong, obviously enjoying his work, didn't even pause when asked where he liked to play best by a Collegian reporter during intermission at Satday night's dance.

"On a stage," Satchmo said, "on a stage any place where the people like their jazz. I really like this business. It's the same everywhere. People love jazz."

The Ambassador of Jazz was pleased with the crowd's size and reaction, and commented that he liked the facilities here.

Armstrong, who appeared at Kansas City and Wichita last week mentioned an engagement at Lincoln, Neb., and a hop south to Norman as the next stops.

Would he like to play at K-State again sometime? "Sure, next year," Armstrong said, still catching his breath after an hour and a half concert and two hours of the dance, both before overflow crowds.

Backing up Armstrong's voice and trumpet were All Stars Velma Middleton, soloist; Trummy Young, trombone; Edmund Hall, clarinet; Mort Herbert, bass; and Billy Kyle at the piano.

Senator Attacks U.S. Foreign Aid

U.S. Senator George W. Malone (R-Nev) assailed foreign economic and military aid and termed our foreign trade agreements "worthless" at the Engineers' Open House assembly this morning.

Malone warned that we are moving toward a world government with free imports and immigration and a division of our wealth throughout the world. "And this is the objective a large segment of our people on the Atlantic coast, including New York," the Senate's only practicing engineer continued.

"We can save 15 billion dollars by stopping foreign aid and end to financing an obsolete plan for the surface defense of Europe and Asia," he said.

"This money should be used half for a missiles program and half for reducing the national debt and lowering income tax. When the chips are down for foreign trade agreements will be worthless," he said.

"We overrate our foreign ties. Any material, or secrets, we send to Europe is immediately available to the U. S. S. R. in 30 days.

"All European nations will be neutral if war comes, because they would be destroyed in 30 minutes if they resisted aggression.

"We cannot keep the American system if we continue our division of wealth with Europe. Russia is self-sufficient. And the Western hemisphere can be also. We don't need a pound of anything for war or peace through the Suez canal," he insisted.

At the opening of the assembly, which begins Engineers' Open House week, McCain presented Distinguished Service awards in the field of Engineering and Architecture to Miles Leverett, BS '31, and Fred Henderson, BS '24.

Student Building Fund Pays for Union Along with Major Union Improvements

By JOHN MITCHELL

Kansas State college students are not only paying for the two-year-old Student Union building with their $7.50-a-semester building fund payments, but also for major capital improvements to the building. And the improvements might include a building expansion program within the next five or six years, according to Dean of Students Herbert J. Wunderlich.

In addition to providing the funds necessary to meet the payments on the $1,000,000 Union building bond issue, the student building fees have provided the funds that will finance the air conditioning for the building and the automatic pin setters for the bowling alleys.

When those are cleared—possibly by mid-1961 or 1962—money might be earmarked for building expansion, according to Dean Wunderlich. "Of course," he points out, "it might be needed or wanted for other major Union projects by then; one never knows how these things are going to develop."

But, at any rate, he says, the student building fee system has proved to be an effective way of financing the original building and also furnish funds for additional improvements.

Financing of the Union building started back in the early 1940s, when K-Staters voted to assess themselves $5 a semester to accumulate a building fund. When the fund reached $650,000, a 20-year, $1,000,000 bond issue was sold in 1954 and the student building assessment was increased to its present $7.50 a semester and $3 for summer school.

It is the student building fee that pays off the bond issue; none of the Union's operating revenue is used to finance the bonds. The only student fee that goes toward operation of the Union is the Union's portion of the activity fee.

The building fee proved to total more than expected, because of enrollment increases which exceeded the estimates made at the time the bonds were being sold. For example, the estimated enrollment for the present school year was 5,952; the actual enrollment now is approximately 6,700.

The fact that enrollment increased faster than had been estimated in the bond prospectus meant, of course, income from the student fee also increased more rapidly. For example, $80,000 was deposited in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1955, against an advance estimate of $75,900. The estimated revenue for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1956 was $77,200; the amount actually deposited was $95,000.

Last fiscal year, after the Board of Regents split the building fund into two funds, the building fund and the equipment fund—$65,000 was deposited in the building fund and $32,000 in the equipment fund. That is a total of $97,000 from the student building fees, compared to an original estimate of $77,565 for the same period.

Because of this unexpected increase, the Board of Regents split off one-third of the student fee—$2.50 of each $7.50 payment and $1 of each $3 one—and earmarked it for Union building equipment. This went into effect September 1, 1956.

It is this equipment fund which is ultimately financing the air conditioning and a major part of the cost of the automatic pin setters. In both cases, the original purchaser is the Kansas State College Endowment association, which rents the equipment involved to the Union. The rental contracts include options under which the Union may purchase the equipment from the Endowment association in the future, with rent already paid to be applied toward the purchase price.

The option stage in the air conditioning contract will be reached by July, 1961, and can be exercised on the pin setters on or before November 1, 1962, according to College Business Manager Daniel D. Beatty. Rent payments on the pin setters will include $600 a month from the Union operating fund.

Meanwhile, $50,000 worth of the bonds will have been retired by May 1, with another $10,000 worth to be retired November 1, marking the end of a three-year period in which $20,000 worth were retired each year.

After that the retirement schedule calls for $40,000 worth of bonds a year for four years, $52,000 a year for two years, $60,000 a year for four years, $68,000 a year for two years, $72,000 a year for two years, $76,000 for one year, and $80,000 the final year, 1973-74.

The interest rate is 2¼ per cent on the first 414 bonds, 2¾ per cent on the next 252, and 3 per cent on the remaining 334—an average interest rate of just under 2¾ per cent. The 1,000 bonds, each valued at $1,000, come due serially —that is, in the order they are numbered. Those scheduled for retirement earlier carry a lower interest rate because an investor's money is tied up for a shorter period of time.

Total interest payments over the 20-year period of the bond issue will amount to $346,822.

Readers' Forum

Dear Editor,

We as senior students and potential teachers find ourselves in agreement with the faculty on the subject of testing policies which has so recently been brought to the attention of the readers of the Collegian by our illustrious editor.

We feel that testing policies should be left to the disgression of individual professors as they are obviously more well versed as to when their respective classes should be tested, than is the editor of the Collegian.

As is obvious to most everyone, the new policy put forth by the Faculty Senate and further clarified by various professors, has nothing to do with testing, as such, but merely with the deadline for deficiency reports.

If one did not fully understand this change, it would have been to his advantage to ask the chairman of the committee in charge of this revision to further interpert and explain the action taken by the Faculty Senate.

If the editor of the Collegian would stop writing editorials, and would take a public opinion poll, she would find that few students have found this policy change to their disadvantage.

1. Step-up in federal construction with already available money.

2. Congress will be asked to appropriate 186 million dollars extra to speed up water resources projects.

3. Release of 200 million dollars of available funds to stimulate home-building through government mortgage-buying.

4. Congress will be asked to suspend limit in the highway law and permit spending of $2,200,000,000 extra.

5. Military placement of more contracts in "labor surplus" areas and new efforts to give a "maximum number" of defense contracts to small firms.

6. Action by the Veterans administration and Federal Home Loan Bank board to increase availability of funds for veterans.

7. Labor secretary James P. Mitchell will submit to Eisenhower this week a plan to extend "for a brief period" jobless pay of unemployed workers who have exhausted their payments under state law.

Screen Scene

Viewer Needs Handkerchief, Cotton, Blinders For Three Currently-Playing Motion Pictures

If you're in the mood for a good cry, you might stop by the Campus theater. "The Gift of Love" with Lauren Bacall, Robert Stack, and Evelyn Rudie is practically guaranteed to melt the hardest of hearts.

Perhaps we're too much sentimentalists, but we've yet to see a movie that had a simpler plot which fulfilled all the requirements of truth.

Stack, who plays a sleepless scientist-genius has never played a part so effectively, and he does a tremendous job of switching from his usual tough-guy roles to that of a real thinker who learns how to live from Lauren Bacall.

Probably the biggest flaw in the movie is at the beginning, where we must admit the meeting between the two just dosen't quite ring true.

From here on, though, you can mark up a winner. And something worth noting is a different approach—you get the background, up to the time of their marriage, prior to the title and credits, working kind of like a preface.

Bacall, who by the way has added some poundage since her last movie, is her usual attractive self, and does a decent job on being human.

The real jobs of acting come from Stack and child star Evelyn Rudie. If you remember "Eloise" on TV about a year ago Christmas, you've already fallen in love with the youngster. Fans who first met Rudie then won't be disappointed now—she does a beautiful job here.

The scenery is average, but realistic; the supporting actors do a fine job of holding up their end of the movie; and the stars are good, if tear-jerking.

Lana Turner and Jeff Chandler are soaring through the Cinemascope skies at the Wareham theater in "The Lady Takes a Flyer." The movie should have been entitled "The Flyer Takes a Flyer" because Miss Turner and Chandler both fly sky-high.

If you go to this movie take some cotton for your ears because Miss Turner and Chandler have quite a few loud verbal disagreements about which one in the family is going to fly and which one is going to stay home and take care of baby.

When Lana gets fed up with Jeff putting in too many suspicious flying hours and shirking his duties of fatherhood, she dons flying garb again and takes off for the wild blue yonder leaving baby with clumsy baby-handling Jeff.

Daddy puts baby, diapers, baby bottles, and blankets into the cockpit and roars after mommy. This scene causes many groans from mothers in the audience.

It takes a rather gory plane wreck on Lana's part to bring Jeff to his senses. But the couple just can't seem to think of anything nice to say to each other when they meet. Lana blows up when she finds out hubby took baby for a plane ride. Several hundred words later they decide to laugh it off and call it a day. Thank goodness!—Jackson.

In spite of all the the advance publicity on "And God Created Woman," now playing at the Coed, it remains just an average film.

The heralded Brigitte Bardot, making her first appearance on the screen in Manhattan, is convincing in her portrayal of an uninhibited female in love with man, any man that is. Strong supporting acting is turned in by Curt Jurgens and Jean-Louis Trintignant.

Though the movie is billed, "adults only," (and college students are considered adults) one finds cause to wonder why. With the exception of the opening shot, the movie scenes of Miss Bardot are tamer than most calendars in public places.

The plot of the movie hinges on the fact that Miss Bardot, in a most unin hited and unladylike manner, likes men, any and all. Even though she makes no effort to hide the fact she is out for a good time, she manages to snare a husband, Trintignant, against the wishes of his family.

Miss Bardot tires of being married, gets drunk, does a wild dance, tells her husband to get lost, the movie ends, and the audience leaves, for the most part, very disappointed.—Jackson.

'New Season' Goal For Wildcats—Tex

K-State's basketball team, finishing its regular schedule on a dismal note with the 61-44 loss to Kansas Saturday, begins what Coach Tex Winter hopes is a "new season" this week in preparation for its NCAA opener against Cincinnati university Friday.

For the Wildcats, who cinched the Big Eight title two weeks ago, this was the second defeat in a row, the first coming last Monday at Nebraska 55-48. The Cats posted a 10-2 conference record and are 20-3 for the season.

"I don't remember us playing any worse," said Winter in summing up K-State's play. "The only thing we did was try.

"We got off to a slow start and were behind the eight-ball all the way. The game was lost in the first 10 minutes.

"The season ended for us two weeks ago when we won the championship and we have been flat ever since. The NCAA should give us more incentive, I hope it will be a new season for us.

"There ought to be a lot more hustle in practice and our physical condition will be good if Jack Parr can stay out of bed."

The Jayhawks were the first team to stop K-State at home this season as they ended a nine-game home-court winning skein for the Cats. Kansas was also the last quintet to down the Wildcats before the win streak, winning the season-ender last year 64-57.

The inept K-Staters were outplayed in almost every department as the Hawks jumped off to an 8-0 lead and coasted on to their 18th win against five defeats. KU also clinched a tie for second place in the conference, finishing with an 8-4 mark. Iowa State, which plays Missouri tonight, is 7-4.

The Wildcats had their coldest evening of the season, hitting 19 of 71 shots for 26.8 per cent while KU was shooting at 37.7 per cent with 23 of 61 shots connecting.

Wilt Chamberlain, 7-0 Kansas center, was high scorer for the game with 23 points. The Dipper was backed by 5-11 guard Bob Billings who scored 16. Roy DeWitz led the Wildcats with 11.

KU out-rebounded K-State 50-37 as Chamberlain paced both teams with 15. Alan Donaghue, 6-5 Hawk forward, had 13 grabs.

Cats Fifth in Swimming

Oklahoma university won its fourth consecutive Big Eight swimming title by sweeping 13 of 16 first places at Ames, Iowa, Friday and Saturday.

Ten new conference records were established by the Sooners, as they totaled 179 points compared to 88½ for second place Iowa State. Kansas university finished third with 47½ points, Colorado was fourth with 45, K-State scored 23 for fifth, and Nebraska finished sixth with 13.

Dave Dicken set two of these records as he placed third in the 100-yard butterfly with 1:01.1, and fifth in the 200-yard butterfly with 2:33.8. Jim Nolen placed sixth in the latter event.

The 400-yard freestyle relay team of Jerry Fitzgerald, Tom Onuma, Gordon Harper, and Tom Coblentz finished fourth and with another varsity record of 3:49.

The 400-yard medley team of Mariner, Allen Rader, Dicken, and Onuma finished third with 4:15.6 and another varsity record.

Satire, Laughs Galore At 'Strike Me Purple'

By
By NANCY MOLTER JACKSON
Collegian Assistant Editor

C'est magnifique! The faculty, performing before a sell-out audience last night in the Union little theater, provided an evening full of laughs at its "Strike Me Purple" musical review.

Mary Jean Thomas, graduate assistant in Speech, drew a round of ha-has in two of her numbers, "A New Fangled Tango" and "Let's Do It". Miss Thomas coaxed Tex Winter, head basketball coach, from the audience to join her in a short tango number. "Let's Do It," she gave the song a personal touch by "dropping" such well-known names on the campus as Jack Parr, Wilt Chamberlain, and James A. Mccain.

Bill Koch, assistant professor of English, joined Davis in "The Wild, Wild West". Davis sang a version of a modern Western tune, and Koch came back with a true Western ballad.

Women in the audience were squelched when they learned the "truth" about women during the "If Men Played Cards As Women Do" skit.

"A Bat's Eye View of Kansas State College," a film clip edited by Skip Landen, assistant director of Extension Radio and Television, showed a rather fuzzy but hilarious view of the life on the campus.

'Big Beat' Highlight For Greek Week

Buddy Morrow and his band, the men with the "big beat," will be the main attraction at the all-College dance climaxing Greek Week May 17. The Student Activities board approved the dance last night.

The board passed a recommendation to Student Council that publicity and advertising be restricted to permanent outdoor campus bulletin boards, building bulletin boards, and approved temporary bulletin boards. The board suggests that signs and posters be no larger than 30 by 44 inches and be approved and stamped at the Union activities center.

The board recommended to Student Council that printed advertising for competitive publicity in the spring Student Governing association elections not be posted on general campus bulletin boards. Fifty to 70 special, temporary bulletin boards, would be furnished by Alpha Phi Omega, scouting fraternity.

The board approved the Ugly Man contest which is sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega. Voting will be March 17-21 and the winner will be announced at an all-College dance March 22 in the Union main ballroom.

Several changes were made in this year's UMOC contest. Voting will be at only one booth in the Union instead of three as it was last year, and activity cards will be punched. Each vote costs one cent, and each voter is limited to 50 votes.

Bob Blackwelder, AgE Soph, was elected by the board to replace Becky Culpepper, EEd Sr, who has resigned.

President Discusses Administrative Ethics

"The minimum essential background for the administration to act ethically is to realize that it is a community of scholars," said President McCain in a speech, "The Ethics of Academic Administration," at Philosophy club last night.

"A direct outgrowth of this constitutes recognition that teaching and research are the chief purposes of the institution. These are the central functions," he explained.

McCain explained that the ethical obligations should be accepted in order to eliminate mistakes coming through misunderstanding or ignorance on the part of the administration concerning the academic program.

Listing three tasks of the administration necessary for a successful academic program, McCain mentioned obtaining faculty salaries, which should "be commensurate with the time, energy, experience and intelligence" of the individuals.

Securing funds for an institution of higher education, for buildings in which research and teaching could be carried on, was a second task McCain mentioned as necessary for successful administration of affairs.

"Creating and maintaining an understanding between the public and the academic administration is a third task," the President commented. "We must visualize that interpretation of our institution to the people."

Student Council Rejects Proposal To Limit Signs

Student Council rejected a proposal by Student Activities board to regulate political campaigning—the posting of signs and posters and public address advertising—in its regular meeting last night in the Union.

SAB chairman Pat Loyd, BA Sr, and board member Max Bishop, ArE Soph, attended the Council meeting and submitted a list of recommendations. SAB recommendations included restricting all publicity and advertising to permanent outdoor bulletin boards, building bulletin boards, and approved temporary bulletin boards; and strict enforcement of public address system regulations. The temporary bulletin boards under the SAB plan, would be furnished by the honorary scouting fraternity, Alpha Phi Omega. They would be of uniform size, and large enough to accommodate the prescribed posters.

The Council voted against the proposal because it felt that the regulation on campaigning would curtail initiative and would detract from the atmosphere of campus political campaigns.

The Council unanimously voted against underwriting Manhattan Artist Series $3,100 next year. A committee will confer with Luther Leavengood, head of the Department of Music and chairman of the Artist Series program, to come up with some agreement.

SC also decided to "agree with Athletic Director Bebe Lee on the necessity of a revision in the present student activity status," and that a committee meet with Lee to form a concrete plan which would be submitted to the Council.

SGA Honors Top Leaders At 5:30 Fete

Dr. John Keltner, head of the Speech department, will be the principle speaker at the Student Council banquet tonight in the Student Union west ballroom, according to Bill Brethour, AH Sr, Student Council committee chairman.

Several awards will be presented during the evening program. Dean of Students, Herbert J. Wunderlich, will present a trophy to the outstanding Student Council member during the past year. The outstanding students on SGA committees will receive certificates. Each Student Council member will also receive a certificate for his services.

Neil Scott, student body president, will outline the past actions of the Student Governing Association and give the future possibilities of SGA. Paul Hatfield, AEd Sr, chairman of Student Council, will be the master of ceremonies for the banquet.

All members of Student Governing Association, Student Council and related faculty members have been invited to the banquet.

Automatic Setters Will Be Installed In Bowling Alleys

Automatic pinsetters for the Union bowling area will be installed and ready to go by April 9, according to Keith Swenson, Ar 05, recently resigned chairman of the Union Governing board.

The pinsetters, which will be ready for use following Easter vacation, will be purchased by the K-State Endowment association, and the Union plans to repay the association out of income, he said.

The plan, as explained by Loren Kottner, Union director, is to rent the pinsetters temporarily from the association and to apply the rental to the final purchase if they are satisfied.

"We will use the money that we are putting into wages for pin boys now to pay for the pinsetters," he said.

The pinsetters will represent the second major addition to the K-State Union this semester. An airconditioning unit has already been purchased and will be installed this spring. The unit arrived in Manhattan last week, according to Kottner.

Team, Queen To Compete In Oklahoma

Twenty-five members of K-State's joint Army-Air Force drill team will compete in the Regimental assembly of Pershing Rifles at Oklahoma State, Stillwater, Friday and Saturday.

Highlighting the two-day assemly will be the Pershing Rifle ball and the selection of the regimental honorary commander. Kansas State's Company G-7 will be represented by Kay Fitzgerald, EEd Soph, honorary captain.

Commanded by AFROTC Capt. Nathan Greene, Ch Sr, the Pershing Rifles will participate in drill competition, a rifle match, a weapons crew drill, and field-stripping of the M-1 rifle. Company officers will attend meetings to discuss new ideas for improving the Pershing Rifles organization.

Gordon Jump, Dev Nelson Share Spotlight at Workshop

Gordon Jump, Topeka radio and TV announcer, and Dev Nelson, sportscaster, spoke at the Master of Ceremonies workshop last night in the Union.

Jump's topic for the evening was "Emceeing Variety Shows." The K-State grad feels emceeing is a science. "You have to get through to the group and you have to make them respond," he said. The best way to do this, he explained, is to have an attention-getter at the very first.

Dare to make mistakes; don't measure yourself by what someone else does; don't demand perfection of yourself or your workers; trust your dreams, heart, and visions—are Jump's rules for success.

Of sportscasting Nelson said, "You have to keep in mind the type of audience to which you are broadcasting and you have to take all types and try to satisfy them as a majority."

A question-and-answer period followed each of the speeches.

The Manhattan Toastmasters club will be at the next meeting to give examples of master of ceremonies work. Dr. Howard Hill, professor of speech, will be on hand to criticize speakers.

Basic ROTC Committee To Be Commended On Optional, Compulsory Program Research

CONCLUSIONS reached by the Basic ROTC committee of the Student Council are well worth studying—for a project has been completed that is highly complimentary to the research and study which can be done by a Council-sponsored group.

Not only has the report been well compiled and well founded in its conclusions, but it is presented in a manner which should speak highly for its case—that of eliminating compulsory ROTC for an optional program.

In a seven page report recently submitted to President McCain, the committee has included a synopsis of information from other land-grant schools and a survey of the local situation, two vital factors in determining the worth of the required system.

IRONICALLY ENOUGH, a national magazine has added further light to the subject. Look magazine, in an issue of March 3, has talked the matter over with the military services—and headlines it that the services may drop ROTC. We quote, "High military leaders are considering 'drastically reducing or even eliminating' the ROTC program on the nation's college campuses. . . .Failure of ROTC to produce a sufficient number of high-caliber officers is causing the services to take a "nervous new look" at the entire ROTC system."

In further interviews, Look reporters learned the Army has assigned a civilian team to do research on the problems of recruitment for the ROTC program, and the Navy and Air Force have expressed equal doubt on the worth of the system.

Air Force officials, according to Look, are considering replacing ROTC with a program that would give selected college graduates a four-month Officers' Candidate school course followed by flying training.

OTHER FACTS presented by the committee point toward the steadily increasing male enrollment and the equally steady decrease in commissions given by the ROTC department. In order to offer a ROTC program "adequate in quantity, higher in quality, and more desirable to all students," the committee finds the optional system far more suitable.

We'll go along with them entirely. We find their report concise, complete as far as facts are available to them, and well-worth the time put in. We hope the Faculty Senate, whose committee will first judge the report, will weigh the material carefully. We can't understand any possible action other than acceptance of the proposals.—Sue Goss.

Readers' Forum

Editor,

As I understand it, (making sense from your well written editorials is no small task) under the proposed plan to solve the activity ticket problem, $6 a semester from each student's enrollment fee is to go to the Athletic department. If a student wishes to attend the game there is to be a slight additional charge of $5 a semester.

And yet you claim, and I quote: "This lets all the students who don't like sports out from under the burden of supporting a program for which they don't give two cents—(no, just $6 a semester) and shifts the charges to where they belong: on the shoulders of the guy who's enjoying the game."

What about the $6??

Richard K. Fry, Phy Gr

(Editor's Note: The editorial said: "The drop in athletics to $6 yearly. . ."; to further explain, sir: $6 yearly is $3 a semester. And in the ninth paragraph of said editorial: "It's athletics, with a steady trend toward needing more of that old evil money, and whether you like it or not, looks like it's here to stay. So since we've got it on campus, we might as well plan on supporting it. . ." although at a reduced rate, as we pointed out.)

Tip for Union Coffee Hounds— Buy it by the Cup; It's Cheaper

Here's a tip for Union coffee hounds:

Buy it by the cup, not the gallon—it's cheaper that way.

In case any coffee hound has heard about the economic theory that things can be sold more cheaply in quantity and should wonder why it's not cheaper by the gallon, it's because the Union operates on a break-even basis.

By the gallon, the break-even price is clearly $1.50, according to Union Director Loren V. Kottner.

A gallon, in case you wondered, is about two dozen cups of coffee. Any slide rule jockey can tell, that figures out to 6¼ cents a cup.

But to peg the cup price at something approaching a standard price—and, incidentally, preserve a vanishing American institution—it's a nickel a cup over the counter. That's $1.20 for two dozen cups—one gallon.

And six more cups with the money you save.

Crippled Stratofortress Makes Safe Landing, Bellys into Foam Mat After Electrical Failure

Compiled from United Press
By CHAS. H. SCHREIBER

Westover Air Force Base, Mass.—A giant, eight-jet B-52 stratofortress with a crippled landing gear made a successful belly landing in a shower of sparks early today.

The $8 million aircraft with seven crew members aboard made the forced landing following a futile attempt to refuel the craft in air. No one was injured, the Air Force said.

The plane's commander, Maj. C. M. Maloney called for assistance when he found that his landing gear was out of commission owing to an electrical failure and the fuel supply running short.

Westover officials dispatched a KC-97 tanker to refuel the plan so that it could remain airborne until the electrical failure was repaired. However, the electrically-operated fuel intake valve would not open.

An F-86 jet fighter was sent to guide the stricken plane to the air strip along with the help of the radar equipped control tower. The huge plane, on a training flight, nosed onto the runway and skidded more than 6,000 feet in a sea of foam laid down by fire crews.

Punks Attempt Hanging

Hartford, Conn.—Three boys were turned over to juvenile authorities today as a result of an attempted hanging of another boy.

Police said the 12-year-old was found by his mother with a rope tied around his neck and his hands bound behind him in a garage-size shack late yesterday.

The boy told his mother he was lured into the shack by three 13-year-olds and told he was going to be hanged. The boys bound their victim and were allegedly about to go through with their plot when the mother arrived. She had been warned by a friend of the victim who saw the setup and ran a half mile to alert the mother.

Police said another boy was threatened earlier with hanging. In that instance a rope was tied around the boy's chest and he was hoisted off the ground for a few seconds, then released.

Authorities said they found a length of clothesline, a sledge hammer and assorted tools in the shack.

Islands Rock, Roll

Naha, Okinawa — A strong earthquake shattered houses and opened ground fissures on two islands southwest of Okinawa today. "Several" persons were reported killed. and "many" injured.

The earthquake lasted for three minutes, causing the islands of Ishigaki and Miyako to rumble and shake from side to side.

Reports from the scene said the quake registered as five on a scale of seven at Ishigaki and one on Miyako. In Tokyo the quake was recorded but registered as zero.

Convicts Riot

Petros, Tenn.—Some of the nation's toughest prisoners turned their cellblock at a maximum security prison into a hellish uproar last night but sullenly calmed down today under the guns of guards.

More than 250 prisoners, described by officials as "some of the worst" behind bars, made a shambles of their cells during the abortive demontration at Tennessee's Brushy Mountain State prison.

No one was injured during the incident.

Guards were ordered out of the block for fear the inmates would break out of their cells and get to them. Tear gas shells were pumped into the arena and that quieted down the convicts temporarily.

This morning shortly after daybreak approximately 60 guards armed with submachine guns and sawed off shotguns entered the debris-strewn cellblock and marched the prisoners in groups of 40 to breakfast. Then they were hustled back into their cells.

General To Head Endowment Drive

Maj. Gen. Glen E. Edgerton of Washington, D. C., will head the 1958 K-State Development fund drive, according to Kenneth Heywood, development director.

General Edgerton, who is retired from the Army Corps of Engineers, will direct the national campaign for the second straight year. The 1957 campaign brought in gifts totaling $103,073 which established a new record.

The development fund drive is an annual project by which the Endowment association offers alumni and friends of the College an opportunity to make gifts for its benefit.

"These funds provide for an enrichment of the College program—and provide necessary facilities or services which are needed, but which cannot be obtained from state funds," Heywood said.

The scholarship house was the most popular single project with donators in 1957. The Endowment association recently announced it would open K-State's first scholarship house next fall.

Among other things alumni and friends of K-State gave money for scholarships, hospital equipment, emergency student aid, and a chapel organ.

Bids Offered On Buildings For Couples

Apparent low bids on contructing 11 more married student apartment buildings have totaled $1,884,206, according to A. Thornton Edwards, Director of Housing.

Edwards said the bids are within the amount of money available for construction of the 264 apartments, which will be added to the Jardine terrace development. The construction will be financed by $2,100,000 in revenue bonds. This loan was approved some time ago by the Housing and Home Finance agency.

While study of the bids will be made before any contracts are let, the apparent low bidders were three Manhattan firms: Hunter and Lundberg, general contract, $1,398,850; White-Layton, plumbing and heating, $315,387; and Williamson Electric, electrical work, $169,869.

Flashlight Section Definitely Planned For Next Season's Basketball Games

Kansas State college students and basketball fans will see a flashlight section at next season's basketball games, according to Chuck Wingert, His Jr, chairman of the Flashcard committee.

K-State will be the third school in the nation to use a flashlight section. The University of California at Los Angeles, is the only school that uses one at this time.

The flashcard committee was unable to get the information from UCLA in time to use it for the KU game last Saturday. "We will definitely see it in operation next basketball season," Wingert said.

Two regular size flashcards are used to make one flashlight card. Eight 4-inch squares are cut in each card, and different colors of cellophane are pasted on the the back of one card over the holes. The other card is pasted to the back of this for reinforcement.

An area to accommodate 450 students will be reserved in the center of the student section for each game. The first 450 students to arrive with flashlights will be able to sit in the section.

"If the students furnish the flashlights, it will save the College money, and it will save students the time of checking school flashlights in and out," Wingert said.

A section leader will announce which display is to be used, and the card holders would act according to directions attached to their particular card. The displays will be numbered, and after each number a color will be listed. The holder will flash his light behind the specified color corresponding to the number called.

Wingert said that with a little experience and co-operation, the section will be ready for the conference home games next year.

Clothes Modeled by Coeds In Home Ec Fashion Show

Nineteen new spring ensembles were modeled in the Clothing and Retailing club's annual fashion show yesterday in the Union little theater. "Fashion's Spring Garden Colorama" was the theme of the show.

Clothing for all occasions—from classroom wear to evening wear—was modeled. The clothes were from the college loan wardrobe of the Simplicity Pattern company.

The show was divided into five categories—"Sew It with Roses," "Nature's Favorites," "The Perennials," "American Beauties," and "The Sun Shines Bright."

Red and rosy tones were modeled in the "Sew It with Roses" division by Arlene Richardson, TxC Jr; Judy Hardwick, TxC Fr; Sondra Cool, HT Jr; and Marcia Sowers, TxC Jr.

Rosemary Martin, TxC Jr, and Ila Lawson, TxC Jr, modeled blue and green ensembles in the "Nature's Favorites" category. They demonstrated how two mix-and-match-them garments could be worn 12 different ways. A chemise jumper with a pale green full length coat was modeled by Judy Young, TxC Fr.

Black and white was modeled in the "Perennials" category. Dresses and suits in this division were modeled by Shirley Aiken, TxC Sr; Lee Ayres, HEA Fr; Linda Paulson, TxC Jr; and Coleen Hayes, TxC Sr.

Barbara Herzog, BPM Soph; Ann Anset, TxC Jr; Eleanor Sayler, ChW Jr; and Karen Rosser, HE Fr, modeled clothes in the red, white, and blue "American Beauties" category.

Golden tones were emphasized in "The Sun Shines Bright" division. Joan Brockman, TxC Jr; Sylvia Gaddie, TxC Sr; Jeannette Robson, HE Fr; and Katherine Smrha, Hm Soph, were models.

Alberta Timm, TxC Jr, chairman of the show, was also narrator.

Sue Wildgen, TxC Sr, and Rose Mary Martin, TxC Jr, were in charge of the wardrobe. Marcia Sowers, TxC Jr, was publicity chairman. Program chairman was Donna Stewart, TxC Jr. Alpha Latzke, head of the Department of Clothing and Textiles, and Gertrude Lienkaemper, associate professor in the Clothing and Textiles department, are cosponors of the club.

Profs' Offspring Name Benefits

By JERRY RATTS

Did you ever feel that being the son or daughter of a faculty staff member would be of great help academically? K-Staters who fit in this category feel there are advantages—but not in the way that most people think.

Steve Douglas, Gvt Soph, (whose father Louis Douglas is a professor in the History and Government department) feels that the main advantage is the fact that his home is located in the same town as the school he attends.

Carol Sitz, HEJ Jr, another student with faculty parents, feels the same way Steve does concerning the subject of taking a class from them. Also Carol finds that her parents often talk over her head.

And this is especially true in Carol's case for both her father and mother are on the faculty staff at K-State. Earl Sitz is a professor in electrical engineering, and Mrs. Sitz is an instructor in the Mathematics department.

"One thing that might be a disadvantage to a student with parent professors is the fact that he may become too dependent on his parents while attending school," said Carol. "However my parents leave my study habits up to me and have never forced me to study."

Charles Moggie, BAA Sr, agrees with Carol that meeting more people is a definite advantage of having parents who are instructors. But there's no scholastic advantage to this set-up as far as he is concerned. Maurice Moggie, Education department, is Charles' father.

So students with parents on the faculty apparently agree to the advantages because David Leavengood, Ar 01, also feels that you meet more people as a result of parents being on the faculty staff. His father is Luther Leavengood, head of the Music department.

SC Poster Regulation Vote Has Many Basic Fallacies

WE QUESTION the reasoning behind Student Council's decision on refusing the Student Activities board proposal to regulate, and by doing so, limit the posting of signs and posters on campus.

We realize that such regulation might limit the number of posters, but we would argue that Student Council's reasoning has many basic fallacies. The Council voted against it because it felt that the regulation on campaigning "would curtail initiative and would detract from the atmosphere of campus political campaigns."

WE CAN'T SEE how less initiative would evolve if quantity is limited; wouldn't it, instead, be more conducive to initiative, encouraging better use of the space alloted? We've yet to see quantity automatically making an improvement in quality—and too often organizations will dab anything on a sign or poster, simply rushing to get more of them up than a competitor.

Not only would initiative be directed toward the making of posters itself, but it might encourage students to use other media of publicity than the nearest tree.

AN EXCELLENT EXAMPLE of this is the type of work now being done by several Union committees, who are in charge of posters on display in the Union. The posters are few, but quality work is being done on many of them.

We feel, as do many others, that a few outstanding posters, which obviously have had thought and talent put in on them, would be to step toward the educational process which is supposed to be supreme on this campus. Futhermore, by offering a basic equality to all organizations, one step in the direction of election by quality judgment would be made, as even the smallest of organizations could have "brain-storming" sessions on new ideas.

THE LAST THOUGHT behind the Council's veto, that it "would detract from the atmosphere of the campus political campaign", is almost too funny to be considered. In the first place, atmosphere as such is probably limited, since the tremendous number of posters undoubtedly cuts down circulation of air.

And a second humorous aspect develops when the Council expects 6,500 students to prefer the cluttered, weather-worn, sometimes poorly made signs stuck slipshod on any and every tree to the natural scenery of the campus. K-State may be no beauty queen, but it certainly offers more than 300 similar posters (which is about the maximum this year) on a coming election. What's even more terrifying—the pending threat of the elections! With posters snowing the campus as usual, it will be fall around here before we realize that winter is over!—Sue Goss.

Two Good Foreign Movies On Little Theater Schedule

The Student Union little theater seems to be having a lot of just plain good entertainment this week. As soon as the air clears and the reverberations of laughter following the faculty revue, "Strike Me Purple" fade out, Cinema 16 will move in with what promises to be a top-notch presentation.

"One Summer of Happiness," a Swedish film done in Swedish dialogue with English subtitles will be presented Thursday afternoon.

The movie, winner of three European Film festival awards, has been hailed by the New York Herald Tribune as a film which "has the honest feeling of life rather than the fabricated feeling of a movie script." This could be a welcome change from some of the run-of-the-mill motion pictures coming out of Hollywood these days.)

"One Summer of Happiness," certainly catches some of the tension and torment of youth, wedged between impulse and social standards," says the New York Times.

The movie is set in a staid rural community in a period of social transition and apparently has a fairly simple plot in which the farmer's daughter and the college student spend a brief summer of happiness before tragedy strikes—leaving the movie with an unhappy ending.

The film has been recommended for audiences over 18 years old by Parent magazine, but the magazine has far from condemned it. In fact, Parent magazine has tagged it as an exceptional motion picture.

●

And this is not all the little theater has to offer this week, for this weekend the Union movie committee will present Alec Guinness in an English film, "The Man in the White Suit."

The flick features Guinness as an inventor who winds up with a tailoring fabric which will not wear out (the fabric of which the white suit of the title is made, of course).—Totten

Readers' Forum

To the Editor,

In the Student Union theater, next to the projection booth is a sound-proof room, with an appropriate three- by six-foot window facing the movie screen. This could easily be turned into a "cry room" for the wives of students with babies. At the present time all that is needed to equip the "cry room" is to hook a speaker with a volume control onto the three wires which are already in the room.

I don't know of anyone who could object to this arrangement, particularly not the people who spend their time and money to enjoy a movie only to be disturbed by the crying of small babies.

Student Thinks Finals Round Out Term, Have Everything Not Taught in Course

By Judie Ross

CONSIDERING THE FACT that tests have been the topic of considerable discussion, it seems fitting to add a bit of humor in the rather heated atmosphere. From the North Dakota State college Spectrum comes this comment on tests. It concerns one of those professors who, always anxious to improve his courses, added to the last question of his final examination: "What have you thought of this course?" The professor in question, upon reaching the end of what had been the worst of his papers, found the following notation: "I think that this was a very well-rounded course. Everything not given during the semester has been included in the final examination."

JUVENILE DELINQUENCY has become a major problem in schools throughout America—principals are committing suicide over it, parents are tearing their hair about it, and colleges and universities are beginning to feel the "bite" of it as vandalism spreads. However, Adolph Brugger, assistant dean of students at UCLA, reports (via the Daily Kansan) that some research has convinced him that the antics of present-day college students can only be called mild in comparison with those of collegians of the past.

At least, at the present time, this still holds true. "Thirteenth century records of Italian law courts disclosed a tedious detail of petty and not-so-petty offenses by students, including fights with tradesmen, armed attacks on citizens, duels in the classroom, the abuse of women, robberies, and "lesser riots."

"AGAIN A CENTURY LATER, we read of the Town and Gown Riot at Oxford "which lasted almost a week, resulting in the death of more than 50 students and townmen." (Being a little sadistic-minded, maybe this is the answer to crowded classroom situations.)

"AT LEIPZIG there were graded penalties "for him who picks up a missile to throw at a professor, him who throws and misses, and him who accomplishes his fell purposes."

Dean Brugger admits that nothing in American student life quite reaches its European antecedents, but he notes that Yale's Nassau hall was blown up by dynamite three times in the 19th century. Not to be outdone, Harvard students engaged in repeated rebellion which broken up chapel exercises and left the halls with paneless window frames.

FEMININE FASHION is always a debatable subject. In order to be debatable though, it must be understood. From the Colorado Daily comes this interesting discussion of "high style."

"We of the male clan are agog over this year's fashions for m' lady. Or maybe we are agag.

"A stumbling glance through the coed copy on the newest ways to blow cash revealed to us how men are overcome by a code that would give Univac crossed wires. In short, gals, write it so we at least know what the enemy is plotting. Let us at least try to interpret this verbal viscosity.

"ONE TIDBIT says 'Perfect for a spring tea is a river of green crepe, its unbelted flow broken by a high circling band which meets at the back in a small bow.' This may mean something to the slinky set—to us it resembes a geology text describing the flow of the Mississippi as it saws into a bank and creates an oxbow lake." (As a member of the fairer sex, I ask what in the world is an oxbow lake?)

"One outfit has a 'silk surah brushed with shaggy yellow chrysanthemums and green leaves. This was originally invented by a Marine non-com for camouflage on Guadalcanal.

"One last model features a yoke. That's the first time a female has slipped into a yoke around home since oxen went out of style." Pardon the pun, but, methinks, the yoke is on him!

AF Has Accident; Bomb Falls in City

Compiled from United Press
By CHAS. H. SCHREIBER

Florence, S.C.—The Air Force appealed today for return of fragments found on a farm where a low-flying jet bomber accidentally dumped an unarmed atomic bomb last night.

The fragments were scattered about the rural homestead of Walter Gregg, injuring him and five other persons, when the non-nuclear triggered device exploded. All were taken to a Florence hospital.

Top Air Force officials and FBI agents rushed to the scene and quickly closed the blast area to the public while contamination teams made a preliminary check.

Big Upsets Begin Early In NCAA Tourney Play

By UNITED PRESS

They're ripping the form sheet to shreds in the NCAA basketball tournament, with National Champion West Virginia and hot-shooting Pittsburg the first major upsets.

West Virginia, ranked the nation's No. 1 team at the close of the regular season, was impolitely booted out of the NCAA tourney in the very first round Tuesday night by Manhattan 89-84 in the biggest upset of the season.

At Pittsburg, despite 28 points by half-pint powerhouse Don Hennon, was dealt an 82-77 defeat by Miami of Ohio in another first-rounder.

The other four opening round games went as expected Dartmouth's Ivy league champions dubbing Connecticut 75-64; Maryland's Atlantic Coast conference kings romping over Boston College 86-63; Notre Dame rolling up the round's highest score 94-61, over Tennessee Tech; and Oklahoma State pulling its old defense game to beat Loyola of the South 59-42.

In Tuesday's only other game bearing on the big tourney, Arkansas downed Southern Methodist 61-55 at Shreveport, La., in the special playoff for the NCAA berth from the Southwest conference.

IM Playoffs Next Week

Sigma Nu and Sigma Alpha Epsilon will battle next Tuesday night for the fraternity division championship in intramural volleyball after both emerged victorious from the semi-finals last night in Ahearn gymnasium.

Sigma Nu defeated Beta Theta Pi, 15-9, 12-15, and 17-15, and Sigma Alpha Epsilon beat Pi Kappa Alpha, 15-12 and 15-9, in the fraternity division. OK House downed the Rebels, 15-6, 9-15, and 15-11, winning the championship of group III of the independent division.

'Booz' on U.P. Second Team

Wilt (The Stilt) Chamberlain of Kansas university, and K-State's Bob Boozer were among the top ten collegiate basketball players chosen for the 1958 United Press All-American basketball teams.

Chamberlain, Oscar Robertson of Cincinnati, and Elgin Baylor of Seattle were chosen by an overwhelming number of 257 sports writers and radio and television broadcasters throughout the nation who voted.

The other two on the first five are Guy Rodgers of Temple and Don Hennon of Pittsburg.

Boozer, who led the Wildcats to the Big Eight crown and a trip to the NCAA, headed the UP second team, as he also did in the Associated Press selections last week. Following him are Archie Dees of Indiana, Dave Gambee of Oregon State, Mike Farmer of San Francisco, and Tom Hawkins of Notre Dame.

Chamberlain was chosen UP All-American for the second year in a row, and received the largest percentage of first-team votes since the UP All-American was begun in 1949. The seven-foot center received 225 first-team votes, and 24 for the second team. He has an average of 30.1 points a game.

Robertson, only a sophomore, polled five more first-place votes than did Chamberlain, but did not receive as much all-around support. He currently is leading major-college scoring with a 34.5 points-per-game average.

He is second in the nation in field goal accuracy, with 57.2 per cent. Robertson is just the third sophomore to win UP All-America honors. Tom Gola of LaSalle and Chamberlain also did it.

Rodgers, a six-footer, and the only senior on the first team, is a great playmaker and feeder. He is a "take charge-guy", a good defensive man, and still averages 20.4 points a game.

Hennon, No. 5 on the list, is the seventh - ranking major - college scorer, with a 26 point average a game. He is a junior, and the smallest man on the team at 5-9. His free throw shooting percentage of 83.7 is the tenth best in the nation. He won over Boozer by a substantial margin.

In addition, the five would make an extremely well-balanced team. Chamberlain is extremely agile for his size, a good shot, and a valuable rebounder. Baylor and Robertson are both fast, excellent-shooting forwards, and can also rebound well. Rodgers, as mentioned before, is a great playmaker, and both he and Hennon are good backcourt men and can hit well from the outside.

W-Virginia AP Champ

West Virginia, which was knocked out of first-round NCAA play last night by Manhattan 89-84, was named the nation's top basketball team of the season by the Associated Press. Cincinnati was second, K-State third, San Francisco fourth, and Temple fifth.

Gamma Phi, Van Zile Grab Basketball Wins

Gamma Phi Beta (B) defeated Waltheim 27-24 in women's basketball intramurals yesterday. High scorer was Marilyn Ellis for Waltheim with 13 points. Pat McDermott and Billy Scott tied with 8 points for Gamma Phi Beta (B).

Van Zile whipped Alpha Delta Pi 43-18 on the east court. Gail Coppoc hit 19 points for Van Zile, with her closest opponent, Peg Shanon, shooting 13 for Alpha Delta Pi.

The next game will be this afternoon at 5 p.m. in Nichols gymnasium with Chi Omega playing Northwest hall on the west court and Gamma Phi Beta (A) meeting Pi Beta Phi on the east court.

MY CLOSEST SHAVE by Elgin Ciampi
Skin Diver, Shark Expert, Author

"My closest shave happened under water while baiting sharks to photograph," says shark expert Elgin Ciampi. "My speared bait-fish hid in a hole, pouring clouds of blood around me. Smelling blood, a 7-foot man-eater, unable to find the bait, rushed me. I dodged and started taking pictures. I kept the camera between us while the shark circled hungrily for five full minutes. Then my air supply ran short, so I used psychology: I lunged at the shark with my camera. Startled, he shot away—and so did I!"
